Defense Sidetracked.
Two Pink Spots.
Russia Will Nurse Babies.
Prosperous Ireland.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

REPUBLICAN CHIEFS are said to have "sidetracked" the naval construction program of $74,000,000 to avoid discussion and risk of a special session.

The program would have provided one aircraft carrier, to cost, including armor, ammunition and 114 airplanes, $27,650,000, also one flying-deck day cruiser, with 36 airplanes, costing $20,780,000; four submarines costing $17,600,000, and 130 planes for $5,000,000, plus $3,000,000 for experimenting with Diesel engines.

All this would have been strictly up-to-date defense, but it is abandoned to save the country from another session of its legislators.

ON THE OTHER hand your wise gentlemen actually propose to spend $30,000,000 to "modernize" three old battleships, New Mexico, Mississippi and Idaho.

And when they are modernized they will simply be nothing but targets for bombing planes and pleasant strutting-decks for naval officers too old to accept a new idea.

SOMETIMES CONSUMPTIVE patients have bright pink spots on either cheek, deceitful, telling of hope not to be fulfilled.

Yesterday, Wall Street had a bright pink spot on each cheek, and looked remarkably well. Prices were up, from 2 to 15 dollars a share. Brokers bought and sold more than 4,000,000, nearly four times as many as on the same day of the previous week.

Hope springs eternal in the stock ticker, but nobody knows whether this is the pink spot of health, or gnawing financial tuberculosis.

IN CONNECTION with Russia's plan to conscript women for industry, government taking care of the babies while their mothers are at work, you read that this is done because of "the present serious shortage of labor in Russia." You wish we had that shortage here and wonder how the Russians manage it.

RUSSIA'S PLAN to open gigantic government nurseries to care for babies, while mothers are working in mills, forests, fields, mines, or factories, will present problems that not even Stalin can foresee. Separating women from their babies may be a dangerous experiment, even in Russia.

IT IS PLEASANT to hear of anyone's happiness and you will be delighted to know that Ireland is highly prosperous, "riding the wave of world depression."

In 1930 the Irish exported more than $225,000,000 of goods, which is better than merely shipping money to British landlords. Irish banks are steady, the Irish Free State budget is sound. Those that used to say "The Irish can govern anybody but themselves" may have been mistaken.

They can also govern themselves, if you get off their backs.

ON THURSDAY, day after tomorrow, listeners between 10 a. m. and noon, eastern standard time, may hear Pope Pius on the radio, and also Marconi, "Father of Wireless." The Pope will speak briefly in Latin, his message translated in English, and, perhaps, other languages, by the announcer.

Later, there will be broadcast a formal address by the Pope at a Vatican ceremony.

Who, a few years ago, would have thought that a pope, from the Vatican, would be able to talk to the whole world?

IF YOU EVER become well acquainted with a lady named Guillermina Guerrero, or one like her, don't trifle with her affections.

Maximino Aceval did that, in Mexico City. Guillermina dressed herself as a boy, found faithless Maximino in another cabaret, dancing with another girl, followed, and shot them both.

An opera, like Cavalleria, or Pagliacci, represents no exaggeration. The Latin temperament feels everything, especially neglect, strongly. Those that know say the affections are as violent as the jealousy. It must be an exciting life.

PEOPLE IN NEW YORK, greatest state in population, are too busy to add to population as they did once. The birth rate has fallen 30 per cent in 16 years. Birth control advocates say the state is getting "fewer and brighter babies," but that is not convincing.

TO OFFSET the decreased baby crop, the general death rate is at its lowest for all time. Of 1,000 population, only 11.7 die in a year. Deaths from tuberculosis are diminishing steadily, thanks to science. On the other hand, cancer and diabetes gather more and more victims.

THE MODERATION LEAGUE, INC., make a depressing report on prohibition. Drunkenness has increased, "remarkably" in states dry before 1920. Drinking among boys, girls and young people generally has increased steadily, the largest increase taking place among boys from 15 to 25 years of age.

In Washington arrests for drunkenness are eight times as numerous as before prohibition started.

Prohibition was "a noble experiment," but it is not yet working smoothly.

DAISY DE VOE JAILED 18 MONTHS

Ex-Secretary of Clara Bow Begins Term After Rebuke By Judge as 'Example'

International News Service.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 11. Daisy De Voe, blonde ex-secretary, who was convicted of stealing $825 from Clara Bow, the screen star, today was given 18 months in the county jail, five years probation and a stern reprimand from the bench.

Miss De Voe faced trial Judge William C. Doran on a plea for straight probation.

Judge Doran swiftly expedited the hearing. A few minutes after he took the bench he had completed the last act of a courtroom drama that took 10 days of trial, and 49 hours of jury deliberation.

Under her conviction of grand theft, Miss De Voe could have been given a one to ten year prison sentence, as an alternative to a county jail term.

DAISY CALM

Miss De Voe stood firmly and looked intently at the court as Judge Doran quietly announced his decision. Apparently resigning herself to the court's judgment, she walked from the courtroom to begin her term in the county jail.

No attempt was made to appeal the motion for a new trial, denied a week ago.

One of the largest throngs seen during the De Voe case was attracted to the court house. In leading up to his decision, Judge Doran told Miss De Voe:

"You conducted systematic raids on the funds of Miss Bow for some length of time.

BETRAYED TRUST

"You were given a good position at a substantial salary and entrusted with funds. You not only committed embezzlement, but you were guilty of a breach of trust. There are no extenuating circumstances in connection with your offense.

"You never have been in trouble before, but your case should be made an example for others."

The sentence was given and Miss De Voe walked out of the court room and back to heer jail cell.

MARKET UP ON STEEL SUPPORT

Unfilled Order Gain of 188,755 Tons Send Stocks Soaring; Auburn in Lead

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—(AP.) — Bears continued to pay dearly for their excessive gloom in today's stock market, as the bull forces pressed on to new high levels for 1931 for the third successive day.

There was a pause for breath during the morning, following a half hour of the most furious trading witnessed in weeks right after the market opened, but the advances were resumed by midday, and a report by the United States Steel Corporation showing a large gain in new business in January provided fresh stimulus to bullish enthusiasm.

Unfilled orders of the steel corporation increased 188,755 tons in January to a total of 4,132,351 tons January 31. In December an increase of 303,960 tons was reported.

The backlog as of December 31, was 3,943,596 tons. On November 30, unfilled orders aggregated 3,639,636 tons. On October 31, the total unfilled tonnage was 3,481,763, and January 31, 1930, unfilled orders amounted to 4,468,710 tons.

While unofficial estimates in the steel trade had been vague, the gain of 188,755 tons was considerably larger than had been expected by the more optimistic, who looked for a gain of about 100,000 tons. A short time ago, many ob-

'WHITEWASH' OF UTILITIES PREDICTED

Governor Assails Senate's Action in Restricting Probe to That Body

By E. W. PRENDERGAST,
Staff Correspondent.

HARRISBURG, Feb. 10.—Branding the separate investigation of the Public Service Commission voted today by the State Senate as action intended to "whitewash" the public utilities, Gov. Gifford Pinchot met the rebuke by laying plans for initiating another investigation by the House.

Immediately after the Senate had passed without a record vote the Earnest resolution No. 2 for the restricted investigation, ignoring the House measures for a joint inquiry, the Governor issued a formal statement declaring that he was interested only in "getting the facts before the people" and asserting:

"As everybody knows, the Earnest resolution, confined to the Senate alone, was and is intended to whitewash the public utilities. Its obvious purpose is to prevent the people of Pennsylvania from getting the facts.

WON'T OPPOSE QUIZ

"Nevertheless, I have asked my friends in the Senate not to oppose this obvious attempt to prejudge the case, but to let it pass. Then if I am invited before the Judiciary General Committee of the Senate, which was packed for this very purpose, I shall be glad to appear. I am interested in one thing only—to get the facts before the people.

"Meantime, there is no reason why the House cannot, if it chooses, institute a fair and open investigation, through which the truth can be found and told to the people of Pennsylvania. Let us see whether the Earnest resolution represents a whitewash or a probe."

The Senate investigation will get under way tomorrow.

PINCHOT DEFEAT

The Senatee's action in approving the Earnest resolution for an investigation by the Senate Committee on Judiciary General followed defeat of the Pinchot forces last night on a motion to recommit a resolution calling for an investigation by the judiciary general committees of both branches of the Legislature. The Pinchot forces had planned to try to amend this resolution to conform with the Moore resolution adopted by the House and approved by the Governor providing that the Senate, the House and the Governor's office be equally represented on the investigation committee.

FASCISTS BOLT REICHSTAG

BERLIN, Feb. 10. — (INS.) — Angered over passage of a measure depriving deputies of parliamentary immunity from court prosecutions, Franz Stoehr, vice president of the Reichstag and Fascist spokesman, announced today that the followers of Adolf Hitler will withdraw from the Reichstag.

It is understood the Hitlerites plan to open their own assembly at Weimar in Thuringia, where a Fascist government is in power.

The announcement, believed unprecedented in German parliamentary history, was followed by formal exodus from the chamber of the 112 Fascist deputies, elected in the startling polling of last year when Hitler, with his threats to "send heads rolling in the sand" rose from comparative obscurity to the second strongest power in the Reichstag.

Sea Flier's Widow To Marry Broker

HOBOKEN, N. J., Feb. 10.—(INS.)—Mrs. Helen Bertaud, widow of Lloyd Bertaud, the aviator who lost his life in an attempt to fly from Maine to Rome, will be married on February 12 to Henry Martyn Messinger, it was announced today. Messinger is a New York broker.

Dorothy Mackaye to Wed Actor Slayer of Husband

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—(INS.)—Dorothy Mackaye Raymond and Paul Michael Kelly today took out a marriage license here.

Both Miss Mackaye and Kelly, prominent on the screen and stage, served terms in San Quentin (Cal.) prison in connection with the fist-fight slaying of Ray Raymond, Miss Mackaye's husband.

Since their release, both have prospered in stage productions and Broadway for some time has been talking of their approaching marriage. They had admitted their engagement.

Miss Mackeye and Kelly recorded their ages as 31; the former saying she was born in Denver, Belly in Brooklyn.

It is to be Kelly's first marriage; Miss Mackaye's second.

Do indication of when the marriage would take place was given, but the couple said the ceremony would take place in New York.

INJURES SELF, FIGHTS POLICE

Slashing his wrists with the jagged edges of a tin cup, and tossing aside a husky policeman, Erling Kustramsen, 30, of Himbel boulevard, Chicago, battled two sergeants, a patrolman and a police janitor in an effort to escape from his cell in Central Police Station last night. He was subdued after a struggle, and will be committed to Mayview for observation.

Patrolman Mike Walsh said he saw Kustramsen acting queerly last night at Seventh avenue and Smithfield street. Police detained him for an examination by city welfare authorities. Kustramsen asked Cell Sergt. George Hook for a drink of water, then he tore off the handle of the tincup and slashed his wrists.

Hook, a former pugilist, 6 feet 5 inches tall and weighing 225 pounds, opened the cell door and Kustramsen attacked him.

It took the combined efforts of Hook, Desk Sergt. Frank Goebler, Patrolman Barney Mangan and the janitor, Ben Edwards, to overcome Kustramsen. The policemen were so badly bruised that they had to be treated by City Physician Dr. Daniel E. Sable.

Lawrence of Arabia Hero in Plane Crash

PLYMOUTH, Eng., Feb. 10.—(AP.)—"Lawrence of Arabia," that romantic figure who is now known as plain Aircraftsman Shaw, appeared today as one of the heroes of the recent disaster here when nine men were killed in the plunge of a seaplane. At the court of inquiry Shaw turned up as one of the principal witnesses and it was revealed that he played a prominent role in the rescue of members of the plane's crew who escaped death in the crash.

'Al' Smith Planning To Build Tenements

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—(INS.)—Apartments with free heat and water at $12.50 per month a room rental are planned by Alfred E. Smith, former governor of New York. He announced today financing for building such tenements on New York's East Side was about completed.

Fashionable Folk, Students Welcome Chicago Opera Singing of 'Lucia'

By J. FRED LISSFELT.

Does Pittsburgh want grand opera? Is opera dying? Both questions were answered last night, if numbers count, for thousands braved the weather and traffic to crowd Syria Mosque and welcome the Chicago Opera Company.

Not only the debutantes and their mothers came in all their elegance, but rubbing elbows with them during the promenades were hundreds of students hearing the Lucia Sextet in its proper setting for the first time, thrilled at the vocal fireworks of the Mad Scene, and arguing the worth of Italian opera.

There were the Italian contingent too, loyal to Donizetti's high notes and enjoying tunes which they had whistled in Naples and in Palermo, many having likely heard the favorite Schipa long before we knew him in America.

Tonight "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "I Pagliacci" will be given.

That this opera treat should be an annual event, as formerly, is beyond arguing. Our fathers rightfully boast of hearing the Metropolitan in its heydey, when Duquesne Garden housed the great titans of the Grau and Conreid regime. Unless we bestir ourselves to welcome the Chicago and German companies, and since we cannot support a local troupe, our coming generations will never know the glamorous music which is opera.

(Mr. Lissfelt's review of the "Lucia" performance and photographs of society folk at the opera appear on Page 3.)

Army Red Tape Angered Pershing

Red tape in Washington bureautic domination which seriously hampered troops at the front, were severely criticized by Gen. John J. Pershing, as he reveals in today's instalment of his memoirs. Vigorous protests were sent from Chaumont, but the general declares the Army General Staff had no conception of the needs of modern warfare. Pershing again reveals heretofore unknown war history.

TAG GIRL POSTS GEM REWARD

Josephine Bennett was confined to her bed in the Coronado Apartments today, a victim of a nervous breakdown, she told a Sun-Telegraph reporter over the telephone.

Miss Bennett said the breakdown was caused by the loss of her $7,200 diamond-studded bracelet yesterday. She said she would pay a $5,000 reward for its return.

The bracelet was an heirloom, in the family for 50 years, according to Miss Bennett, who said she was distributing circulars describing the jewel to police in all cities.

Miss Bennett is remembered for her visits to Traffic Court to settle for numerous traffic tags.

Katherine Cornell Produces Own Play

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—(INS.)—Katherine Cornell, beautiful actress, today took her place among Broadway's leading theatrical producers.

'Dial' Vote Machine Test Urged in Delay Plea

Edgar Kaufmann today asked the County Commissioners to delay advertising for bids for vote machines until a new type of machine which he described to the commissioners, could be investigated.

Kaufmann's request was not granted. Commissioners Joseph G. Armstrong and C. C. McGovern explained that an act of Assembly had put a time limit on the purchase of vote machiens, and that this limit is near expiration. Kaufman suggested that Allegheny County could very well get along for another six months, until the new machine can be developed.

Kaufmann introduced Edward Rogal, president of Central Records, Inc., of Chicago, as the sponsor of the new type. Rogal said the machine would require six months to build, would cost between $800 and $900, and described their mechanism as similar to the dial telephone.

The machine would weigh between 10 and 15 pounds and would be two feet square.

Kaufmann, who explained that Central Records, Inc., had developed the accounting and recording system used by Kaufmann's store, suggested that the commissioners find some way to delay the negotiations.

SENATE REBELS RENEW FIGHT ON RELIEF COMPROMISE

BILL TO PASS, LEADERS PREDICT

Poor on Farms, Jobless in Cities Ignored, Declares La Follette; Hyde Upheld

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—A factional revolt against the $20,000,000 compromise food loan bill for drought relief raged through the Senate today with its opponents charging that starving city workers and poor farmers were being abandoned.

By a peculiar coincidence, the fight for adoption of the compromise was opened in the Senate by the Democratic floor leader, Senator Robinson, while administration spokesmen, assistant [illegible]. And the fight against it was spearheaded by a Republican insurgent, La Follette of Wisconsin.

While Republican leaders that food could be supplied to [illegible] government loans, the terms of the compromise bill admitted failure without security and required food would depend on the Red Cross for relief. He asserted there was no charity element in the bill's provisions.

The compromise was written into the conference report on the Interior Department appropriation bill and undoubtedly will be approved after another day's debate.

The drought relief debate revolved around the use of loans to purchase food. It was pointed out that President Hoover did not give Congress such assistance in his recent utterances, but Robinson insisted the money could be used for that purpose after being borrowed by the drought sufferer.

When the drought measure is finally enacted, Republican chieftains will rush through the other necessary appropriation bills. They have instructions from the Republican caucus to hold night sessions daily should they be necessary to complete the program before March 4.

ANOTHER RACKET? —:— By Quin Hall

CHARGES GROW IN CITY'S BUYING

Record Shows State Pays Lower Price Than Quoted For Pittsburgh Institutions

BULLETIN.

Mayor Charles H. Kline today stated he would conduct his own private investigation into the charges that favoritism cost the city thousands of dollars in the awarding of contracts for food supplies for city institutions. He will report his findings to Council.

Council President John S. Herron said the Mayor's investigation would not interfere with a public hearing before Council in the matter if those who complained of the alleged favoritism sought it.

Additional light was thrown on contract awards by Bertram L. Succop, director of the city Bureau of Supplies, by further examination of official records today as the Mayor and City Controller pondered accusations made concerning Succop's methods.

The original charge made by James D. Houston, president of the John W. Houston Company, Pittsburgh grocers, was that local interests were discriminated against in the award of canned goods contracts, often to high bidders.

STATE BUYS CHEAPER

That the city is paying an average of $1 a dozen more for its canned goods than the state of Pennsylvania pays is shown by state records, it was revealed today. It was learned the L. H. Parke Company, of Philadelphia, which sells much of the canned goods to the city, also supplies the state Department of Property and Supplies with approximately 32 per cent of its canned goods, but at much lower prices.

State records show the Parke company supplies tea to the state at 12 cents a pound, while the city pays 32 cents a pound. Large-size cans of half peaches are sold by the Parke Company to the state at $6.65 a dozen, while the city pays the same company $7.65 a dozen. Other items show similar variations in the prices charged the city and state.

HIGH SOAP BID WINS

A checkup of files in the Controller's office disclosed that in September of last year Succop awarded contracts for 25 barrels of soap chips to the Pittsburgh Soap and Chemical Company for $490, the high bid, when Armour & Co.'s bid for the same material was $381.20. The soap was for the City Home and Hospital at Mayview.

Another item for 10 barrels of soap powder was awarded the Pittsburgh Soap and Chemical Company by Succop for $150. There were no other bidders.

Houston's accusations, contained in a letter to Council, were presented formally to that body yesterday. On motion of Councilman George Kambach, copies were ordered sent to Kerr and Mayor Charles H. Kline.

In his motion Kambach asserted the charges were a reflection on the administration and deserved airing. He said Succop was a member of the Mayor's cabinet and naturally, the executive would be interested in any criticism of that department.

A councilmanic committee was expected to discuss Houston's allegations late today.

TWO MINISTERS ARRESTED IN RED RIOT

Dispute Right of Boston Police to Disperse Crowd; Capital Paraders Quiet

BOSTON, Feb. 10.—(AP.)—Twelve persons, including two women and two clergymen, were arrested when police dispersed an unemployment demonstration of Communists on Boston Common today. One of the clergymen, the Rev. Robert A. Bakeman, former Mayor of Peabody, was knocked down by the horse of a mounted policeman, but was uninjured.

The other clergyman was the Rev. Smith O. Dexter, rector of Trinity Episcopal Church in Concord. The two had protested the right of mounted officers to force them to move from the cross walks of the Common. They said that they had not taken part in the demonstration and had created no disturbance.

Mr. Bakeman was upset into a snowbank when one of the horses swerved. They were induced to leave the Common, but later were arrested when they became involved in a discussion with other officers outside.

QUIET IN CAPITOL

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—(AP.)—A delegation of Communists who marched peacefully to the Capitol today remained to argue with representatives and House attaches after they were refused permission to appear on the House floor.

An extra delegation of policemen listened to the discussion as the group was told to give their petition to the sergeant-at-arms of the House.

Alfred Wagenknecht, Sam Nessen and Sol Harper, New York Negro, their leaders, said they felt they should be allowed to see Speaker Longworth.

The argument subsided and the group was allowed to enter the House public gallery. They filled it quickly. Several plain clothes men were sprinkled among them. About 50 gathered in the hallway leading into the gallery and there were lined up by Capitol and metropolitan police. As their comrades emerged after listening to the proceedings of the House for a few moments, others were allowed to take their places. Two or three women were in the delegation. There was no disorder.

Communists Drop Parade Here

A detail of 42 motorcycle and foot police and a dozen mounted police patrolled the Liberty avenue and Grant street districts near the Pennsylvania Station today to quell any attempt by Pittsburgh Communists to hold a demonstration.

But they were wasting their time, according to Robert Wood, district organizer of the Trade Union Unity League, who said that the Communists were not planning such a demonstration having been refused a permit for a gathering. It was to have been an unemployment demonstration.

WESTINGHOUSE RALLY

In East Pittsburgh at noon the Communists held a meeting in front of the Westinghouse employment office and attracted possibly 150 Westinghouse workers. The meeting, held by permit, was orderly, and there were speeches.

Late this afternoon the Federation for Industrial Democracy planned to meet in West Park North Side, having been granted a permit, and there are meetings scheduled for Ambridge, McKeesport and Johnstown. Also, according to Wood, a demonstration will be staged at the Pennsylvania Station February 25 as part of an international program.

HEIRESS FOUND IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—(INS.)—Two weeks' search for Florence Parker, 22-year-old heiress of Yonkers, ended today when she was found calmly "leading her own life" at the Hotel Piccadilly here.

First word of the discovery came from Capt. John Ayers, of the Missing Persons Bureau, who left immediately for the hotel, where the heiress had already been joined by her mother.

According to police, Miss Parker explained her abrupt departure from her Yonkers home on January 26 by saying she had a disagreement with her stepfather, James MacDonough, vice president of the Manufacturers Trust Company.

AMENDMENT DRAWN FOR SUBWAY

Proposal Defeated in 1928 Revised for Action by Legislature; Approval Seen

A new joint resolution to be presented the Legislature as the city's request for an amendment to the state constitution, to give Pittsburgh the right to levy special assessments for construction of subways, is now in the hands of City Council.

George S. Davison, chairman of the City Transit Commission, presented the resolution to Council yesterday through President John S. Herron.

An amendment, similar to the new legislation, failed of approval in 1928 at the general election. Davison charges that confusion caused by the submission of many amendments at that time was responsible for the defeat of the subway project.

MAYOR PLEDGES ACTION

If the amendment is approved by the Legislature it will later be placed before the voters. Mayor Kline has promised its introduction as soon as possible, Davison said he was told. Both Pittsburgh and Allegheny County returned overwhelming majorities for it in 1928, but the vote throughout the state defeated it.

The new amendment provides that the city may acquire by eminent domain either the fee or easements within the land necessary for the construction and operation of a subway project.

Properties which would be especially benefited by construction of the tubes may be assessed, the amendment stipulates. Assessments would be payable in a lump sum or in installments.

APPROVED BY SOLICITORS

The proposed legislation reads in part:

"For the purpose of paying any part of the cost of acquiring such transportation facilities, Pittsburgh may incur indebtedness to the extent of 2½ per cent of assessed value of the taxable property therein, in addition to all indebtedness authorized for other or general purposes; but only with the consent of a majority of the electors voting on the question at an election to be held in accordance with law."

Davison, in a communication to Council, said the amendment had been inspected, read and approved by both City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt and Assistant Solicitor Thomas M. Benner.

SCORE LEGION FOE OF BONUS

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—As soldiers' bonus legislation temporarily was shoved aside by the House Ways and Means Committee today, three congressmen joined in an attack upon John Thomas Taylor, legislative representative of the American Legion, charging him with trying to block bonus legislation.

Faced by other legislative matters, Chairman Hawley, of the committee, fixed tomorrow for a secret meeting on the bills for cash payment as informal conferences looking toward a compromise on the bills, so that not more than $500,000,000 may be called for from the treasury, continued without any general agreement.

Representative Rank (Dem.), of Mississippi; Connery (Dem.), of Massachusetts, and Patman (Dem.), of Texas, joined in the attack upon Taylor. After stating that the American Legion executive committee had declared for cash payment and the rank and file of the Legion wants it, the congressmen said:

"Taylor is not only refusing to help the cause, but is actually blocking the efforts of the proponents of the measure to have this payment made."

Speedy End to Cold Wave Here Forecast

The cold wave which gripped Pittsburgh last night will be of short duration, Forecaster W. S. Brotzman said today. In outlying districts temperatures as low as 11 were reported. The official low was 22.

Tonight the mercury will dip again to 15 or slightly lower, but the bottom of the cold snap is due early and by 8 o'clock tomorrow morning it is expected the mercury will be started upward.

Hoover Gives 10 Pct. Of Pay to Aid Fund

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—(AP.)—President Hoover today gave 10 per cent of his annual salary to the Red Cross for the drought sufferers. Today's contributions were enlarged by the President's personal gift of $7,500. His salary as president is $75,000.

The drought fund now totals $7,303,116 toward the $10,000,000 asked by the Red Cross.

'NUMBERS MEN' DESPERATE

Leaders of the "numbers" racket in Pittsburgh were uncertain today whether to play "ring around the rosy" or "you chase me and I'll chase you" to get their minds off business.

One of the principal operators has left for Hot Springs with a near-breakdown. Two were reported sick in bed today. The balance were tearing their hair, chewing on pencils or just sitting with a far-away look in their eyes.

The latest blow to be dealt them had been predicted by the "wise gamblers" in the racket, who, when urged to base their business on unofficial counts of sales on the New York Stock Exchange, refused. Private computations disagreed and operators found themselves swamped with demands that they pay off on both numbers.

Meanwhile, operators in and near Pittsburgh who book on the U. S. Weather Bureau temperature bulletins sat back and laughed as play on their books mounted. A Hill district operator continued to throw dice with a fair book. East Liberty night numbers hit a new high of about $1,800, while day numbers sank below $100.

Rosicrucian Head Killed by Auto

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—(INS.)—The Rev. Reinhold A. Berrenberg, head of the northeastern division of the Order of Rosicrucians of America, who had passed through New York's congested traffic for many years without suffering a scratch, lost his life in a traffic accident.

He was run down by an automobile operated by Philip McClelland, who said the churchman apparently stopped in the street when the traffic light signalled traffic to start.

PINCHOT'S FOES WIN ON QUIZ

Dauphin County, sponsor of the resolution, in a brief address promised that, speaking both for the committee and himself, the Senate investigation would be honest, fair and as complete as possible.

Senator Clarence Buckman, Pinchot floor leader, in answer said that he would take the Senator at his word.

EARNEST MAKES PLEA

The Senate session had hardly begun today when the resolution came up for reading. Senator Earnest secured the floor and in a talk calling for members of the Senate to forget their suspicions about each other, unite in the support of the resolution.

He said:

"There ought to be no question of honesty among us. The Judiciary General Committee has 26 members of the Senate, more than half its entire number. This investigation is not to be instituted by a board of managers, but by the whole committee, and I am glad to say that the investigating need not be confined to the committee, but to the whole Senate body the privilege is extended to come and take part. Every member knows every other. There is no reason why the whole Senate cannot investigate, because the Senate has the duty of passing upon legislation and other matters which this committee will review.

TO INVITE PINCHOT

"The Governor will be respectfully invited to attend and present his indictment and substantiate his indictment. It is my purpose to ask George W. Woodruff, special utility counsel for the Governor, to attend and participate in the hearing. It will be a full, fair and free investigation, to enable the House and Senate to discuss legislation and present legislation desired to have passed."

Earnest mentioned that while no appropriation was provided if the investigation was found to be honest and fair, he had no doubt that both the House and the Governor would approve the necessary expenditure.

Senator Buckman said:

"I am glad to take the Senator at his word. The people and the Governor demand an investigation an while this resolution is not all that I would like to see, and while the committee designated is composed of an usually large number said to be unfriendly to the Governor, if carried out as the chairman promises, there will be no complaint. The committee will be on trial. If they conduct a fair hearing, and a fair dealing arrangement, I will vote and ask my friends to vote for it."

STEEL REPORT BOOSTS STOCKS

servers thought a small decline might be expected.

The increase in part reflects, of course, the low rate of activity during January, when the mills generally ran at less than half of capacity, despite the extensive resumption of activity after the year-end shutdowns.

LARGEST IN YEAR

The total volume of unfilled business on the books at the end of January was the largest since April of 1930, and a little better than the average for the past 12 months, which was about 4,000,000 tons.

Although the steel industry has accelerated activity but slightly in the past fortnight, the volume of business booked by the leading producer was regarded in steel circles as lending substance to reports that a further increase in steel prices was planned. There has been some uncertainty over the price structure, as several observers had felt that the prices announced for the current quarter had been largely untested.

2 BOY BANDITS HOLD UP STORE

Two youths, too young to purchase cigarets, but old enough to pack a revolver, held up two girl clerks in the P. H. Butler store at 701 North Euclid avenue today, and escaped with $5 from the cash register.

One of the two youths who entered the store asked for a package of cigarets and Miss Mary Louise Harrison, of 502 North Highland avenue, the clerk, told him he was too young.

To which the youth replied:

"Is that so; well, you'll give them to me, all right."

He drew his pistol and ordered Miss Harrison and Elizabeth Watson, of 554 North Euclid avenue, another clerk, to face the wall.

$400 Ring Missing When Party Ends

Following the party which he had given for a number of his friends last night, the 2-karat diamond ring of Ralph Castellucci, of 2507 South Eighteenth street, was missing, Castellucci informed police today.

8 BANK OF U. S. MEN INDICTED

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—(INS.)—Eight persons were named in indictments returned today by the grand jury investigating the closing of the Bank of United States.

The eight were named in six indictments given to Judge Allen in General Sessions. Among those named were Isidor J. Kresel, counsel for the bank and special investigator for the appellate division's investigation into the lower courts of New York.

The seven others are Bernard K. Marcus, president; Saul Singer, executive vice president; Herbert Singer, his son; Alexander S. White, director; C. Stanley Mitchell, chairman of the board; Henry K. Pollock, director and counsel and Simon H. Kugel.

King, Queen Return For 'Little Season'

LONDON, Feb. 10.—(AP.)—The King and Queen returned today from Sandringham, where they have been staying since Christmas, preparatory to the opening next week of London's "Little Season," during which both have a number of engagements to fulfill.

Son Slaps Actor in Court, Awarded to Mother

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 10.—(AP.)—The stormy contest between Duncan Renaldo, film actor, and Mrs. Suzette Renaldo, author, over custody of their 4-year-old son, Renaldo Duncan, was ended today with the child in the possession of his mother.

Mrs. Renaldo, whom the actor charged with mental incompetency, was given custody of the boy by Judge Charles Burnell yesterday after the child stirred the courtroom by striking his father.

The child left his mother's side to rush at his father. When the boy had been calmed by Mrs. Renaldo, Judge Burnell warned her to exercise more control over the son. The judge said:

"I may have to take him away from you yet if you do not make him behave."

His decision in the case followed stipulation by counsel for both sides that Renaldo would deny counter charges by his wife that he was the son of parents of Chinese descent and Mrs. Renaldo would deny having attempted to "fix" evidence.

A witness for Renaldo had testified Mrs. Renaldo attempted to influence her to swear the actor fell in love with Edwina Booth, film actress during the filming of a picture in Africa.

Renaldo is awaiting another hearing on charges of entering the United States illegally.

Coolidge Sees Security For Nation in Boy Scouts

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Feb. 10.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

The Boy Scout movement is just reaching its twenty-hrst birthday. The momentum of this organization has steadily increased. Millions of our young men have had the benefit of the physical, mental and moral discipline that results from scout training.

Calvin Coolidge

When the evil reports of a few gangsters make us wonder if society and government are about to disintegrate and revert to the law of the jungle, we can turn with assurance to the humanizing and civilizing effect of the Boy Scouts. Under the old life in the country every boy was something of a scout. But in the modern city many boys live on a narrow street or alley. The buildings make it impossible for them to see; in the constant roar they cannot hear. With the lack of healthful and life-giving impulses from without they are turned back on themselves. When they need action and companionship in order to secure a natural growth of body and mind, they are unable to find anything but an artificial, dwarfing substitute.

The profitable and patriotic remedy for these conditions is the Boy Scout movement. Under the influence of a considerable body of citizens so trained our republic is fairly secure.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

49 LOST AFTER 2 SHIPS CRASH

LONDON, Feb. 10.—(INS.)—Forty-nine passengers of the Japanese steamer Kikusui Maru were missing today following its collision with the French liner Porthos during a snowstorm last night off Kobe, according to Exchange Telegraph advices.

The Kikusui Maru sank immediately, it was said, while the French ship, en route to Marseilles, suffered only minor damage. It turned back to Kobe.

$100,000,000 India Capital Dedicated

NEW DELHI, Feb. 10.—(AP.)—Almost on the same spot where 600 years ago the mighty Tamerlane slaughtered 100,000 inhabitants of Delhi, Viceroy Lord Irwin today dedicated India's new $100,000,000 imperial capital here.

It is a magnificent modern city of marble and red sandstone which in its architecture typifies the entire history of India. Because of recent terrorist outbreaks, pains were taken to protect the viceroy and other notables.

2 WOMEN SLAIN IN HOLDUP

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 10.—(AP.)—Two women were shot to death early today as three gunmen shot up a North Taylor avenue saloon.

The dead were identified as Bessie Lynnann, 30, and Dorothy Evans, 37. William Goebel, said by police to be a brother of the late Dewey Goebel, notorious gangster who was slain several months ago, was wounded critically and was expected to die.

Goebel's brother, Harry, bartender in the saloon, said the three gunmen entered the saloon shouting:

"Stick 'em up."

William Goebel and the two women, in an ante-room, were slow in obeying the command, and the three men fired. Then they fled.

WARNS OF NEW WAR HORRORS

LONDON, Feb. 10.—(INS.)—A new bid for world peace, coupled with a warning that unless public opinion is mobilized within the next year in favor of drastic reduction of world armaments, war is likely, was launched today by Foreign Secretary Arthur Henderson, of Britain.

Speaking at a disarmament meeting in Queen's Hall, the statesman asserted it was beyond the power of statecraft to humanize warfare, and as a result, the "next war" must be immeasurably more terrible and disastrous than any known in history. High powered armored aircraft using poison gas in attacks over large cities, exterminating entire communities, were pictured by him as one of the inevitable terrors of any future major conflict of nations.

The present depressed economic condition of most countries of the world was blamed by him on the recent war, but he regarded it as a trifle in comparison to the aftermaths of any future world conflagration. The complete collapse of national industries and capital was held unavoidable in future international conflicts.

'Lucia' at the Mosque

The cast:

Lord Henry Ashton.....Richard Bonelli
Lucia di Lammermoor, His Sister.....Margherita Salvi
Edgar of Ravenswood.Tito Schipa
Lord Arthur Bucklaw.....Theodore Ritch
Raymond.....Chase Baromeo
Alice, Lucia's Confidante.....Alice d'Hermanoy
Norman, Captain of the Guard.....Lodovico Olivero

Syria Mosque overflowed with music lovers last night to hear the opening performance of the Chicago Opera Company. A brilliant cast sang Donizetti's Lucia di Lammermoor, while the audience happily nudged one another when old-time melodies appeared, and applauded with real delight and enthusiasm when the stars finished each of their scintillating arias. It was as gay a crowd as has come to the Mosque in a long while.

J. Fred Lissfelt

The Chicago company leaves nothing undone in the matter of settings, the warmly colored tapestries in the castle rooms, and the graveyard scene being particularly attractive. But the stage management leaves a marvelous opportunity in direction escape in the treatment of the chorus during Lucia's mad scene. Here the choristers, who always sing with interest and with excellent tone, appear stodgy after the wedding festivities, and act as if the prima donna were there merely for their further entertainment. The tragedy was lost entirely.

The orchestra under Frank St. Leger nearly always overplayed the singers, for the vocal score throughout this opera is of exceeding delicacy. In the mad scene, however, the conductor was more than discreet in his handling of background, and in the sextet achieved a well-planned and very beautiful climax.

Margherita Calvi, as Lucia, was a newcomer in Pittsburgh. Memories of Tetrazzini and Galli-Curci, with their brilliant coloratura, and of Sembrich, with her porcelain-like finesse, assailed us as we listened to this Spanish lady. Salvi's voice is small and limited in range, although sufficiently flexible for the role, and especially effective in the purely melodic passages. She is quite pretty and youthful, and as an actress measures up to the usual opera singer.

Schipa's Edgardo is a surely thought-out performance, his death aria remaining an exquisite display of good Italian singing. As an actor he has considerable more abandon than the rest of the cast, consequently was the most convincing of the singers. Bonelli's Lord Henry is a suave portrait, well-sung and dignified, though he might let his double-dealing nature color the portrait more deeply.

Chase Baromeo's Raymond was conventional, but Ritch's Bucklaw almost grotesque. Alice D'Hermanoy played the unimportant Alice, and Oliviero the Captain Norman.

A small ballet ensemble danced prettily during the wedding scene and the tempo of the entire opera kept the audience on the qui vive. The costuming, as well, was schemed for bright effects, and made this Lucia one of the happiest in our memory.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

Man Killed, Mail Flier Hurt in Crash

RENO, Nev., Feb. 10.—(INS.)—Burr Winslow, pilot of the mail plane which crashed into a beacon last night, killing Louis Notar, Boeing Field manager, was suffering from internal injuries and severe cuts and bruises today as a result of the crash.

East bound in a dense fog, the plane flew into a beacon at the landing field at Wells, Nev. Notar, field manager at Elko, Nev., a passenger in the plane, was killed outright.

WALES FETED IN PERU

LIMA, Peru, Feb. 10.—(AP.)—Callao and Lima made ready today to give an enthusiastic welcome to the Prince of Wales, Prince George and their party when they arrive tomorrow aboard the Oropesa.

The two princes, who are making a good will tour of South America, touched Peruvian soil first yesterday at Cabo Blanco, proceeding by automobile through Lobitos and Negritos to Talara, where the party was feted at the Peruvian Club.

From Talara, the center of British and Canadian oil interests in Peru, the party proceeded to Payta and there embarked again on the Oropesa for the run down the coast to Callao.

Landing at Callao, after an official welcome, the princes will come to Lima and go to the British legation. Then they will call upon Lieut. Col. Luis M. Sanchez Cerro, provisional president of Peru. The president will return the visit immediately thereafter.

President Sanchez will be the host to both in the evening with a dinner at the palace.

WNBO BUILDS STUDIOS HERE

Unlimited capital behind a $6,500,000 corporation to own a chain of 400 local or community broadcast stations in the Eastern part of the United States, was revealed in hearings before the Federal Radio Commission at Washington yesterday.

WNBO at Washington, Pa., WHP at Harrisburg and stations at Johnstown, Uniontown, Derry, Philadelphia and Scranton would be in the network, it was said.

Pennsylvania alone would have 40 of the stations. These stations would be located in communities ranging from 15,000 to 100,000 population.

C. R. Cummins, manager of WRAK at Williamsport, disclosed the network idea, but refused to give any further information about its sponsors except to say "we have plenty of money to put the thing across." The network would not be controlled by any large companies, he added.

WNBO at Washington, Pa., has already made plans for the operation of Pittsburgh studios in conjunction with the enterprise. Two studios and a remote panel have been installed in the Hotel Henry. Plans are being made to broadcast large orchestras playing in the city, particularly at the Hotel Henry, it was reported. The studios are to be opened this Sunday. It is expected that a permit will be granted this week.

New Mexico Debates Bill For State Distillery

SANTA FE, N. M., Feb. 10.—(INS.)—Thrown into a furor over the introduction of bills proposing to put the state in the liquor business on a large scale the New Mexico Legislature today faces action on one of the most radical liquor measures ever brought before a state law-making body.

The proposed legislation would provide $50,000 for the construction of a brewery or distillery, and would provide for a state commission to supervise the distribution of liquor "for the convenience of the people."

Permits would be granted persons of good "moral character" upon application. Each permit holder would be able to purchase four quarts of vinous liquors and 24 quarts of malt liquor a month.

Proponents of the measure insist that it would not be contrary to the Eighteenth Amendment, the Volstead law nor the New Mexico constitutions on the grounds that they apply only to persons, associations and corporations and do not prohibit any sovereign state from manufacturing and selling liquor.

Jeritza Plays Samaritan As Ballet Dancer Faints

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—(AP.)—Today it is Mme. Marie Jeritza, prima donna and good samaritan to the stricken.

As the curtain dropped on the first act of "Boccaccio" at the Metropolitan Opera House last night, a ballet girl, Dolly Sartori fainted in the arms of a chorus man. He carried her to a dressing room opposite that of the star.

Jeritza rushed in a minute later, picked up the unconscious girl, and transferred her to her own quarters. There she brushed aside all assistance and bathed Miss Sartori's face with camphor until she revived. It meant a quick change to her second act costume.

French Banker Balks At Oath During Quiz

ELECTION CODE SUBMITTED TO LEGISLATURE

Both Houses Given Findings Aiming at Clean Voting And End of Machine Sway

By ARTHUR B. DONEGAN.
International News Service.

HARRISBURG, Feb. 10.—Interest of members of both chambers of the Legislature today centered upon a bulky document of 428 pages which, for the time at least, overshadowed all measures upon the desks of both Senate and House.

The document was the proposed Pennsylvania election code, presented in the Senate at last night's session by Senator Frank J. Harris, Allegheny, and in the House by Representative D. Glenn Moore, Washington. The measure represents the prolonged work of the Pennsylvania Elections Association and 33 allied groups interested in "clean elections."

LAWS SIMPLIFIED

Briefly, the proposed code revises, amends, consolidates and simplifies the laws of the commonwealth relating to nominations and elections, registration of electors, nomination and election expense and election contests.

It also, according to its supporters, makes for efficiency and economy in administration of the registration and election laws and provides a method of doing away with the influence of "machine politics" by setting up a system of election control vested in the Secretary of the Commonwealth.

Dominating feature of the proposed code is the sweeping away from county commissioners in counties of the first, second, third and fourth classes and from functioning registration commissions their power over conduct of elections by setting up in their stead a county board of elections, operating under regulations issued by the secretary of the commonwealth as the chief elections officer of the state. In counties of the first, second, third and fourth class, the election board would consist of four members, no more than two of the same political party, appointed by the Governor for four years. In all other counties the election board would be made up of the county commissioners, ex-officio.

POWERS CENTRALIZED

The county election boards, under provisions set up in the proposed election codification, would have all the powers and duties now distributed between the courts, county commissioners and registration commissioners, including powers of petitioning for redistricting of voting districts; purchase of voting machines; appointment of registrars, registration inspectors and judges and inspectors of elections when vacancies occur; issuing watchers' certificates; instruction of election officials; computing of returns of elections and primaries; investigating frauds and bringing prosecutions.

An important feature of the projected code is the provision for a system of permanent, personal registration for the commonwealth, designed to supplant the existent annual registration. Under the provision of the code, electors would be permitted to register in person any day in the year except for a period beginning 30 days prior to an election and ending five days afterward. Once registered, under the new plan, the voter would not be required to re-register unless he failed to vote at least once in four years or moved into another district.

Another feature of the code attracting considerable interest is that section supplementing the present law providing for opening ballots and ballot boxes and making it possible for candidates, on allegation of error, to call for a recount and have the returns promptly corrected. By deposit of a cash sum or a bond, any candidate or group of candidates may secure recounts in any district on petition to the election board.

The proposed law aims at prevention of "chain voting" by providing that all ballots be numbered in the upper right hand corner and detachment of the number when it is deposited in the ballot box.

JAIL SENTENCES PROVIDED

In the penalty section, jail sentences for convictions of the more serious violations will be mandatory and violators will be disfranchised for four years and "publicly disgraced" by the sentencing judge.

The corrupt practice act is strengthened, proponents of the code say, by stipulating that no political committee will be permitted to expend funds for any candidate in a primary unless authorized by the candidate in writing. This stipulation will apply to independent committees in general elections, also, but does not apply to regular party committees.

Under the provisions of the code, political activity by appointed public office holders in cities and counties of the first class is prohibited. Office holders appointed by the state and county government are prohibited both from soliciting and making political contributions and the code provides that no office holder may serve as a watcher.

Wilkes-Barre Woman Made State Censor

HARRISBURG, Feb. 10.—(INS.)—Nomination of Mrs. Blanche Eadd Davenport, of Wilkes-Barre, to be a member of the State Board of Censors, today bore the approval of the Senate. Mrs. Davenport takes the place of Mrs. Mary D. Patton. Her term begins February 15, 1931, and will expire in January, 1935.

BILL WOULD BAR 'AMBULANCE CHASING'

Measure Penalizes Lawyers Soliciting Employment Through Such Methods

HARRISBURG, Feb. 10.—A bill designed to make illegal "ambulance chasing" by lawyers has been introduced in the House by Representative Peeler, of Indiana County. The measure would make it unlawful for an attorney to solicit a retainer or employment to defend or prosecute a case. The Peeler bill provides a fine of $50 or 30 days in jail for violations.

Moving household furniture between 7 p. m. and 7 a. m. without a permit is prohibited by a bill of Representative Schwartz, Philadelphia.

The House received a bill by Representative Shortz, of Luzerne, to prevent public utilities charging more than the legal rate of interest for consumers who fail to pay their bills promptly.

All Pennsylvanians who served in the World War or the Spanish-American War would be given a service medal from the state if a bill of Representative Storer, Allegheny, becomes a law. The bill provides an appropriation of $300,000 to pay for the medals.

Representative Rhodes, of McKeesport, has offered a bill in the House which would prevent parking of automobiles on all streets where there is a single track of a trolley company.

Representative Goehring, of the Fourth Allegheny District, has introduced a bill which permits persons properly registered in Pittsburgh not to register until the fall registration days preceeding the next presidential election unless they move from the district or fail to vote at a primary or general election.

SENATE PASSES BILL ADDING 2 JUDGES HERE

State House Must Act on Coyne Measure; Proposal Bars Secret Tax Raises

HARRISBURG, Feb. 10.—The bill of Senator James J. Coyne, Pittsburgh, providing for two additional judges in Allegheny County, passed the Senate unanimously today. Passage by the House is required before the measure goes to Gov. Pinchot for approval.

The Coyne bill was the third to pass the Senate today.

Legislation requiring boards of revision of taxes to give notice to taxables before increasing assessments, is contained in a bill sponsored by Senator William D. Mansfield, of McKeesport.

When taxes were revised in Pittsburgh last year the board increased assessments in Brookline and South Hills without notice to property owners or giving them an opportunity to appeal. Such procedure becomes illegal in the Mansfield proposal.

PAY REFERENDUM

A referendum to determine the desire of voters regarding the salaries to be paid police or firemen in cities and boroughs is provided in another measure by Senator Mansfield. Such an expression of opinion may appear on ballots not more often than once in four years upon petition of 5 per cent of the voters. Its effect is only advisory, leaving authorities free to fix salaries as they choose.

To prevent streams from being polluted by sulphuric acid wastes from abandoned bituminous mines, owners of such mines are required by a bill sponsored by Senator Herman Brandt, Allegheny, to seal openings of the abandoned mines within 60 days after notice by the Department of Mines.

Building and loan associations are permitted to credit dues on shares on the account of the principal of loan as borrowers make payment by terms of a bill of Senator George T. Weingartner, Lawrence County.

WORK HOURS BILL

Senator James J. Coyne is sponsor of an amendment to the women's labor law reducing the legal maximum working hours of employed women from 54 to 44 hours a week and from 10 to eight hours a day. This is one of the proposals in the legislative program of the State Federation of Labor.

A contribution of $5,000 from state funds to the building fund of the Stephen Collins Foster Memorial in Pittsburgh is proposed in a bill introduced by Senator Frank J. Harris.

Senator Morris Einstein proposed $300,000 appropriation to the Allegheny General Hospital.

DEBT LIMIT INCREASE

The borrowing capacity of Allegheny and other counties is increased from 7 to 10 per cent of the assessed value of real estate, in a proposed constitutional amendment sponsored by Senator Frank E. Baldwin, Potter County.

The penalty imposed on motorists who, while intoxicated or under influence of narcotics, injure or kill persons, is fixed at revocation of driver's license for two years in a measure of Senator Painter, Butler County. If the same person offends twice, revocation becomes permanent.

Banker Gives Up Fortune to Save Depositors

HAMMOND, Ind., Feb. 10.—(INS.)—Peter Meyn, wealthy president of the First Trust and Savings Bank, which closed last week, will turn over his entire fortune to save depositors and stockholders from loss, it was announced today after a meeting of bank officers.

Meyn, whose holdings are valued at $15,000,000, admitted that he valued the confidence of his neighbors and former associates above his riches.

After the banker had listed his holdings at last night's meeting and his offer was accepted, one of the directors was made custodian of the Meyn fortune.

PINCHOT PLEDGE DRAWS IRONY

HARRISBURG, Dec. 10.—The personal loyalty pledge which Gov. Pinchot requires from all his appointees has drawn a fire of sarcasm in the state Senate.

Last week the Governor's office sent application forms to Senators to be filled by persons seeking appointment as notaries public. The form contained a pledge that the appointee will "loyally support the policies approved by the people of this commonwealth in the election of 1930."

Senator Bertram G. Frazier of the West Philadelphia district in a resolution last night called upon the Governor to strike out this pledge and substitute one pledging to support the Pennsylvania constitution.

One of the "whereases" of the Frazier resolution contained sharp shafts of sarcasm which brought ripples of laughter from the Senate when read. It said:

"It might be erroneously construed by the people of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania that His Excellency, the Governor of said commonwealth, is attempting to create a political machine or to restrict the granting of notary public commissions to those who supported him in the last general election."

Burgess Cavanaugh fined Fletcher $10 and costs, which the woman paid.

RUM MAGNATE LOST AT SEA

WINDSOR, Ont., Feb. 10.—(AP.)—James Cooper, 57, millionaire resident of Walkerville, Ont., was lost in mid-ocean Sunday from the steamer Deutschland, on which he was en route to Europe, according to word received here late yesterday.

No details were received either from Mrs. Cooper, who cabled from Switzerland, or from the New York office of the Hamburg-American Line, owner of the Deutschland.

A native of Ontario, Cooper was in the saloon business in Detroit when prohibition came into effect. Then he transferred his activities to the border cities. He amassed a fortune estimated at from $5,000,000 to $6,000,000 in the liquor business, while such activities were sanctioned under Canadian law, and retired.

Hired to Murder Priest, Youth Says

CHICAGO, Feb. 10.—(INS.)—Evidence purporting to show that a 21-year-old parishioner had been hired to kill the Rev. Milan Hranilovich for a fee of $300 was to be given the grand jury today by the state's attorney's office.

The youth who exposed the plot to assassinate the priest is George Sutko, according to prosecutors. On the day set for the assassination Sutko went to the priest and told him of the plot, prosecutors said.

MESSAGE URGES OLD AGE PENSION

Governor Praises Pittsburgh Plan for Job Relief; Amplifies Utilities Stand

By WILLIAM B. BROWN.
International News Service.

HARRISBURG, Feb. 10.—Advocating early adoption of an old age pension for Pennsylvania, Gov. Gifford Pinchot, in his first annual message to the General Assembly, today declared against any direct appropriation of the state funds for relief of unemployment unless in the event of failure of the "Pittsburgh plan" and similar efforts at relief of unemployment distress.

The Governor's message, delivered to a joint session of the Senate and House, reiterated and amplified his campaign declarations regarding the Public Service Commission and public utilities, elections, the rural road systems, and laid great stress on unemployment. Fully a third of the address was devoted to employment conditions in Pennsylvania and a survey of the methods taken to aid workers suffering from the general depression.

"PITTSBURGH PLAN" PRAISED

The "Pittsburgh plan," commended by the chief executive, divides workers into two classifications. Those who, because of physical or other handicaps, are unable to work, are rated as charitable cases and given relief. Those able and anxious to work are being placed on projects outlined by the committee in charge of the plan and given employment. The plan is financed by voluntary contributions both from employers and workers who have not been affected by the widespread recession in business and industry. The plan, Gov. Pinchot declared, is workable and is "in no sense a dole."

The Governor paid tribute to the Pennsylvania Unemployment Committee and the county committees aiding it in a survey of conditions in the state and added:

"The committee's recommendation that at least $10,000,000 be set aside for a building program for state institutions has been exceeded. The budget carries nearly $14,000,000 for this purpose, to be available immediately, and I have also recommended transfer of $10,000,000 from the General Fund to the Highway Fund for the purpose of pushing state construction work."

HITS EMPLOYMENT FRAUDS

One of the immediate causes of recurring depressions, the Governor told the legislators, lies in the mobility of capital and labor and in the changes in consumption whereby increasing production of one group of commodities calls for changes in equipment and labor. It is part of the public business, he declared, to see that men in need of work are not mulcted of what money they have by fraudulent private employment agencies.

The Governor, after outlining the "Pittsburgh Plan," paid tribute to Edgar Kaufmann, chairman of the Allegheny County Employment Committee and its outline and told the legislature that "what is being done in Pittsburgh and Allegheny County can be done in every county in Pennsylvania." He also praised the work of the Lloyd Committee in Philadelphia, which has undertaken to raise $5,000,000 for relief of unemployment.

Calling attention of the legislature to recommendations of the state committee that the borrowing power of local communities and of the commonwealth itself be expanded to provide for times of depression, the Governor recommended serious study of the plan. He explained:

"The committee recommends a constitutional amendment authorizing the commonwealth to borrow $100,000,000 at the time of the next depression. If we had the power to put $100,000,000 of state money in construction work at once, in addition to the $140,000,000 carried in the budget for the next two years and the sums to be spent by local governments and the federal government, the result would be to take industry out of the depths of depression and put us well on the way toward prosperity."

OPPOSES STATE AID

In so many words, the chief executive declared against any direct state appropriations for unemployment relief, asserting:

"I do not recommend that the commonwealth shall appropriate money directly for providing food, clothing and shelter for the victims of unemployment. In the first place, $140,00,000, or 40 per cent of the budget, has already been recommended for work available for unemployment relief. In the second place, the state cannot borrow without a constitutional amendment. Finally, other more desirabe plans are now under consideration or in effect and appear to offer means of relief."

The section of the Governor's message dealing with public utilities was in effect, a summary of his long fight against excessive rates for what he said have become necessities of life. He repeated his charges that "the unrestrained power of public utilities to set their own rates takes from the helpless rate payers and fare payers many tens, if not hundreds, of millions of dollars every year."

While urging lower rates for public service, Gov. Pinchot went on record as one believing that the return on the actual capital invested by utilities should also be fair.

P. S. C. QUIZ DEMANDED

Turning to the Public Service Commission, and using virtually the same words as the Moore resolution, introduced in the House at the Governor's instance, he demanded a "thorough, open and unbiased investigation of the treatment accorded to the people of Pennsylvania by public utilities." He asked the Legislature to create an investigating tribunal "so constituted that its fairness will be recognized," and indicated his belief that it should be made up not only of members of both houses, but also of his own appointees to represent the public.

After reviewing some of his own experiences with "crooked election boards," the Governor placed the seal of his approval on the proposed election code which has been introduced in the assembly after a series of long conferences. Readily admitting that such a code could not be perfect, the Governor asserted his belief that if enacted it "will immeasurably improve the present situation and go far to remove the stigma which election thieves have brought upon us."

In regard to the old age pension system and abolition of inheritance taxes, the Governor asserted that "both of these proposals are supported by the overwhelming majority of the voters of Pennsylvania and both are emphatically in the interests of the plain people."

Proposals for amendment to the constitution, which would make both legally possible, are before the Legislature but have not been acted upon.

Dangerous Age Begins at 45 For Walkers

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Feb. 10.—(AP.)—The dangerous age for pedestrians crossing the street is not childhood, but begins at 45.

This is the testimony of nine months' automobile traffic killings in Detroit as analyzed and made public today by Adelbert Ford, professor of psychology at the University of Michigan.

The golden age for escaping autos is from 15 to 24, when all the faculties seem keenest, while the second best age is 24-44. Third rank the babies up to 5, and fourth, the school children of 5 to 14. Then come the 45 to 64-year-olds and lastly there is a terrific jump to the most fearful of all pedestrian death rates, those of 65 up.

SUSPECT GRAFT RING IN KILLING

CLEVELAND, Feb. 10.—(INS.)—Ordered by city officials to spare no expense in their effort to capture the slayers of William E. (Rarin' Bill) Potter, 45, ex-city councilman, detectives today collected clues which may lead to the solution of the brutal murder and had called in for questioning more than 20 persons.

Police continued their quest today on the theory that Potter was murdered on the eve on his appearance in Common Pleas Court to stand trial for perjury charges resulting from the land graft deals, so that he would not reveal the real facts of the case.

A young blonde woman, believed by police to have been the lure to get Potter to go to the apartment where he met his death, and a man who had rented the apartment, giving his name as "M. J. Marcus," were the objects of one of the most intensive police hunts in the history of Cleveland.

STABILIZED PAY PLANS URGED ON PINCHOT

State Unemployment Group Reviews Proposals to Insure Workers' Incomes

HARRISBURG, Feb. 10.—(AP.)—Consideration of measures for the stabilization of workers' incomes was recommended to Gov. Pinchot in the report of the Pennsylvania committee on unemployment which was made public today.

The committee, which has been at work since last October, prior to the election of the Governor, was unable to agree upon the specific measures through which stabilization of workers' incomes should be effected, but called attention to a draft of various plans for employment insurance and to the possibility of voluntary action by employers, either as individuals or groups, in co-operation with organization of employes.

RECOMMENDATIONS

Other recommendations were summarized as follows:

Full efforts on the part of the State Department of Labor and Industry to stimulate private employers to stabilize their production and employment as completely as possible. The suggested means of accomplishing this to be by (a) conference, (b) consulting service of a properly qualified engineer or business man.

A public works program for Pennsylvania which will include:

The immediate preparation of a building program for state institutions of approximately $10,000,000. This bill should be passed in the early days of the session and work started as soon as possible with the bulk of construction to be concentrated in 1931 rather than in 1932.

The transfer of $10,000,000 from the general fund to the motor license fund and immediate pushing of highway construction.

WAGE RATE

The requirement that contractors on state work should pay the going rate of wages with adequate inspection and penalties for violation. Preference in such employment to be given to residents of Pennsylvania.

The submission of a constitutional amendment giving to the local governmnets and the state under proper safeguards more flexible bonding power for public works when an unemployment emergency is declared by a majority of a committee composed of the governor, state treasurer and secretary of internal affairs.

The creation of a long-range planning board for public work operating in terms of six-year programs.

The improvement of the public employment offices of the state by:

The purging of unfit members of the staff and their replacement by qualified persons with educational training and previous employment and trade experience.

The building up of strong co-operating committees for each of the offices which would have real powers in helping to select the local superintendents and in guiding local policies and would be somewhat comparable to boards of directors.

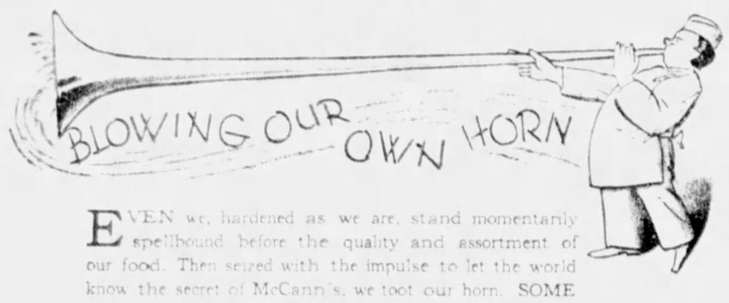
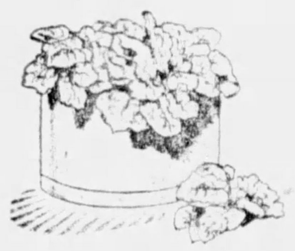
McCann's

Two Stores



EVEN we, hardened as we are, stand momentarily spellbound before the quality and assortment of our food. Then seized with the impulse to let the world know the secret of McCann's, we toot our horn. SOME stores devote all their effort to selling. McCann's considers BUYING even more important. "Is it worthy of McCann's?" That's our only concern. When discriminating people desire food to be as right and perfect as anything of the kind can be—they get it at McCann's—a fact we're proud of.



The aristocrat of our coffee family

Mocha and Java Coffee

lb. 50c

Sophisticated palates demand the rich flavor of Mocha and Java but McCann's moderate price places this fine blend within the reach of most everyone.

Lots of vitamins in this

Fresh Spinach

The family will eat spinach and like it if you cook these tender green shoots fresh from southern gardens. Sold by the pound for honest measure . . . you get what you pay for.

Make tea the modern way

Orange Pekoe Tea Balls

20 in a box 29c

Once you experience the convenience of making tea with tea balls, you'll never go back to the old method. One ball makes one or two cups depending on how strong you like your tea.

We make it every day

One of the secrets of good mayonnaise is its freshness. We make mayonnaise every day. It's always FRESH at McCann's. Fresh eggs, oil, vinegar and mustard and nothing else but go into the making.

Covered with nut meats

ea. 43c

One thing nice about a loaf cake is that it keeps moist and fresh for several days . . . that is, if it lasts that long. Fresh pecans and marshmallow frosting make a toothsome covering for this one.

Chicken as you like it

Breasts and Legs

lb. 79c

Many folks prefer just the choice cuts of chicken. If you're one of them, you'll find it pays to buy chicken this way . . . no waste . . . no leftovers.

Cuts and Giblets for soup . . . lb. 30c

Freshly Ground Beef

2 lbs. 39c

McCann's beef is ground just as it is sold over our meat counter. Won't a goulash taste great for dinner? or a savory meat loaf? or meat cakes and browned onions?

Delicious with maple syrup

Ponhause for Breakfast

2 lbs. 21c

Is there anything more delicious for breakfast than richly browned slices of Ponhause dripping with golden maple syrup? We make it from choice pieces of pork and cornmeal mush.

The youngsters love it!

Assorted Fruit Butters

3 jars 65c

Spread it on bread good 'n' thick and the youngsters will just gobble it up. Your selection of Quince, Grape, Apricot, Peach, Plum, Pear and Apple Butter. Large number 2 jars.

FAITH BALDWIN Presents Her Greatest Love Story

MAKE-BELIEVE

The story of a girl who became involved in a situation almost unbelievably dramatic and romantic that of being a make-believe wife. Mary Lou Thurston knew what she was likely to encounter when she accepted the part she was to play in the private drama of the Lorrimer family, so she put her whole heart and mind into the game of make-believe on which the cure of a war-shocked young man depended. That the situation almost overwhelmed her was the fault of Travers Lorrimer's delusion that she actually was his wife.

MAKE-BELIEVE will carry you into the land of reality in each of its enthralling instalments.

River Somme Floods War-Devastated City

ABBEVILLE France Feb. 10. (AP.)—Heavy rains of the past month, coupled with melting snow in the mountains of the watershed of the Somme river, have sent the river to flood stage in many places. The ancient city of Abbeville, which was the scene of bitter fighting during the World war, is threatened by the rising waters.

Some cellars of the banks and the docks of this war-torn city has been flooded, the ground floors of many houses are under water, and what appears to be an alarming flood

At St. Gilles the water is 16 inches deep in the streets. Some householders have been driven out of their homes.

NOTICE TO RIVER INTEREST AND ALL NAVIGATORS

Construction of the cofferdam for Lock No. 4 Monongahela River, will be started at once. This cofferdam will be located on the right bank of the Monongahela River near the town of Charleroi, Pa., about 41⅝ miles above the mouth of the river.

The cofferdam will be constructed of a size that will contain both locks together with their guide walls. The cofferdam will extend in the river a distance of approximately 260 feet beyond the present full pool shore line.

Plans showing the location of this cofferdam are on file in the United States engineer office at Pittsburgh and can be seen on request.

The usual danger lights will be displayed at night and during fog except at such time when river conditions make it impracticable to maintain such lights.

GOLDEN SPIKE LINKS ROADS

CONNELLSVILLE, Feb. 10.—A golden spike, symbolic of the completion of a rail link of the Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railway from Cochran's Mill to Connellsville, will be driven here today at the culmination of elaborate ceremonies held under the auspices of the Connellsville Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Temple

H. H. Temple, chief engineer of the P. & W. Va. Railroad, will drive the spike and officially open the road which connects with the Western Maryland through to the Atlantic seaboard. Freight service will be inaugurated over the new line some time this month.

Accompanying Mr. Temple to Connellsville for the celebration will be H. W. Nethken, vice president of the P. & W. Va., and other officials. Following the spike-driving ceremonies, the officials will go to the Pleasant Valley Country Club as guests of the local Chamber of Commerce for dinner and a program of speaking.

The new railroad is the fifth trunk line to pass through this city. The new link uses about 1,000 feet of Pittsburgh and Lake Erie track to reach the Western Maryland right of way, the arrangement being necessary to avoid residential properties.

PERRY HIGHWAY LINK ASKED

A delegation of North Borough residents headed by John W. Vickerman, today petitioned the County Commissioners for the construction of a connecting link between the Ohio River boulevard and Perry highway.

Park H. Martin, Bellevue engineer explained how the improvement would form a connecting link between the boulevard and existing thoroughfares to the highway.

The matter was referred to the county engineering department.

DEATH SUSPECT FREE ON BOND

Held for action of the grand jury on a murder charge in connection with the killing of Walter A. Thompson, North Side, in a house in Jack Run, Ross Township, Emil Schoen, Bellevue contractor, was at liberty today on a bond of $5,000. He was released from the county jail last night after District Attorney Andrew T. Park had approved the bond.

Late yesterday, after the coroner's jury had recommended that Thompson be held for the grand jury, Attorney Edward G. Coll asked the court to set the amount of bail, claiming the shooting was done in self defense.

Adolph Giger, in whose home the shooting occurred, was exonerated by the jury. Testimony at the inquest disclosed that Thompson was slain after he and 10 companions invaded the Giger home, where, it was testified, he aimed to square accounts with Giger. Giger is said to have beaten Thompson in a fight in an East Ohio street restaurant several days previous.

STEEL MAN HITS LIFE IN RUSSIA

Michael McNally, of Sharpsville, Pa., a well-known steel worker of the Shenango and Mahoning valleys, who went to Russia to follow that business is back from the land of the Soviets and with a tale that is none too encouraging.

McNally went to Russia last August, where he became the foreman of an open hearth department of a steel mill. He states that living conditions there are terrible, but the natives must remain silent else they will be thrown into jail.

McNally says there are countless thousands who would like to have the same religious life they had before the revolution, but this is denied them in most of the cities and towns.

FALSE TEETH Can Not Embarrass

Most wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their teeth dropped or slipped at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little Fasteeth on your plates. Makes false teeth stay in place and feel comfortable. Sweetens breath. Get Fasteeth at May-Liggett or any other good drug store.

PLEASANT RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Shoulders droop under weight of years. Young, yet beauty has fled. Cheeks are sallow and drawn. Unsightly pimples. Keep your system clean and you keep the beauty of youth. Its energy, its irresistible charm. Then life is not a failure.

Clogged bowels and inactive liver cause poisons to seep through the system. Health vanished and with it beauty and energy. Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets will help save you from this dark hour. For 20 years they have been prescribed in place of calomel to men and women seeking health and freedom from constipation. They act easily and smoothly. No dangerous griping. Take nightly before retiring. Results will amaze you.

Thousands of men and women would never be without Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets, a vegetable compound. Know them by their olive color. 15c, 30c and 60c. All druggists.

SOMETHING TO LOOK FORWARD TO!

Once in a lifetime you find something you decide never again to be without. In the tooth paste realm that "something" is the mouth exhilaration you experience after using PEBECO, the "iced" dentifrice. Here is a taste you remember...seek again. For the bite, the "digging in" effort of Pebeco assures you that it is working—keeping your teeth sparkling white, your mouth youthfully fresh. Pebeco is the tooth paste you look forward to using, once you've tried it. Try it today!

Breaks Up • a Cold In a Jiffy

Feel Like a New Person Almost Before You Know It

If you want quick relief from a cold, go back to first principles and use something you know does the business—don't start "trying" a lot of fancy ideas or remedies. Even a "little" cold is too dangerous to take chances on.

Get Hill's Cascara Quinine. A scientific formula made to do ONE THING WELL; to knock a cold in a jiffy, not to cure a hundred different things.

Take two tablets now. Then follow directions on box. Drink lots of water, too—that's all. Soon those mean, aching pains in head and body begin to go; the cold breaks up; poisons leave your system. Almost before you know it, you feel like a new person.

If it doesn't do that, your money back. Get a box now. You'll be surprised at the speed with which it works. Costs only a few cents.

SIMPLE HOME MIXTURE DARKENS GRAY HAIR

Cincinnati Barber Tells How Any One Can Prepare It in 5 Minutes

Any man or woman can easily look twenty years younger by simply darkening their gray, faded, or streaky hair. This is now easy to accomplish with a recipe given by a well known Cincinnati barber.

Simply take a half pint of water, add one ounce of bay rum, ¼ ounce of glycerine, and a small box of Barbo Compound. Shake and it is ready to use. These ingredients can be bought at drug stores at trifling cost.

Applied to the hair once or twice weekly this delightful mixture quickly gives the desired shade. It is easy to use, is not sticky or greasy, will not rub off, and the scalp will not show through.

Mothers, Mix This At Home for a Bad Cough

You'll be pleasantly surprised when you make up this simple home mixture and try it for a distressing cough or chest cold. It takes but a moment to mix and costs little, but it can be depended upon to give quick and lasting relief.

Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist. Pour this into a pint bottle, then fill it with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. The full pint thus made costs no more than a small bottle of ready-made medicine, yet it is much more effective. It is pure, keeps perfectly and children love its pleasant taste.

This simple remedy has a remarkable three-fold action. It goes right to the seat of trouble, loosens the germ-laden phlegm, and soothes away the inflammation. Part of the medicine is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly upon the bronchial tubes and thus helps inwardly to throw off the whole trouble with surprising ease.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

PASTOR BARRED, COURT TOLD

Fight over the installation of a pastor in the First Slavish Greek Rite Catholic Church at Clairton took a new turn in Common Pleas Court when a petition was filed by a member of the congregation asking that the trustees be adjudged in contempt of court for having refused to allow a priest appointed by the bishop to take charge last Sunday. Judge Joseph Stadtfeld set February 17 for a hearing.

Andy Protz Jr., one of the defendants in the original suit of the trustees against members of the congregation when the fight first began more than a year ago, cited in his petition that the court had, on January 17, issued an injunction against the trustees from interfering with the installation of Father Peter Molchany as pastor.

He states that last Saturday the trustees were notified that Bishop Basil Takach had appointed Father Michael B. Rapach as successor to Father Molchany, decreeing that he should take charge of the church Sunday. He says that when Father Rapach arrived he was refused entrance to the edifice by the trustees.

SAFETY MEET HEARS GRAHAM

Dr. Ben G. Graham, superintendent of city schools, was the speaker at the fourth meeting of the Western Pennsylvania Safety Council's course last night in the Moose Temple auditorium. More than 1,600 persons were present. Discussing "Safety Education in Our Schools," Dr. Graham declared that safety education in the schools produces its greatest benefit through creation of a "danger consciousness" which follows children through life.

Dr. Graham was introduced by J. C. Campbell, general chairman of the safety lecture course. The drum and bugle corps of Post No. 303, Veterans of Foreign Wars, provided entertainment. The fifth lecture meeting to be held next Monday night in the same auditorium, will be addressed by H. S. Metcalf of the West Penn Power Company.

Don't Go Around Feeling Half Sick

There's no excuse for letting yourself get run down. No reason why you shouldn't be 100 per cent fit. The man or woman who feels tired and sickly most of the time won't ever get along in business or social life.

The way to keep fit, doctors tell us, is to take cod liver oil.

But don't try to take cod liver oil the old-fashioned liquid way. Don't overload your stomach with a lot of fatty, nasty-tasting oil. Take it the modern way—in tiny tasteless tablets!

These tablets, called McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets, are made from the vitamins of purest Norwegian cod liver oil. All the healthful benefits of the oil are in these tablets. Doctors now prescribe them. The Good Housekeeping Institute has tested and approved them.

All you need to do to get the vitamins your run-down system needs is to ask your druggist for a box of McCoy's. Go to him and get your box today. 60 tablets—60 cents.

SUNSHINE MELLOWS
Heat Purifies

The advice of your physician is: Keep out of doors, in the open air, breathe deeply; take plenty of exercise in the mellow sunshine, and have a periodic check-up on the health of your body.

LUCKIES are always kind to your throat

Everyone knows that sunshine mellows—that's why the "TOASTING" process includes the use of the Ultra Violet Rays. LUCKY STRIKE—made of the finest tobaccos—the Cream of the Crop—THEN—"IT'S TOASTED"—an extra, secret heating process. Harsh irritants present in all raw tobaccos are expelled by "TOASTING." These irritants are sold to others. They are not present in your LUCKY STRIKE. No wonder LUCKIES are always kind to your throat.

STUDIO LIGHTS

Norma Altwater, Pittsburgh girl making good in New York radio, is one of the featured artists in NBC's "Tribute to KDKA" on 33 stations tomorrow afternoon at 3:30. Louis L. Kaufman is to announce from New York.

WCAE takes John Erskine's talk at the Advertising Club luncheon tomorrow at 1:15.

Arthur Allen (David of "Uncle Abe and David") played "Praise God Cruikshank" in the last Silver Flute and was recognized by a lot of Pittsburghers. His speech is sure detection; he never disguises his voice.

Columbia is ringing the school bells for its announcers. David Ross, Ted Husing, Frank Knight and the others have been instructed to bring their books and their best behavior twice a week to the English class conducted by Dr. Frank H. Vizetelly.

Morton Downey, crazy about suspenders and money, is making $4,000 per week through his radio and vaudeville capers.

Noble Sissle's Negro Band plays over WABC at midnight. Also Friday at 11 p. m.

WABC has a new dramatic series, "The House by the Side of the Road," tonight at 7:15.

"Fireside Legends" on KDKA Sunday is one of the very best offerings this year by NBC.

Dave Rubinoff and Maurice Chevalier make a good Sunday night team. Those Rubinoff arrangements and those Chevalier songs—oo, la, la!

QUESTION A DAY:

What is the real name of Little Jack Little? Describe him.—W. W. H., New Kensington.

Answer—Jack began life in London as John Leonard, then moved to Waterloo, Ia., with his parents when still under 10. He is five feet, four inches tall, weighs 130 pounds. Wears blue shirts usually to match his eyes. Never wears a hat. When he was in Pittsburgh last we learned that he liked to scoot over the highways in his classy sports car. He taught us a few things about golf.

Get Rid of PIMPLES

Perhaps you have every reason to be discouraged after trying all sorts of high-priced salves and lotions which failed to bring help to your pimply skin.

One thing's certain—you never used Peterson's Ointment because Peterson's is the one sure method that won't fail to eradicate the worst, most obstinate case of blemished skin.

One application—your pimples and blackheads start to go—in a couple of days eruptions have healed, your face is remarkably cleared! Continued use gives you a complexion utterly free from any irritation — delicately smooth — clear.

Mary Metinko, of Rankin, Pa., writes: "Ever since I can remember I have had pimples on my face but after I got a box of Peterson's Ointment I found that it works like magic. I recommend it to all my friends."

Ofttimes pimples entirely disappear in three days and one 35-cent box will prove it—All drug stores.

The LOUDSPEAKER

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—That broadcasting has achieved the status of big business is established by the annual report of M. H. Aylesworth, field marshal of the N. B. C.

Into his coffers poured the staggering sum of $22,000,000 in 1930 from the sponsors—263 of them, to be exact—of commercial programs, representing an average expenditure by each sponsor of more than $83,000.

Such a revenue would indicate that the broadcasters have finally won a secure and brilliant place in the economic world, a place which would warrant them to wave the flag of independence as supreme masters of their domain.

Certainly, Field Marshal Aylesworth can be proud of his company's success, can exult especially in the amazing increase in its business in a year that has been generally associated with economic distress.

The broadcasters, seemingly, have nothing to fear. The money rolls in in a tidal wave. In view of its rush one would expect to see some policy outlined regarding the lessening of commercial plugging in broadcast programs. Not one word escapes, though Aylesworth and his associates are undoubtedly deeply concerned with the problem—the greatest problem which confronts them, the greatest menace to their continued prosperity.

The radio men have the final word as to what goes over the air. They can—and do—draw the line when the bounds of good taste are threatened. They maintain a sort of unofficial censorship over the character of their broadcast, yet they continue to countenance overemphasis of commercial ballyhoo. And it is just too bad. If there is anything the matter with broadcasting today it is the constant interruption of programs by announcers calling attention—and in many cases it is attention that insults the intelligence, if not the good taste, of listeners—to the merits of commercial products.

Our most reliable operatives whisper that the microphone magnificoes are working out a solution that they appreciate the need of some arbitrary ruling which will neither alienate the sponsers who provide the sinews of broadcasting nor the listeners in the front parlors.

Aylesworth lists the prominent part radio is playing in bringing the government to the people, the increasing upon the microphone of Hoover and his cabinet, to say nothing of the members of Congress. And right here seems an appropriate place to add that the radio battle lines of 1932 are rapidly forming. Democrats in the Senate—Raskob must be pleased to know—were heard oftener in 1930 than their Republican colleagues.

International broadcasting is also assuming greater importance, the N. B. C. president states, while in the musical and educational worlds broadcasting grows more valuable each year. He also points out that in the average broadcasting day about twice as much time is devoted to sustaining programs as to commercial.

STAGE ROMANCE, FANTASTIC CHARM AND COMEDY AS VIEWED BY CRITICS

Like Rare Old Port Wine, Otis Skinner Glows In Pagnol Drama

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Like a bottle of rich old rusty port wine, Otis Skinner shed perfume and glow over the stage of the Nixon Theater last night as the proprietor of a little bar on the water-front of Marseilles. "Marius," this play of the new Frenchman, Marcel Pagnol, has that quality. It is not so much a drama as a character study—a group of character studies—with humor and pathos like Dickens or Daudet.

George Seibel

There is a scene early in the second act, when Cesar, the old keeper of the wineshop, is quarreling with his best customer, who has insulted Cesar's son, Marius. As they are struggling with each other, the bottle of champagne on the bar blows up, and the quarrel is immediately made up as they drink the precious champagne which must not go to waste.

Only a true humorist could have written that scene.

There is another scene when the girl Marius loves, just as much as he loves the sea, realizes that he will never be happy if he marries her, and decides that she will hide her love and send him off. It is the same scene Dumas fils put into the climax of "Camille." It is always an effective scene dramatically. But as Pagnol has written it and it is played by Mary Howard as Fanny and Donald Blackwell as Marius it has a poignancy of truth that lets you forget the theater.

Only a true realist could have written that scene.

And in these two scenes we have this play, humor that is realistic and realism that is life—with Otis Skinner bubbling through it like old wine.

PAGNOL AS DRAMATIST

Viewed as drama it is not much more than "Papa Juan," the Spanish genre picture in which Skinner appeared last season. Like Pagnol's other most successful play, "Topaze" the dramatic action often lags, the dramatic technique is frequently awkward. The illusion is created by the characters, which are viewed through kindly spectacles. Pagnol is a Frenchman, but he does not see life with the savage cynicism of Balzac nor with the chill science of Zola—he sees it with the warm and smiling sympathy of Daudet. He draws character like the creator of the immortal Tartarin.

Skinner lends himself well to this sort of work. Since he played "The Harvester" years ago, something of the gypsy and the philosopher has crept into every one of his portrayals. Cesar cannot understand why his friends should object to being cheated at cards by a friend. What are friends for if you cannot cheat a little at cards? He is proud of his rather spineless son—"What a boy! What a boy!" He insults all his customers but they all come back next day. Falstaff in Marseilles—Mister Antonio tending bar—a genial mixture of Mr. Pickwick and Omar Khayyam.

OTHER FINE PORTRAITS

Cesar is surrounded by some other richly drawn portraits, especially the Panisse of Fred Tiden and the Honorine of Flavia Arcaro.

How Panisse eats the other man's breakfast and drinks most of his wine to console himself for being a forlorn widower, how Honorine has ladylike hysterics over her daughter's lapse from virtue—these are little gems of comedy.

Then there is the Escartelfigue of Homer Barton, who might be closely related to Tartarin himself, and the Monsieur Brun of Wyrley Birch, who is the typical French bureaucrat.

The play is made up of such little bits. Unless you love humanity you will not like this play. Fishsellers and rum-guzzlers are its lowly interpreters. There isn't a gown from the Rue de la Paix. No one is quite respectable. Very much like the people of Rembrandt or Teniers—not at home in a parlor. But radiating a rich warm glow through the dingy water-front cabaret that is the single setting—a rich warm glow like old rusty port, and Otis Skinner the bottle that winks most invitingly across the bar.

Maier, Pattison In Pittsburgh Farewell

Maier and Pattison, who will make their farewell joint appearance in Pittsburgh this week as soloists with the Minneapolis Orchestra at Syria Mosque on Friday evening and Saturday afternoon, are giving up their work together at the height of their popularity for the reason that the repertoire for two-piano music is a limited one, and they are not satisfied to get into a sort of musical treadmill.

Maier and Pattison are both interested in many forms of musical activity, and both intend to devote more time to composition. Mr. Maier also has developed into a practical and effective thing his idea of children's and young people's concerts.

For their appearance here this week as soloists under the baton of Henri Verbrugghen, they will play the Mozart Concerto for two pianos and orchestra, in E flat major.

Vera Gordon sees jungle life in "The Cohens and Kellys in Africa," film coming Friday to both the Fulton and Sheridan Square.

'ALARM CLOCK' RINGS SOME LAUGHS ON PITT STAGE

Ding-a-ling, ding-a-ling, ding-a-ling! "The Alarm Clock," a comedy by Avery Hopwood, is what the George Sharp Players are playing in the Pitt this week. It is a light, carefree sort of thing with enough laughs to keep you awake.

The story has to do with the country relatives of a high-flying bachelor, who come to the Big Town to tone him down and end up by flying as high as he ever flew.

Alice Ann Baker breaks forth as the company's nightingale. In the first act, with the shouting assistance of John Winthrop, she warbles an oratorio. But her transformation is speedy. By act No. 2 she is composing and singing such ditties as "I Got What You Need."

STAGE EVOLUTION

Paul McGrath portrays the bachelor. He has a weakness for the Purple Pup, a night club, and for ladies of the chorus. But when Country Lass Lenita Lane becomes New Yorkified, it's another story.

Miss Lane is an inspiration for any old tin-type when she first appears. She has a countrified look and a barnyard giggle. But in the second act, she's very much the cultured young woman. Such is the quick-change evolution of the stage.

Hugh Banks, another from the country, doesn't fare so well. It takes three acts to get him shaved and dressed like a gentleman.

AN ABSENT CHARACTER

Robert Fiske, Mabel Kroman, Edwin Vail, Charles Webster and Katherine Maison also are in the cast. And there is one more character, though he never appears. He is the country clergyman, who is "such a good man, he sees evil in everything." Much of the conversation in the first act concerns him.

All of the performers are sufficient in their parts. And, on second thought, this "Alarm Clock" does more than keep you awake. It keeps you amused.

Ed Lowry to Begin Final Week Friday

Ed Lowry, master of ceremonies in the Stanley, enters his final week in Pittsburgh Friday. It has not been decided who will replace him, John H. Harris, general manager, states. Lowry has been in the Warner downtown house for 24 weeks and will have completed 25 when he leaves.

'Death Takes a Holiday' Fine, Fanciful Play Comes to Alvin

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Imagine the—well, entity—of which we occasionally speak with grim facetiousness as The Reaper, taking a holiday for a few days. Imagine no decay, no dissolution in that time. Roses keeping their fragrance, form and beauty. No leaves falling. Just the upspringing of life and ceaseless flow of the vital forces of the mundane universe unaffected by any supernal power.

That is part of what you must imagine to have any proper realization of what sort of a play is being presented in the Alvin under the title of "Death Takes a Holiday." The title means just what it states. Death does take a holiday. He, for it seems Death is masculine, just as we always have classed him, takes on mortal form, forces himself on an unwilling host and remains a guest for three days. As Prince Sirki he tries to live as a mortal but his mortality has a most saturnine quality, even with the best of intention on his part.

FANTASTIC DELIGHT

The result is fantastic but sheer delight as far as reaction of the audience is concerned. While the effect of his leaving his usual occupation for a few days is implied to be beneficient on the rest of the world, and there is even some evidence of it in the group in which he mingles, made visible in the temporary rejuvenation of an elderly baron, this effect is not felt by all his new "friends." For he repels most of the men while attracting the women, seemingly against the will of two.

He makes love to three of them, finds all responsive to a certain degree but only to the third does he fulfill all desires of a searching heart. This one, a fragile etheral girl finds him a complete affinity in her soul-hunger and they vanish into what he has intimated is a more kindly region than that known to human senses.

WEIRD AND POETIC

As a play "Death Takes A Holiday" is a mixture of the weird and the poetic, a picture of mysticism and natural beauty, a sublimation of facts of the known and the fancies of the unknowable. It is classed as a comedy. It has many comedy moments—grim though they be. But through it all there is a charming fancifulness that sweeps one into admiration for the author, Arthur Cassella, whose Italian has been made into beautiful English by Walter Ferris.

There also is great and sincere admiration for the acting of Philip Merivale in the role of the prince and in his supernatural character. Merivale is capable of expressing his art not only in a splendid vocalism but in gesture, manner, spiritual emanations. Excellent support is given by Helen Vinson, as the etheral one, who does an especially fine emotional bit in the first act; Julian Royce, as the host of the prince; Olga Birkbeck, Eleanor Stuart, Irby Marshall, Wallace Erskine, Charlotte Andrews, Roland Bottomly, Allan Willey and Frank Greene.

The stage setting is magnificent and the presentation of the play indicates masterly direction.

Get to the theater on time for this one—the earliest moments are important in mentally impressing the atmosphere in which the play moves.

CIVILIZATION SWEEPS OVER FRONTIER IN WARNER

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

Sweeping drama of civilization coming to the frontier lands—this is "Cimarron," the talk-of-the-town picture, now in the Warner. It isn't a movie of the pioneers, it is the pioneers!

"Cimarron" is an achievement. When Edna Ferber wrote the story, she did more than write an entertaining novel. She tore away the shroud from fading years. And when the movie men put her story on the screen, they did more than give it intelligent treatment. They made it into something terrific and real.

Seeing it is to live 40 years in two hours. You grow up with the pioneer town. You grow old with the characters. You become a part of the stupendous drama that is flung before you. And you marvel that so much life and history can be dragged through the peep-hole lens of a motion picture camera.

DREAM OF EMPIRE

The story motivates about one Yancey Cravat, courageous newspaper editor, who has the dream of empire in his soul and the adventure lust in his heart, and his wife, Sabra, a cultured girl from an aristocratic home, who braves the Cimarron country (waste lands) for love. Richard Dix and Irene Dunne make these roles two outstanding characters among a cast of outstanding characterizations.

Extravagant praise also is due George Stone, as a Jewish merchant, whose business grows from a mule's back into a department store; Roscoe Ates, as a stuttering printer swept into old age with the tide of an empire; Edna May Oliver, as a school "marm" from the old East, who becomes one of the elite, with feet that hurt, in the new West, and Stanley Fields, as a bad man, who is gracefully escorted from the scene by a bullet early in the film.

FAR-FLUNG DRAMATICS

Wesley Ruggles, at the megaphone, was responsible for the keen direction. He has kept a stupendous panorama of action within the bounds of dramatic vision. He has fashioned many impressive and human touches. The arts of makeup and photography also are seen at their best.

There are some moments when the realistic disguise of the whole thing slips askew and discloses glimpses of elemental fiction—but these are soon forgiven, or forgotten, in the ever onward growth of the drama and the empire.

Not a perfect picture, maybe; but certainly a great picture is "Cimarron." It is the pioneer theme done on the screen as it never has been done before. And beneath its far-flung dramatics—it is human! When the fadeout comes, you want to rush home, dig out the old album from the garret dust and sigh over the long forgotten faces that stare up at you with startled eyes.

Belasco Play for Pitt Next Week

David Belasco has produced nearly 380 plays. The three hundred and seventy-sixth on his list, "It's a Wise Child," has been selected by George Sharp for his offering in the Pitt next week. It is a story of a better class American family. It opens with the social dilemma of one of the maids, and progresses through a series of events which involves every member of the household.

Greta Garbo Stars In Film for Penn

Greta Garbo in "Inspiration," an original story by Gene Markey, is the screen feature scheduled for the Penn, beginning Friday. Robert Montgomery, Lewis Stone, Marjorie Rambeau, Beryl Mercer and John Miljan have prominent roles. The picture was filmed by Clarence Brown, who directed Miss Garbo in "Flesh and the Devil."

Comedian

Ed Wynn, known as "the perfect fool," comes to the Alvin next week in the Ziegfeld musical comedy, "Simple Simon."

Ed Wynn Comedy Headed for Alvin

Richard Rodgers and Lorenz Hart have written the music and the lyrics of the Ziegfeld musical comedy, "Simple Simon," starring Ed Wynn, which comes to the Alvin next Monday night. Their ability is reflected in the suicess of "Dearest Enemy," "The Connecticut Yankee," "Present Arms," "Peggy Ann," "Spring Is Here" and in "America's Sweetheart," which was seen here a few weeks ago.

'LEGS AND LAUGHTER' ACADEMY BURLESQUE

"Legs and Laughter," current burlesque in the Academy, has a cast headed by Eddie Dale, "Dutch" comedian, offering flip cracks and dancing. Angeles Lee, blonde, is featured in dancing and songs. An act billed the "Three Upstarts" is an acrobatic and tap dancing turn. "Hades" and "Ship" are scenes in which the entire cast takes part. Principals include George Leon, Lou Costello, Harry C. Van, Mary Ryan, Hazel Devine and Pearl Kay.

This Town of Ours

The Charles Farrell-Va. Valli planned sealing is the reason he is on his alleged "vacation" . . . The James H. Hanleys (Helen Maxwell), who were welded in Sept., have curdled, already . . . Elsie ("Pagan Lady") Bartlett and J. Schildkraut may re-middle-aisle it . . . The "Toughey Pyne"-Dorothy Meacham romance has wilted . . . The Wm. Rhinelander Stewart-Phyllis Browne thing is a "9—9" alarm . . . That's Gladys Davis, an ex-Ziegfeldarine you see with [illegible] . . . The Washington lid will be blown off sooner than soon by six important Capital correspondents writing as one . . . The income-taxers returned 350 Gs to D. Fairbanks, which M. Pickford cried for—and got . . . Gloria Swanson nodded to her three ex-husbands in the Brown Derby, Hollywood, the other yawning . . . "Dutch" Schultz is up, again . . . The Edwin Knopfs are aw busted up.

The last threads of the Gary Cooper-Lupe Velez web were shattered last wk. . . . In the meantime the German cables are sizzling . . . Vivienne Segal has forgotten William Boyd via the new "heart" route . . . The new Waldorf will feature its Presidential Suite on the 42nd floor with 18-ft. ceilings . . . Tilly Losch, the bride, isn't as old as she told the license clerk . . . The Marc (Green Pastures) Connellys are thisandthat way . . . Ilka Chase and Bill Murray are on fire . . . Mary Brown Warburton is rushing back from Palm Beach—because he won't speak to her on the telephone . . . They've solved the Wm. Desmond Taylor Murder Mystery (according to table-talkers) but the Los Angeles district attorney "doesn't dare handle it!" . . . Chaplin's "City Lights" wasted 60 reels.

A. Woollcott is plotting a story about C. Chaplin—not his blog, but a life yarn about the famous character . . . The Gilbert (J. Walter Thompson exec) Kinneys are praying it'll be a lad . . . Norman Anthony, Life's former chief, has written his first play. . . . G. Allen, handball champ of the N. Y. A. C., and Mary Thorne (who were secretly sealed) had a boy Jan. 14.

The squaws of those artists and writers who went on that Havana Junket are Beginning To Hear Things . . . Iturbi, the Spanish pianist, and Dorle Jarnel kiss each other's paws right out loud at the Philharmonic . . . What Senator, a dry, was so stewy at the El Patio he was threatened with ejection? . . . King Calder and Frances Fuller, who were brother and sister in Wm. A. Brady's floperoo, "Cafe" are now hurband and frau in "5 Star Final."

Recommended to diversion seekers: Chaplin's laugh-and-sob masterpiece "City Lights" at the Cohan . . . Chevalier dialecting "Hello, Beautiful!" . . . The brisk-tempoed chune: "99 Outto 100 Wanta Be Loved—Why Don't You?" . . . Jean Bruller's "21 Delightful Ways of Committing Suicide" . . . Frank McManus at the Orange Blossom Grill in the Park Plaza . . . Sylvia Carroll at the Slipper . . . Shawni Lani and her Hawaiian charms at the Calais . . . Paula [illegible]'s excellent pantomime "Ten Minutes In Bed," in "Sweet and Low" . . . Cab (Cotton Club) Calloway's wah-hooing of "Love For Sale" . . . and the high spot (10 p. m.) in "You Said It!" when Lyda Roberti stops matters cold with "Svitt endt Haht!"

There is a phoney in the Explorers' Club, who pretends he is Ernest Hemingway . . . The S. Biddels have taken separate vacations . . . Ralph Hayes is honorary exploiter for the Siam king during his stay here . . . Gyp photogs are snapping juniors in the park, claiming they are from the "better papers" and then shaking down the parents at the home for a stiff fee . . . Now that Brenda Lane's injuries are mended, will the story be chronicled? . . . Capt. Law, of the Notre Dame team, is phone-clerking on the Exchange not far from Chris Cagle's booth . . . Is that what becomes of you after going to collitch?

Jack Flynn, newview of the Bronx Democratic chief, and Peggy Gerahty, dotter of the License Comm., will Lohengrin it . . . The Joseph Verner Reeds and the Richard Stoddard Aldrichs are blessed-eventing . . . That isn't Hilda Ferguson's real name . . . If Grace Coolidge ever accepted all the ad offers she gets, she would make more sugar than Cal gets for colyuming . . . Mavis King, the Club Abbey flower gal, motored to Miami in 3 days . . . Oh, Jimmy Walker! A One a. m. night club curfew would rob many a shut-in of some grand radio ½-hours.

When a pest or drunk gets in her hair, Miss Gahnun cues a bouncer with: "How many R's are there in murder?" . . . Neva ("Smiles") Lynn is coast-bound to rejoin E. Judson . . . Belle Livingstone is convicted for trying to make people merry, and the son of a Bishop is acquitted on a murder charge, very comical . . . The new Geo. Bancroft flicker, "Scandal Sheet," is based on the career of the editor Chapin, who recently died in Sing Sing. Wonder why Ollie Garrett, who wrote it, isn't credited . . . The greatest cartoonist in the world has been blind for five months.

The Roth quartet at Town Hall features a viola juggler tagged Ferenc Molnar! . . . Diplomatic laughing-soup is delivered regularly at a Vth Ave. apt. house . . . While at Yale, Vallee worked in Peter Arno's orchestra, but Peter wouldn't let Rudy sing! . . . Al Siegal (Ethel Merman's confederate) is back from Saranac with a tune tagged: "I Have to Laugh When I Think How I Danced With Tears in My Eyes Over You" . . . The revival of "The Student Prince" has a payroll of only 3½ Gs! . . . Overheard: "He's really a nice feller—he's only breaking in that face for a friend" . . . A movie mag's next issue will feature a photo-layout revealing the prettiest legs in Hollywood . . . The prettiest stems, it will show, belong to John Barrymore!!!

Lutherans to Hear The Rev. R. H. Long

The Rev. R. H. Long, of New City, director of the National Lutheran Council, will address the annual inner mission rally of Lutherans in the First Lutheran Church, Grant street, tonight. In connection with the rally the annual meeting of the Lutheran Inner Mission Society will be held. Five board leaders will be elected at the meeting.

Belgian Vet Shoots Senator, Kills Self

BRUSSELS, Feb. 10.—(AP.)—A disabled former service man, George Letroye, 43, today shot the Baron de Borlodot, senator and burgomaster of Acoz. After wounding the baron in the arm he struggled free of the injured man's grip and shot and killed himself. Inquiries revealed the assassin held the baron responsible for his failure to obtain a war pension.

FATHER JOHN'S MEDICINE SOOTHES and HEALS NO DRUGS

This Mother Knows

Mrs. F. Barrar, 107 N. 34th Street, Camden, New Jersey, writes: "When my boy and I were recovering from a serious sickness a few years ago, we started taking Father John's Medicine and it built us right up. Since then I have been giving it to my boys regularly. My youngest boy is nine years old, 4 ft. 6 inches tall and weighs 70 pounds. He is rugged and healthy. To relieve colds and for healing and strength-giving qualities, I have lots of faith in Father John's Medicine."

Real Estate

Plans are being completed for an apartment building of 162 suites expected to be constructed at Bigelow boulevard and Dithridge street by John McSorley. Frederick Stanton, of Chicago, is the architect. The owner will award separate contracts for the project.

The real estate and insurance business of Frank T. Lauinger, who died recently, will be continued under the same firm name by his son, P. C. Lauinger. The same organization which was associated with Frank T. Lauinger for the past 20 years, will remain intact.

A brick house in Beechwood boulevard, Fourteenth Ward, has been sold by Elizabeth V. McCargo to Annie E. Wahr for a consideration of $9,625. The house is constructed on a lot measuring 55x196 feet.

A building lot in Newburn drive, Mt. Lebanon, measuring 50x110 feet has been sold by J. H. DeJohn to the Trilli Dunbar Company, builders, who plan to construct a home on the property. Lot No. 123 in the Sunset Hills plan, Mt. Lebanon, has been deeded by William A. Bode to Rudolph H. Slenkamp for a consideration of $1,650. Roxy C. Salkeld has sold to Gus J. Linder an improved property in Roycroft avenue, Mt. Lebanon. The lot measures 65x155 feet.

David G. White, manager of the research department of the Appalachian Hardwood Club, of Cincinnati, will speak at the weekly luncheon meeting of Pittsburgh Builders' Exchange next Thursday in the Red Room of the Keystone Athletic Club. The chairman of the affair will be Walter E. Hatch, of the May Lumber Company.

A dwelling in Creedmoor avenue, Nineteenth Ward, on lot 30x117 feet has been purchased by John F. McGrath from Joseph A. Yoest for $7,000.

BUTLER'S SLICED BREAD

ECONOMICAL-:-CONVENIENT-:-KEEPS FRESH

Each slice is evenly cut—smooth as glass—no torn slices or too-thick slices to serve—and no crumbs.

No bread board or bread knife (usually only sharp enough for butter) to locate. You take from the wrapper just what you need.

For some reason sliced bread keeps just as fresh as a whole uncut loaf. The wax wrapper and close-fitting slices keep each one fresh and moist.

"ATTRACTIVE, WELL BRED, BUT SO CARELESS ABOUT HER HANDS"

"They were mean to say it, but I knew they were right"

"I was ashamed of my hands, but I had hoped no one else noticed them. Then I chanced to overhear that comment. From the woman I admired most in our club, too. 'Careless,' she had called me.

"Then I realized how my red, roughened hands spoiled the effect I wanted to make. But how to have pretty hands—with DISHES to do three times a day?

"It was a little friend of mine who works in a beauty shop, who helped me out.

"'We use LUX suds in our manicure bowls,' she told me—'because they leave the hands very soft and lovely. If I were washing dishes I'd use Lux in the DISHPAN—get a beauty treatment every time I did the dishes!'

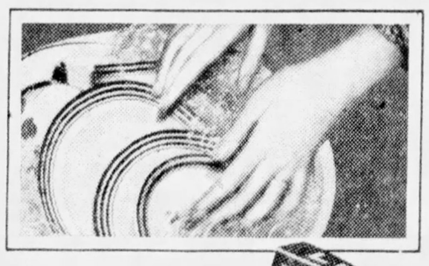
"Now my hands are as WHITE and SMOOTH as before I was married! I never saw such a magical improvement. I'm proud of them now, thanks to Lux."

Wives Everywhere

So many wives are now using Lux in the dishpan! They find this simple beauty precaution keeps their hands lovely as though they had maids. In fact, 305 famous beauty shops say:

"With all our experience, we can't tell the difference between the hands of the wife who uses Lux in the dishpan and the hands of the woman with servants to do all her work."

Best of all, this care for which your hands are so grateful costs almost nothing. Lux for all your dishes costs LESS THAN 1¢ A DAY!



Costs less than 1¢ a day

So many soaps dry the natural oils of the skin. Bland, gentle Lux protects these skin oils. That's why it keeps your hands lovely. Buy the big package—it does 6 weeks' dishes!

NO. 43.

AN ORDINANCE—Authorizing and directing an increase of the indebtedness of the City of Pittsburgh in the sum of Three Hundred Thousand ($300,000.00) Dollars, and providing for the issue of bonds of said City in said amount to provide funds (including engineering, architectural and other necessary expenses) for the acquisition of property for widening of Seventh Avenue; making topographic maps; constructing a garage at the Asphalt Plant; improvement of Murdock Avenue entrance to Schenley Park; acquisition of property on Forward Avenue; improvement, extension and replacement; Distribution Pipe Line System; home and furnishing for Superintendent of Tuberculosis Hospital; construction of a building for the Division of Shade Trees; remodeling and repairs to No. 7 Police Station and acquisition of property; improvement and equipment of Playground in 2360 block Fifth Avenue, and providing for the redemption of said bonds and the payment of interest thereon.

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, That the indebtedness of the City of Pittsburgh be increased by the amount of Three Hundred Thousand ($300,000.00) Dollars, to provide funds (including engineering, architectural and other necessary expenses) for the acquisition of property for widening of Seventh Avenue; making topographic maps; constructing a garage at the Asphalt Plant; improvement of Murdoch avenue entrance to Schenley Park; acquisition of property on Forward avenue; improvement, extension and replacement; Distribution Pipe Line System; home and furnishing for Superintendent of Tuberculosis Hospital; construction of a building for the Division of Shade Trees; remodeling and repairs to No. 7 Police Station and acquisition of property; improvement and equipment of Playground in 2360 block Fifth Avenue, and providing for the redemption of said bonds and the payment of interest thereon.

SECTION 2. That bonds of the City of Pittsburgh, in the aggregate principal amount of

THREE HUNDRED THOUSAND ($300,000.00) DOLLARS

or multiples thereof; shall be dated as of the first day of March, 1931; and shall be payable in fifteen (15) equal annual installments of one of which shall mature on the first day of March in each of the years 1932 to 1946, inclusive. Said bonds shall bear interest at the rate of four and one-quarter per centum (4¼%) per annum, payable semi-annually on the first days of March and September in each year, without deduction for any taxes which may be levied thereon by the State of Pennsylvania pursuant to any present or future law, the payment of which is hereby assumed by the City of Pittsburgh. The principal and interest of said bonds shall be payable in lawful money of the United States of America at the office of the City Treasurer of said City. Said bonds shall be coupon bonds, exchangeable at the option of the holder, for a registered bond or bonds of the same maturity and of the denomination of

TWENTY THOUSAND ($20,000.00) DOLLARS EACH

or a multiple thereof, not exceeding the aggregate principal amount of the coupon bonds surrendered in exchange therefor, by surrendering such coupon bond or bonds with all coupons not yet due at the office of the City Controller, and the City Controller is hereby authorized and directed to cause such coupon and registered bonds to be engraved and to issue the same in the name of the City of Pittsburgh, the expense to be charged to Appropriation No. 42 (Contingent Fund). Registered bonds shall be registered with the City Treasurer, and shall be transferable only on the books of the said City Treasurer. Said bonds shall be signed by the Mayor, countersigned by the City Controller and sealed with the corporate seal of the City of Pittsburgh, and the coupons attached thereto shall be authenticated with facsimile signature of the City Controller. The said bonds shall be in such form as the City Council shall determine; bonds shall be issued by the City officials authorized by law or by resolution of Council to act in the premises. Said bonds shall be known and designated as

GENERAL PUBLIC IMPROVEMENT BOND, 1931

SECTION 3. That said bonds shall be sold by the Mayor and the City Controller at not less par and accrued interest, after giving such notice of sale as may be required by law.

Official—Pittsburgh 111

SECTION 4. That until said bonds issued as herein provided, shall be fully paid, there is hereby levied and assessed annually upon all subjects now by law liable, or hereafter to be made liable, to assessment for taxation for City purposes, an annual tax, commencing the first year after said debt shall have been increased or incurred, namely the year 1932, sufficient to pay the interest on said bonds as the same shall accrue and become payable, and any tax on said interest which by the terms of said bonds is assumed by the City, and also an annual tax commencing in said year equal to 6.66 per cent of the total amount of said bonds hereby authorized to be set apart as a sinking fund for the payment of the principal and redemption of said bonds as they become due and payable according to their terms, and the same is hereby appropriated out of the revenue of said City for the payment and redemption aforesaid.

SECTION 5. That all bonds issued by the authority of this Ordinance and the Acts of Assembly authorizing the same shall be and become part of the funded debt of the City of Pittsburgh, and shall be entitled to all the rights, privileges and immunities thereof, and shall be free from taxation as aforesaid, and for the payment of the principal of said bonds and the interest thereon semi-annually as the same shall become payable, the faith, honor, credit and property of said City are hereby pledged.

SECTION 6. That the form of coupon bonds issued in pursuance of this Ordinance shall be substantially as follows:

Alma Rubens Instant Hit In Her First Movie Role

Then Company Went Broke, But Another Chance Came With Sennett

By ALMA RUBENS

CHAPTER X.

I sent in the card and Sturgeon, himself, attired in puttees, knickers, cap and sweater, and with a script in his hand, came out to greet me.

"I saw you last night," he said. "And I believe you are just the girl I have been looking for to play Lorelei in the 'Lorelei Madonna.' I am going to begin shooting it right away. Do you want the part?"

Miss Rubens

What a foolish question. Did I want the part? I certainly did. So far as I knew the "Lorelei Madonna" might have been a new kind of breakfast food that you had to eat with castor oil instead of cream, but after almost a month on the road, Rose La France was equal to any and all emergencies.

"All right," Sturgeon said, when I had appraised him of my willingness. "Le [illegible]"

Our [illegible] brought out a [illegible] affair and [illegible] over my shoulders. All the talking about my part was done by Sturgeon and his helpers. I didn't say a word. "Now," he directed, when I had been costumed to meet his approval. "Now, just look like a saint. Look the Lorelei. Sweet. And tragic. A madonna."

Maybe I was good, at least so far as my saintly appearance was concerned, or perhaps Sturgeon didn't know what Lorelei looked like either, because we got started [illegible]. He thought my [illegible] perfect.

"Now, in this scene," he explained, after the camera had been set up and the lights turned on, "you come in on the stage, which is set for a Spanish cafe. When you get inside you see the sailor boy who betrayed you.

Stage Directions

"He has gone all the way back to Cuba, and you have followed him, because you are about to become the mother of his child.

"You walk up to him and throw your arms around his neck. He repulses you and hurls you to the floor.

"Then in a fury you dash aside your saintly costume, pull this dagger out of your stocking, and stab him through the heart."

"Just a minute, Rol, just a minute," interrupted the leading man, Phil Hart. "She's too anxious. Just explain to her that she is only to pretend to stab me through the heart; that this is all in fun. She has a sort of a trance look in her eye that makes me kinda nervous."

Everybody laughed, including myself, and the others walked off the stage to clear the way.

Everything was in readiness for my dramatic entrance. Hart was seated at the table. The camera man began to turn. It was now all up to Lorelei. Up to Rose La France.

Gathering in the folds of my costume and wearing my most saintly expression, I blithely tripped in.

Tripped in is correct, for I stumbled over a low stool and went sprawling at the feet of my mortified, sailor-boy lover. The dagger flew out and struck, quivering, in the floor.

"Hey," shouted the leading man, breaking the deathly silence which followed my spectacular performance. "I'm through with this picture unless you get that girl a rubber dagger!"

He meant it, too. And the picture was held up half an hour while Stu[illegible]on complied with his demand.

On the second attempt everything went smoothly. Lorelei, eyes distended, arms swinging wildly all over the place, and panting, as I imagined all great dramatics panted through their tragic love scenes, carried on.

Won Praise

And when the dead lover lay on the floor, Lorelei picked up her flowing white robe, kicked aside the rubber dagger, resumed her saintly expression and strolled off stage, to be congratulated by the entire company, including the tragically slain but miraculously resuscitated leading man.

Rose La France was on the way to the top!

Sturgeon was pleased. He drew me to one side and talked salary. He gave me a contract guaranteeing me five days a week "when we worked," and a salary of $3 a day. I accepted it.

Three weeks elapsed and I, much to my chagrin, learned of the joker in my contract. "When we worked" looked fine in my typewritten contract, but it certainly covered a multitude of postponed meals.

I had moved into a fourth-rate hotel near a theater on Spring street, between Eighth and Ninth avenues, Los Angeles. This dingy edifice, of the boarding house type, was frequented principally by actors, like myself, who were barely scraping out an existence by the skin of their teeth.

When I had spent my last dollar and had grown desperate, I solved my living expense problem by arising early in the morning, before dawn, walking around the block and sneaking milk bottles off of isolated doorsteps. Another girl, who was virtually in the same boat as myself, showed me the trick.

And throughout this period of depression I daily wrote home, telling my parents how wonderfully my career was progressing and never mentioning the hardships and ordeals I was undergoing.

Met Mack Sennett

Eventually, word leaked out that Mack Sennett was about to begin shooting one and two-reel comedies in this new studio at Glendale.

Of course, I felt that I was a tragedienne, but if one must become a comedienne, in order to earn three meals a day, I would drown my art, if that was necessary, and become a comedienne, too.

So I went to Glendale and was put through my paces by the great Mack Sennett, in person. I had heard much of him and considered him on a parity, socially and in an executive way, so to speak, with the President of the United States.

And, when he had closed our interview with the remark: "This little girl is a comer. Yes, sir. Here's a comer!" why I would have been willing to vote him greater than the President, any old day.

I had always been a great admirer of Mabel Normand. When Sennett casually mentioned I was to be in a picture with her, I felt that I truly was in fairyland. My wildest dreams had come true.

"Soldiers of Misfortune" was the title of the picture, and the leading man was named Murray, a newcomer to the screen, whose first name I do not remember.

In those days every extra girl had to furnish her own costumes, usually cheap little affairs, made up in various styles that could be used over and over again.

Sennett [illegible] me if I had an evening or[illegible] I didn't have one but I assured him that I had. The only one I ever owned, one with a little piece of ermine on the collar, which I had bought with my first week's salary in the "Girl at the Gate," had been stolen from me at the hotel. Perhaps one of the girl friends I had made had traded it for a meal.

Anyhow, it was gone, and I simply had to get one by some hook or crook. I was up against it and on the verge of despair when I happened to remember an evening gown which Annette Sclovus, my roommate at the moment, owned. Only a day or two before, she, hard pressed by the wolf, had taken a temporary position in a department store and, consequently, had little need for it.

Borrowed Dress

I broached the subject to her as soon as she arrived, and obtained her permission to use it. It was a gold net affair, a little hoop at the bottom, and the skirt trimmed with skunk. Truly a magnificent garment, I thought.

Arrayed in this, I appeared on the Sennett lots next day and, after being made up by an elderly wardrobe mistress, came into the presence of the great Normand, then at the peak of her career.

She was a peach. Star that she was, she laughed and joked with everyone, from the lowliest extra girl, including myself, to the office boys, who lounged around awaiting a summons.

Often, years later when I, too, reached stardom and we had become warm friends, Mabel and I laughed about this, our first meeting, and what a little sap I was at that time. Poor Mabel is dead now, but her memory will be ever green in my heart.

My role consisted of walking in front of the camera, in haughtish, exaggerated "Society" style, and dropping my handkerchief when directly in the middle of the stage. That concluded my part for the first day and I was told to return the next.

Alas! the next day never came. Annette and I quarreled about something that night—some inconsequential thing which I don't even remember—and she wouldn't lend me her dress.

Unless I had it for the sequence, I couldn't appear. So Mack Sennett lost a prospective star. I never went back, although it almost broke my heart to stay away.

Three more doleful and hungry weeks went by. I was broke, but my stubborn pride wouldn't let me write home for money. I knew that my parents couldn't afford to send me any. And I'd been writing of my sensational success, promising that I would soon be in a position financially, to send for them.

I was in a quandary. I didn't know where to turn. And, in seeking a solution to my problems, I narrowly escaped tottering over the edge of the crater of disaster.

A girl friend, Marie—that is not her real name, but it will suffice—a chance acquaintance, who had magnanimously offered to share with me her $20-a-month apartment on Orange avenue, Hollywood—a proposition which I eagerly accepted—almost lured me into destruction.

How did Alma struggle through this period of hunger and depression? Where did this chance acquaintance take her? What new pitfalls did she discover in her climb to triumph on the screen? Alma tells it all in her straightforward, soul-revealing story. Read tomorrow's installment here.

AMAZING RELIEF FROM INDIGESTION

Can be obtained in from two to five minutes by taking a little "Bisurated" Magnesia immediately after eating or whenever pain is felt. Thousands who have tried it say there is nothing like "Bisurated" Magnesia for indigestion, gastritis, acidity or dyspepsia. This is because it neutralizes the dangerous excess stomach acid, sweetens the sour fermenting food, and soothes and protects the sore inflamed stomach lining, thus quickly stopping the burning feeling and pain, and giving nature a chance to restore painless, normal digestion. Get a test package, either powder or handy tablets, from May's & Liggett's Drug Stores or the nearest reliable drug store, take as directed, and forget you ever had indigestion.

STEEL MILLS SHOW GAIN

WHEELING, W. Va., Feb. 10.—(AP.)—Steel mill operations in the Wheeling district were increased at several plants.

One hundred more men went to work at the Benwood plant of the Wheeling Steel Corporation and the Yorkville plant of the company began operating at 75 per cent of capacity with 1,500 men employed. The Yorkville plant has been operating at 50 per cent of capacity. The company's Steubenville works is operating on a 60 per cent basis.

The Toronto and Follansbee mills of Follansbee Brothers, which have been idle, opened with 1,500 men and orders sufficient to operate until March and possibly through that month. The Weirton Steel Mills added nearly 300 men to the payroll, making the total employed 65 per cent of the normal number.

SIDEWALKS —of— PITTSBURGH

By William Pfarr

Mr. Pfarr

Mr. George H. Taber, a neighbor of Elmer Kenyon in Schenley Farms, solves problems for diversions. Mr. Taber also is a collector. Some eight years ago, after he bought some jades from a store in New York, he discovered them to be false. He took them back, and the store rectified its mistake.

If you have a problem in arithmetic or algebra which you think is beyond solution, Mr. Taber probably can solve it. Recently Bill Lewis, the Sun-Telegraph drama critic, mentioned to Mr. Kenyon that for years he had been trying to solve, by arithmetic, a certain problem.

Mr. Kenyon carried the problem to Mr. Taber, and the next day Mr. Taber forwarded the solution. Wrinkles disappeared from the high Lewis brow.

This was the problem: A farmer wants to build a fence around a lot, a fence four boards high and 11 feet long. He buys as many boards as there are acres in the field. How many boards did he buy?

But if Mr. Lewis thought that his troubles were at an end, he had, as Aristotle used to say, another thought coming. Mr. Taber simply replaced the Lewis worries by forwarding this problem and insisting it be solved by algebra:

A man fenced a plot of ground with 11-foot boards, four boards high. He found it took one-fourth more boards than there were acres in the plot. How many acres were there? We don't know.

The next time Gov. Pinchot comes to town, he will probably tell a story which can be fashioned around a new definition which his good friend United States Senator George H. Moses told him about.

"Papa," said the little boy, "what does autobiography mean?"

"A speech, my lad," explained the father, "being made by a United States senator."

A Swissvale woman who has been disturbed by reports of numerous house burglaries in her district has solved the situation admirably. When she goes out for the evening she turns on all the electric lights downstairs and sets the radio going at a housewarming pace, thus giving potential burglars the loud impression that there are a million, more or less, persons in the house. The only drawback to her plan is the light bill.

With a startling degree of originality, we observe that names is names. A century ago in the old country one whose name today is Pfarr might have been known as Smith. And we have always suspected that the present tribe of Jones was once known as Brown.

And that brings us awkwardly to how Mr. John Snyder, retired, of Squirrel Hill, happens to have the name Snyder. Sixty years ago Mr. Snyder's father, Elijah Lavey, came to this country. He was a tailor. He hadn't been here long before the census man got hold of him.

"What is your name?" the census man asked.

Mr. Lavey thought that the census man was asking his occupation, so he used the Yiddish word for tailor in reply.

"Snyder," he said.

And it's been Snyder ever since.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

FORT SMITH, Ark., Feb. 10.
To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Say that Tulsa is a bear. We played there to exactly 30 thousand dollars at one single performance, making one hundred thousand dollars the State of Oklahoma paid in the one week. It wasn't the attraction, it was the cause. These people down in these states know that there are folks hungry, and they are going to feed 'em as long as they are able. And, say, they go a great gait down here. They don't just open up a soup kitchen. They make 'em work and then give 'em the money to buy some food. Played my wife's town, Rogers, Ark., yesterday, and Ft. Smith last night. Yours, WILL.

POLICE RESCUE 8 FROM FIRE

McKeesport police saved the lives of three adults and five children, all Negroes, when they rescued them from their burning homes in 1401-3 Jerome avenue early today. Herbert Dixon, 28, and Mrs. Mary Finkle, 20, also Negroes, escaped by jumping from second floor windows. Dixon was treated for abrasions of the leg at the McKeesport Hospital, but the woman was uninjured, police said. The loss was estimated at $6,000 by police.

Henry Cox, 35; his wife, Ethel, 23, and children, Lethie, 4; Harry, 6, and Margaret, 7; Mrs. Mary Johnson, 42, and children, Donald, 2, and Martha, 14, of 1403 Jerome avenue, were led to safety by Patrolmen Charles Bartlett and Anthony Lesniewski, who made several trips into the burning house.

The fire was believed by police to have started from an overheated stove in the kitchen of the Finkle residence. Both homes were destroyed.

Fire of undetermined origin destroyed the four-room frame dwelling occupied by Ralph Dendardo, in 108 Furnace street, Rankin, early today. None of the occupants of the house were at home when the blaze was discovered, firemen said. The loss was estimated at $1,000 by police.

3 IDENTIFIED IN FATAL HOLDUP

Positive identification was made today in Criminal Court of the three defendants accused in the killing of August F. Braum, 52, butcher, of 838 Fourth street, West Elizabeth, last October, as the men who robbed J. T. Price of $45, 15 minutes after the murder. Price owns a gasoline service station directly across the river from the scene.

Late yesterday, after the jury was completed, Frank Watkins, son-in-law of Braum, and eyewitness to the shooting, identified Clarence Williams, Negro, as one of the three alleged robbers who entered the store.

Watkins said he could not identify the two other defendants, Cleo Peterson and Robert Smith. Williams fired a shot at the butcher when he reached for a cleaver, he said.

Drys Report Seizure Of Still, Moonshine

Confiscation of 40 gallons of moonshine in a dwelling at 2818 Dwights treet, Dormont, and a 20-gallon still in the home of Wasyl Mojunko, at 207 Hawthorne street, Rook Station, was reported by prohibition agents yesterday. No arrests were made in the Dormont raid, while Mojunko was released on his own recognizance.

Maits Asks to Attend Hoover Health Meets

Dr. Charles B. Maits, director of the city health department, has requested permission of City Council to attend President Hoover's conference on child health and protection, which will be held in Washington February 19 to 22. Dr. Maits will be present—subject permission be granted—at meeting of the section on medical service.

FINED $25 OVER SUNDAY DANCE

Irwin H. McGill, proprietor of the St. Clair barbecue on the Washington road near Colonial, raided Sunday by constables, was fined $25 when arraigned before Justice of the Peace J. T. Koch in Bridgeville last night. He was charged with permitting dancing in his establishment on Sunday. The raid was made under a new act of Legislature which governs dance halls in townships.

McGill announced that he would appeal the ine. McGill waived hearings on charges of possessing liquor and with maintaining gambling devices. His counsel protested against the raid and stated that the raiding officers did not produce a warrant.

Only a dozen of the 60 dancers who were in the place when the raid was made appeared for hearings. They were not arrested at the time, the constables taking their names and addresses.

Justice of the Peace Koch stated that under the new legislation he could fine the dancers $4 each but he left them off with payment of costs which amounted to about $2.50 each.

Two Falls Break Woman's Arm And Hip

PLEASANTVILLE, Pa., Feb. 10.—Two accidents within a few moments of each other, due to slippery pavements, sent Miss Jennie Spencer to Titusville Hospital with serious injuries. ROWLEY BRINGS COUNTER SUIT

E. H. Rowley, stock trader, of 415 Glen Arden drive, who was acquitted of a charge of fraudulent conversion in Criminal Court January 8, has filed suit for $50,000 damages against Mrs. Gertrude S. Warren, who had brought the charge. He charges that she conspired to injure his good name and, through the suit, tried to intimidate him into paying money which she claimed to be due her in a marginal stock transaction.

Rowley is the father-in-law of William Larimer Mellon, Jr. The stock trader was first listed for trial November 5, two weeks before the date announced for the wedding of his daughter, Grace. The day preceding the date set for the marriage, Rowley announced that his daughter and Mellon had been secretly married for several months.

In acquitting him the jury divided the costs between Rowley and the prosecutor. Rowley charges that Mrs. Warren withheld from the District Attorney part of the facts in the case; notably an agreement in connection with the stock transaction, and the fact that a balance from the sale of 100 shares of General Motors stock has been held as a loan by Rowley, as her agent, with her consent; and that she withheld other facts in connection with a marginal stock trading account.

NUMBER SLAYER GETS 1-5 YEARS

A murder trial which started yesterday, ended when the defendant, Columbus Tucker, Negro, changed his plea from not guilty to guilty, after the commonwealth had opened its case.

Tucker was sentenced from one to five years for manslaughter in connection with the fatal stabbing of Allen Epps, Negro, of Henderson street, an alleged "numbers" writer, over nine cents Tucker had played on a "number."

Tucker told the court that during the argument Epps grabbed a knife and attempted to stab him, whereupon he got another knife and stabbed Epps in the back.

Quartet to Give 3rd Concert Sunday

The third concert of the season will be given Sunday afternoon by the Yost String Quartet in the Hotel Schenley ballroom. Members of the quartet are Gaylord Yost, Roy Shoemaker, Carl Rosenberg and Samuel Kliachko.

Electrical Devices Shown Engineers

Demonstration of several "modern miracle" electrical devices by Dr. Phillip Thomas, research engineer of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, featured a joint meeting of engineering societies in the Chamber of Commerce last night. Among the devices shown were the breath relay, the modernized William Tell and Rastus Robot, the fire fighter and the strobolglow.

Pershing Found Plans Hampered By Army Red Tape

MY EXPERIENCES IN THE WORLD WAR

By GEN. JOHN J. PERSHING,

Commander-in-Chief of the American Expeditionary Forces In the World War.

CHAPTER XXX.

At the ports the amount of freight discharged in January, 1918, was somewhat encouraging, being about two-fifths as much as during the preceding seven months. The rate of discharge was accelerated to some extent by the better distribution of our transports by the Navy. More construction material was being delivered where it was needed for port works and the future was somewhat clarified in this respect by the arrival of additional logging machinery.

During the month there was also an increase in troop shipments, including some elements of the 32nd (Haan's) Division, with 20,000 men for the Service of Supply. By the end of January approximately 120,000 combat troops, 34,000 engineer troops and 61,000 others for the Service of Supply were in France. Although promising, this was only the merest start, as we were still far behind our schedule.

Gen. Pershing

It must be added, however, that the increase in the arrivals of men and materials remained haphazard and not at all in the proportions needed.

It continued apparent that my recommendations were not accepted in an altogether unhesitating spirit of helpfulness and that the serious need for executive leadership back home had not been met.

In the absence of any preparation for war beforehand the principle could hardly be questioned that the commander at the front should decide upon his requirements, and not the departments in Washington.

The employment of our armies in Europe had been fully covered by general instructions, and there were no problems of strategy or questions concerning operations that devolved upon the staff at Washington. These were matters for the commander-in-chief of the A. E. F. to determine.

Initiative Lacking

It remained, then, for the War Department simply and without cavil to support our efforts to the fullest extent by promptly forwarding men and supplies as requested. The Secretary of War was completely in accord with this conception, but it was evident that the staff departments had not grasped it, or else the disorganization and confusion were such that it could not be carried out.

In the successful command of an army such as ours eventually became it was necessary to bring the supervision of all elements of the administrative and technical departments under the control of the headquarters general staff.

None of the departments entered upon their duties with any experience in war nor had they in any real sense been trained even theoretically to solve the problems that urgently demanded solution. During times of peace each department had grown relatively independent of the others and its chief had directed the affairs of his department with little control except of a very general character.

With reference to the General Staff, the same thing may be said as to experience in war or real preparation for it. In fact, so faulty had been the training of the General Staff as members of a great directive group that both the individuals and the group lacked initiative and purpose for want of a clear conception of their task.

It was to overcome this inertia that I vested in the General Staff well-defined powers to give such direction, by my authority, as might become necessary to co-ordinate the different parts of the organization.

One Requirement

Nor did this assumption of directive control reduce or affect the efficiency of the administrative or technical department chiefs or their assistants, because they, too, under supervision, were given independent roles, encouraged and moderated at the same time by one requirement—success. Such was the broad conception of the organization built up as the G. H. Q., A. E. F.

My diary notes the following:

"Chaumont, Monday, February 18, 1918. Gen. Foch and Maj. Gen. Weygand visited headquarters Thursday, had luncheon with us and examined the general staff organization. Capt. Todd, director of naval construction, came to confer regarding wireless station at Bordeaux.

Gen. Weygand.

"Col. Stimson, former secretary of war, now an efficient colonel of artillery, called and asked to be left with troops.

CONGRESSMAN SEES RED PERIL

Belief that the Communist movement in the United States is far more extensively organized than is generally believed by the public, was expressed by Congressman Carl G. Bachman, of West Virginia, in an address last night in the Downtown Y. M. C. A. Bachmann is a member of the special House committee to investigate activities of Communists in the country.

Congressman Bachmann spoke under the auspices of the Retail Credit Men's Association. He was introduced by Col. Franklin T. Blackstone.

The congressman declared that since war-time legislation has been repealed, there is no federal statute which permits the Department of Justice even to investigate the Communist party. He said Communism, unless exterminated, may become a serious menace to the present form of government. He advocated federal legislation to set up a body charged with investigating every phase of Communism, to report to Congress, to the people and to the public press. He proposed fighting Communism with publicity.

Congressman Bachman also urged deportation of all persons affiliated with the Communist party and immigration restrictions to exclude Communists.

Among organizations represented at the meeting were Sons of the American Revolution, Daughters of the American Revolution, Retail Grocers Association, Rotary Club, Credit Association of Western Pennsylvania, Kiwanis, Mercador and Lions clubs. Honor guests included local officers of the United States Army, Marines and Navy, judges of the Common Pleas, County and Orphans courts, and city and county officials.

Two Pittsburghers To Appear in Recital

Two Pittsburghers will appear with the Capital University Glee Club and Orchestra, of Columbus, O., Thursday night in a recital in Carnegie Music Hall. Walter Unverzagt, of Bryant street, is a member of the glee club and Theodore S. Liefeld of Murray avenue is in the orchestra. The glee club and orchestra is making its silver jubilee anniversary tour and is appearing in Pittsburgh under the auspices of the Women's Foreign Missionary Societies of 24 Lutheran churches.

Firm Here Submits Low Dredging Bid

The Monongahela and Ohio Dredging Company, of Pittsburgh, was low bidder for the dredging of a new channel in the Allegheny River for 4,900 feet beginning at the Highland Park Bridge, it was announced at the United States Engineer's office. Their bid was 61,906 with completion within 90 days. The General Contracting Corporation also submitted a bid for $88,397 to be completed within 150 days.

Woman Dies Despite Use of Inhalators

Miss Rose Marie Elsner, 31, of 1923 Woolslayer place, died in her home last night from pneumonia while police and attaches of the Mine Safety Appliances Company attempted to revive her with inhalators. Oxygen was administered for more than two hours. Miss Elsner was a sister of Police Inspector Joseph Elsner, of the Penn avenue district.

STRANDED DOG KILLED BY SHOT 2 NEGROES HELD IN ATTACK

Stranded on a narrow ledge high on the side of Mt. Washington, an all-day vigil of a hound dog was brought to a close by the Animal Rescue League, who killed the dog with a rifle. The rifle was brought into use after agents of the league had failed in an attempt to reach the animal.

Curious crowds watched the dog as it crouched on the ledge 125 feet above the tracks of the Panhandle division of the Pennsylvania Railroad. Agents of the league maneuvered for two hours trying to reach the dog before they resorted to use of the rifle.

Ernest Austin and his wife Sophia, Negroes of 883 Forest avenue, West Homestead, were committed to jail last night by Justice of the Peace Walter Terrell of West Homestead, pending a hearing on assault and battery charges. They were arrested yesterday in connection on an attack upon Thomas Austin, a brother of the husband with whom they made their home. Thomas Austin is in the Homestead Hospital suffering injuries to the head, said to have been caused when hit with a brick.

LANG EXPLAINS CITY JOB COST

Public improvement work done by the city costs from 25 to 40 per cent more than that done for the municipality by private contractors because the city uses men rather than machines wherever possible, Public Works Director Edward G. Lang said today.

His statement was an answer to Councilman Anderson's request for a report from the director as to how city work by city employes progressed as compared to that done by contractors.

Lang said:

"In its expediency the city work progresses at about the same rate as jobs done by the contractors. However we use more men as a contribution towards relief of unemployment at this particular time. The contractors substitute machines for men wherever possible."

Numbers Bank Broken, Four Go to Jail

HARRISBURG, Feb. 10.—(AP.)—Four men were given jail sentences, a fifth was fined and four more were paroled when the 10 were called for sentence in Dauphin County Court on charges growing out of investigation of the "numbers" gambling here.

The investigation followed the alleged "breaking of the bank" when several hundred Harrisburgers bet on "208" and that number was supposed to pay at the rate of 600 to 1 that day.

Judge Wickersham revealed during the court proceedings that his cook had a bet on "208" and failed to receive $12 due her.

JOB RELIEF BILL IN COUNCIL

Councilmanic action by the Finance Committee was expected to be taken today on the resolution appropriating $10,000 from the city's unemployment fund to the Central Emergency Committee, headed by Edgar J. Kaufmann.

The resolution was read into Council yesterday. Members of Council said the fund, if appropriated, would be the city's contribution to the new plan for unemployment relief as worked out by Kaufmann and a group of associates several days ago. Should a favorable recommendation be made by the Finance Committee it is likely the matter will be acted upon finally at Council's regular meeting next week.

Man Injured While Running for Trolley

Suffering a fractured skull when he was said to have run against the side of a truck in Larimer avenue, near Mayflower street last night, F. T. Cox, 55, of 746 Cherokee street, was in a serious condition today in Pittsburgh Hospital.

Police, who arrested Charles Troino, 29, of 7223 Joshua street, as the driver of the truck, said the victim was running for a street car at the time.

Unemployed Census Completed Here

The census of the unemployed in the Pittsburgh district has been completed and all forms forwarded to Washington, according to James E. Routley, who has been in charge of the enumeration. The results of the count will be announced by the federal authorities.

COUNCIL DELAYS HALL VOTE FOR OBJECTORS

Finance Committee Action Delayed Pending Hearing On Nicola Site Protests

The ordinance consenting to the purchase of the Schenley Farms site for a town hall is now before the finance committee of City Council and will not be taken up until a hearing has been given to the objectors from the downtown, North Side and Schenley Farms districts, according to John S. Herron, president of Council.

Herron said:

"This has been done in fairness to all concerned. We want to give full opportunity for a hearing."

MAY SET HEARING DATE

A communication from James C. Chaplin, representing the three objecting groups, setting forth 10 reasons why they believe the town hall should not be built in Oakland, has also been given to the Finance Committee. No date has been named for a hearing, but it is expected a time will be set today.

County Commissioner E. V. Babcock has announced he intends to urge in every way at his command the speedy purchase of the site at Fifth and Ruskin avenues and an early start on construction. He said:

"I intend to carry out the mandate of the people, urge the purchase of that ground and erect a monumental structure of a type which should be of great benefit to all the people of Allegheny County. In the Oakland district with its new buildings we have the educational, recreational, civic, social and religious life of Pittsburgh centered in one spot."

CITES ADVANTAGES

Concerning the Nicola site in particular, he declared it has a number of advantages. The lot is twice as long as it is wide, a condition considered ideal for auditorium purposes.

The slope of the lot makes it possible to construct an exhibition hall on a level with Fifth avenue and an auditorium on a level with Bigelow boulevard. Entrances at street level for both hall and auditorium are advantageous, Babock declared.

The East Liberty Chamber of Commerce has given approval to an Oakland site in a letter to City Council. The communication points out that if Pittsburgh is to have a civic center it must be built out of such structures as the town hall, and declares Oakland offers a cultural setting which cannot be had in any of the downtown sites.

TOWNSEND OFFER UP

An offer of Edward Townsend to deliver the Duquesne Garden site to the county at $5.50 a square foot, compared with a previous offer of $8 a square foot, will probably come before the county commissioners today.

Since Babcock and Armstrong are both on record for the Nicola site, it is not considered probable that they will be swayed by a reduced offer on the Garden property. Should the purchase of the Nicola site be blocked by legal entanglements, the importance of Garden Company offer might be considerably increased.

LANG AWARDS CONTRACTS

Contracts aggregating $21,041.25 were awarded by the city Department of Public Works yesterday, announcement today by Director Edward G. Lang said.

Plumbing and heating work at the new Brilliant pumping station was awarded the Campbell-Higgins-Donat Company, for $4,099 and $6,226, respectively.

Masi Brothers received the contract, totaling $2,820.50, for construction of a North Side storage garage, with work to be complete within 60 days.

McDonough & O'Toole Company were awarded the grading, paving and curbing contract on Broad street, from North Graham street to North Fairmount street, for $3,611.25.

Construction of a sewer on Pynchon street, from Biggs avenue to Peekskill street, was awarded the Schenley Construction Company on an award basis of $1,383.50, while Frank Mannella & Sons were given the sewer contract on Wenzell avenue, from Neeld avenue to Tole street, for $2,901.

Man Falls Beneath Train, Loses Arm

Robert A. Zeese, 45, of 632 Seventh avenue, Coraopolis, was in a serious condition today at the South Side Hospital from injuries sustained when he fell beneath a moving passenger train last night. It was found necessary to amputate his right arm at the shoulder.

Zeese slipped when he stepped on a piece of ice as he was alighting from a Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad train at Coraopolis at 6:45 p. m., according to a hospital report. Police said he alighted from the train before it was brought to a stop.

Hays Man Injured When Hit by Auto

Struck by an automobile at the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad crossing at Eighth avenue, West Homestead, James Ciolli, of 255 Glass Run road, Hays, was admitted to St. Joseph's Hospital suffering from leg injuries. George Dorko, of 341 Flowers avenue, Hazelwood, driver of the car, took Ciolli to the hospital and reported the accident to West Homestead police.

HOW BARBER WAS KILLED

HOW 3 SHOTS PIERCED WINDOW, KILLING THOMAS VERONA

Verona, 37, dropped dead in this barber shop, Tom & Henry's, 1415 Fifth avenue, of which he was part owner. Three bullets fired through the window were accurately aimed (all in small circle).

REVENGE BARED IN SLAYING OF BARBER

Aged Man Shoots Another He Says Robbed, Beat Him, Then Tries to Kill Self

An aged man who, for revenge, police said, shot and killed Thomas Verona, part owner of the Tom and Henry barber shop, at 1415 Fifth avenue, lay in a critical condition today in Mercy Hospital from a self-inflicted bullet wound.

The alleged assailant, Antonio Dionesio, 63, of 1645 Watson street, police said, fired three shots from a revolver through the plate glass window of the shop from the street while Verona was shaving himself. Bullets struck Verona in the chest and abdomen. After his victim slumped to the floor, Dionesio fired a bullet into his chest just below the heart.

In the hospital Dionesio revealed his motive for the shooting, police said. He told them that Verona and two companions went to his home two years ago, attacked him and stole his revolver.

The three men at court trial, police said, were paroled and ordered to pay the costs.

SALZBURG, Germany, Feb. 10.—(AP.)—Baroness Cecilie Von Adrian Zu Wernburg, daughter of Giacomo Meyerbeer, the composer, died here today at the age of 92.

LEBANON CALLS MEET ON HALL

The proposed town hall came before Mt. Lebanon Township commissioners at their semi-monthly meeting last night.

A motion made by Commissioner C. W. Clatty, objecting to the Oakland site selected by county commissioners, was seconded by Commissioner C. W. Scheck. But their motions were withdrawn after two taxpayers requested that the question should be aired by the public in general and not by the commissioners.

F. V. Cassell suggested that a mass meeting be held to enable citizens to voice their opinions.

The township solons then ordered a mass meeting to be held Monday night in the Washington Public School auditorium, Washington road, and appointed Cassell chairman. He promised to invite members of the downtown, North Side and other organizations to attend.

The much-discussed case of Justice of the Peace Ira H. Edmundson was brought up again.

Township auditors claimed that Justice Edmundson owed the township $523 for fines received in 1925, 1926 and 1927.

A committee composed of Township Solicitor Samuel A. Schreiner, Township Manager and Secretary Frank W. Cooke, and F. Carl Long, an auditor, reported that after a thorough check and study of the police records they found only $205 was due to the township.

The case was continued until the next regular meeting.

Passenger Robs Cab Driver of $8.40

Elmer Richardson, of 90 Congress street, a taxicab driver, reported to police early today that a Negro passenger he had picked up at Fifth avenue and Grant street, held him up when they reached Elm and Epiphany streets, and robbed him of $8.40.

GARDEN TAX UP IN COUNCIL

City Treasurer Roy D. Schooley's answer to Councilman W. Y. English's tilt with the Townsend interests, controlling Duquesne Garden, relative to collection of back taxes and placing of liens where payment was not forthcoming, was in the hands of Council's finance committee today. English is head of the committee.

Several weeks ago English made a motion in the committee that Schooley be requested to furnish information as to how the city is protected in the placing of liens. Schooley's reply yesterday said liens are placed on real estate for water, city and school taxes within the third consecutive year after taxes become delinquent. No exceptions are made to this rule, he wrote.

English's motion calling on Schooley for the information followed the councilman's resignation as manager of the North Side Packing Company, also a Townsend holding. The resignation was presented when English refused to accept a cut in salary, it was said. Taxes, including water rents, amounting to more than $45,000 are chalked up against Duquesne arden.

English's move was construed as a means to force collection of the taxes and it was intimated water might be shut off at the Garden.

Schooley is president of the Pittsburgh Hockey Club, which rents the Garden for games.

Liens have been placed against the Garden by Schooley's office.

Delaney, Egan Speak At K. of C. Meeting

The Rev. James M. Delaney and Judge John P. Egan will be principal speakers at a gathering of 10 councils of the Knights of Columbus in headquarters of the Coraopolis council tomorrow night. The celebration will mark the forty-ninth anniversary of the order and the thirty-first anniversary of the Pittsburgh council.

MASTER COACH DUE HERE

The Fisher Body Napoleonic Master Model Coach will be in the Pittsburgh district for six days, starting tomorrow. The Master Model Coach, designed by the former coachmaker to the Kaiser, is the perfected model upon which are being modeled thousands of tiny coaches by boys the country over. It is all part of the $50,000 contest being sponsored by Fisher Body Corporation and the Sun-Telegraph. Ten thousand boys in the Pittsburgh district have already enrolled.

The exhibits will be staged as follows:

February 11, Board of Commerce Building, Butler, 4 to 9 p. m.; February 12, Charles M. Schwab Vocational School, Homestead, 4 to 9 p. m.; February 13, Chamber of Commerce, New Kensington, Pa., 4 to 9 p. m.; February 14, Motor Square Garden, East Liberty, Pa., noon to 9 p. m.; February 15, Glenshaw Presbyterian Community Church, Glen avenue, Glenshaw, 2 to 5 p. m.; February 16, Chamber of Commerce, Washington, Pa., 4 to 9 p. m.

J. Reinel will be in charge of the exhibit. Boys may enroll at any of the exhibits. The contest ends next June.

Birth Control Forum Arranged for Church

A forum on birth control will be held in the community hall of the East End Christian Church tonight at 8 o'clock. The meeting will be under the auspices of the Pennsylvania Committee of the American Eugenics Society. The Rev. Dr. John Ray Ewers, pastor of the church, will be chairman.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Society Folk Attend Opera

Comparable to the scintillating horseshoe of the Metropolitan Opera House on a first night was that of Syria Mosque last night when the Chicago Civic Opera Company sang "Lucia di Lammermoor." Tonight society will be there again to hear "Pagliacci" and "Cavalleria Rusticana."

Hundreds and hundreds of exquisitely-gowned society women were there in wraps of supple velvet and luxurious furs. And many of the distinguished patronesses wore orchid corsages.

Many society folk entertained friends in the boxes, among them Col. and Mrs. Samuel Harden Church. Their guests included the junior George Liggett Crais and Mrs. Crais' attractive young sister, Rosemary Casey. Mrs. Church was regal in a simple gown of black satin. Both Mrs. Crais and her sister wore lustrous gowns of forget-me-not blue, and all had corsages.

Entertain In Boxes

In a neighboring box were the Lewis A. Parks, the David M. Gilmores, the Alex Hays Hunters, all from Sewickley. Mrs. Park looked charming in a gown of winter blue satin and a white ermine wrap. Mrs. Hunter chose a deep mulberry crepe gown, and Mrs. Gilmore wore blue crepe.

Mrs. H. H. McClintic entertained as usual at a box party, and among her guests were her daughter-in-law, Mrs. H. H. McClintic Jr., who wore black crepe and had a spray of gardenias at the shoulder, and Mrs. William Watson Smith.

The A. Rex Flinns were box hosts, too, with the Simon T. Pattersons, the John W. Lawrences and Mrs. Edward J. House as their guests. Mrs. Flinn wore blue crepe with rhinestone shoulder straps, and Mrs. Patterson wore a striking gown of black satin. Mrs. Lawrence chose shell pink lace, and Mrs. House black velvet.

Rosamound Fitch, a debutante of the past winter, wearing a feminine gown of seafoam green chiffon and lace, was in a box with her mother, Mrs. Chester Marsh Van Kleeck, who had an interesting Paisley wrap.

Notable Patrons

Mrs. Ralph F. Flinn, wearing black velvet and lace and pearls, I saw chatting with Mrs. David H. Ramsbottom in the Flinn box.

Mrs. E. W. Mudge in a silver lame wrap I saw in her box with the John Williamses and the Ernest Greers.

In the gay groups chatting in the corridor during acts I saw the Alexander Laughlin Robinsons with Mrs. Robinson wearing black satin. Mrs. D. A. Pitcairn I had a glimpse of, and Mrs. John A. Murtland was distinctive in black satin and pearls.

Louise Evans in cherry lace was chatting with Wilbur Shenk and Mrs. William Standish in blue and silver. The William F. Bickels were there, and Mrs. W. Terrell Johnson and her mother, Mrs. John Worthington and Leopold Seyfert.

Others I noticed in the crowd were the junior Wallace Hurtte Rowes, and Dr. and Mrs. W. J. Holland and Andrey Avinoff.

The W. Dudley Livingstons were there, with Mrs. Livingston, the former Jane Edson, wearing black crepe with brief sleeves of cream alencon lace, and Mrs. J. Henry O'Neil in white satin with a wrap of black velvet lined with white panne velvet. Chatting with Mrs. O'Neill was Mrs. Jack Bissell in black velvet.

Chatting with Genevieve Bell who chose a gown of primrose yellow crepe with a brief bolero jacket, I saw Virginia Goldsbury in blush pink chiffon and Mrs. T. Howe Nimick in hydrangea blue brocade. The Wilmer M. Jacobys were patrons, too, with Mrs. Jacoby in sunrise pink lace, the William McK. Reeds, Malcolm McGiffin, the Theodore F. Smiths, Mrs. George Ebbert and Dr. and Mrs. Robert Millikan and Mrs. George Macbeth in black velvet. Arriving with Mrs. Macbeth was Miss Marjorie Gethoefer in black lace and chiffon.

Grand Operettes

Others I noted in the foyer between acts were Mrs. Herbert A. May in sapphire blue velvet, Mrs. Solon A. Person in sunset red satin with a wrap of ermine, the Sidney Binnses with Mrs. Binns wearing black velvet, Virginia Johnston in pink lace, her mother, Mrs. Charles H. Johnston, Mrs. John Semple in green chiffon fashioned in the Grecian mode with a knife pleated skirt and high girdle, and Mrs. Calvin Wells in sea blue satin.

Neil Stewart Zang in brocaded metal cloth armed with her mother, Mrs. William Zang, and Mrs. Calvin McAteer in black net came with her daughter, Mary Mildred, in figured crepe. I believe I saw Mrs. Mortimer Miller and the Henry Vaughan Blaxters and the J. H. Lockharts from Sewickley came. Emily Stuart, who wore green crepe.

Theaters Attract

Rivaling in artistry with the opera were the theaters with the Nixon presenting "Marius" and the Alvin "Death Takes a Holiday," both of which attracted everyone. I do believe, who wasn't at the Mosque, Otis Skinner, the grand old man of the stage, held enthralled a sartorially smart audience.

Among the theater patrons were Mrs. Frank Adair Leovy, who wore a gown of black crepe, with a wrap of black velvet furred with white fox, and her daughter, Mrs. Roberdeau Green Annan, with Mr. Annan. Mrs. Annan chose black lace, with brief sleeves, and a black velvet and ermine wrap.

Mrs. James McKay wore popular black crepe and ecru lace with a black caracul coat. The Gordon Kings were chatting in the foyer with the R. Kent Hansons. Mrs. King was attractive in shell pink crepe, and she wore a knee-length wrap of black velvet and ermine, and Mrs. Hanson looked charming in white crepe, very long, with the smart below-the-knee fullness.

Announce Marriage

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Richard Knotts announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Elizabeth Jane Knotts, to John Curtis Roseborough, son of Mrs. Curtis Roseborough, which took place in the Smithfield Street Methodist Church, on December 5.

The ceremony was a quiet affair owing to the illness of the bride's father. Only the immediate families were present. Mr. and Mrs. Roseborough left for a southern honeymoon and are returning this week. They will make their home in Altoona. There will be a reception for them in the home of the bride's parents in the North Side, on Saturday evening.

Mrs. Roseborough attended Carnegie Tech and Waynesborough College.

Fossil Quest Related by Andrews

Not all the vicissitudes of "Hunting the Bones of Adam's Grandfather" were encountered in Mongolia by Roy Chapman Andrews. A few of them, and decidedly irritating ones, were met and overcome yesterday at the Twentieth Century Club, where Dr. Andrews was telling of his expeditions in Asia. After some delay and interrupting trouble with lights and pictures (through no fault of the club or the lecturer, however) the celebrated explorer was able to proceed with his extremely interesting lecture concerning the trips, on one of which he made the famous discovery of dinosaur eggs.

The party of 40 men spent six months in the desert, cut off absolutely from the outside world. A caravan of 125 camels traveled ahead, carrying gasoline and food. Dr. Andrews told of bargaining with the bandits who had taken over that part of Mongolia and whose chief was discovered to be an old friend. The terrible going over rocks and through mud and water was shown in the motion pictures. Films were also run off showing a terrific six-weeks' sandstorm during which the men could do nothing but "sit and take it" with wet cloths over their faces.

On one journey into Western Mongolia, only 22 of the 125 camels survived, the water was so bad that even the animals refused to drink it and the temperature was 140 degrees most of the time. This expedition, moreover, was unfruitful and another was begun to the east, where a rich quarry of fossil bones was found.

Dr. Andrews is leaving next month on another expedition on which he hopes to discover traces of prehistoric man as well as further evidence of animal life. Some of the pictures shown yesterday were of the difficulties in traveling—125 miles took three days and one night. Another time three-quarters of a mile was traversed only after 14 hours of building deep foundations of stone upon which to jack the cars out of the mire. Other pictures showed the men at work unearthing and preparing for transportation the bones of the huge prehistoric animals; the various odd pets which the party adopted largely for amusement purposes, and there were several strikingly beautiful scenic "shots."

Last night Dr. Andrews appeared before the Sewickley Valley Woman's Club and spoke on "The Desert of Gob."

Some interesting figures are to be found in the statistics issued for 1930 by the Girl Scouts of America. Homemaking in all its phases, but cooking in particular, again proved the most popular of activities. Health came second, the arts third and sports and outdoor activities came fourth. The figures show that of the 56,796 girls who successfully passed their home-making tests, 12,475 excelled in cooking. Health badges were worn by 37,295 and the qualifying artists were 22,923. Among the 16,553 sportswomen swimming was found to be the favorite sport and camping a second choice.

THE SCARF TIES UP WITH THE NEW EVENING MODE

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Feb. 10.—Again the scarf ties up with the mode, giving us original necklines, the scarf was seen on some frocks as an integral novel trimmings and much variety. Last spring part of the garment, but this spring it looks as if it will be THE fashion. Houses are vieing with each other to produce a new variation of the scarf neckline and just when one is sure that every idea and combination has been worked out, along comes something quite new and original. The scarf neckline, too, offers much scope for clever color schemes and therefore lends brightness and warmth to the simplest, most somber of garments. And so you see that it is a conceit that is quite in keeping with the season of spring, and it isn't therefore a bit surprising that it has advanced itself to the most important fashion for the new season. Many of the scarf necklines have the additional virtue of allowing themselves to be draped and manipulated according to the whim and artistic sense of the wearer, and this touch adds to the charm of any frock.

WE ARE ALSO SENDING you a drawing of two new purses seen at Worth's establishment. The upper one is of black faille with a roped chain in white resembling platinum. A diamond clip, just such a clip as one uses on one's hat or at the neckline of one's dress, closes the deep flap of the bag. This is an excellent bag for evening and Worth makes it in colors to match or contrast with any gown.

* *

THE OTHER PURSE is also for evening use. The outside is entirely of hinged gilt metal plaques, each plaque engraved in a diagonal design and all very flexible. The lining and accessories are of cream moire.

Girl Awakes After Coma of 6 Months

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 10.—(AP.)—Miss Dorothy Sawyer, 24, of suburban Webster Groves, today apparently was recovering from an illness which had held her in a state of coma, unable to speak or move, since last August.

Her mother, Mrs. Frank Sawyer, today related how the girl awoke from the coma Saturday night. Physicians said her condition was chiefly induced by shock when she almost was strangled while wading in the Meramec River.

Etna Cuts 2 Mills From Borough Tax

Etna councilmen last night reduced the borough millage to 13 mills. It had been 15 mills. Council authorized plans prepared by Borough Engineer S. H. Burns for a 36-inch sanitary trunk sewer, a joint project between the borough and Shaler Township, which will cost about $125,000.

LABOR LEADERS TO SPEAK HERE

Philip Murray, international vice president of the United Mine Workers of America, and John Phillips, president of the Pennsylvania State Federation of Labor, will be speakers at a meeting in Moose Temple Sunday afternoon, when action for the relief of the unemployed will be taken. The meeting will be under auspices of the Pittsburgh Central Labor Union.

Officials of many labor unions which will be represented at the meeting, said today that heavy assessments have been made against their employed members to relieve the distress among members who have been out of work.

DREDGE ORDERS RECEIVED HERE

Two orders for large turbine driven dredge pumps and auxiliary equipment have been received by the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, it was announced today. The order includes two 20-inch hydraulic dredge pumps, each driven by a 550-horsepower Westinghouse geared turbine, together with condensors and auxiliary equipment and a 300 KW turbine generator unit. The O'Brien Brothers Sand and Gravel Corporation of New York placed the order.

The Leathan D. Smith Dock Company, of Chicago, placed an order for a 1,200 horsepower geared turbine and a hydraulic dredge pump rated at 31,000 gallons per minute against a 78-foot head for installation in a dry self-unloading hopper dredge.

Acid Indigestion Pain For Months Not A Sign Now!

New Prescription ACIDINE Ends Gas Pain After All Else Failed

"I suffered for months with acid indigestion and gas on the stomach," writes Mr. C. Bedford, of Detroit, Mich. "Couldn't eat a meal without being troubled with gas and pain, also dizzy feeling. I tried all kinds of medicines, but nothing really helped until I took Acidine. Got relief from the very start. Now I am entirely well, no pains at all. Have recommended ACIDINE to all my friends."

Thousands are astonished how this new prescription ACIDINE succeeds where other known remedies fail. The reason is that it is entirely different. Contains an effective scientific digestant, Jaspase, that promptly liquefies 800 times its own weight of heavy, starchy food, under proper conditions. Five other ingredients relieve burning acid, stop gas and soothe irritated stomach lining. No other known remedy contains this scientific combination to end stomach trouble.

Physicians are prescribing ACIDINE, and thousands have found it the only real relief from acid indigestion and dyspepsia, gas, pain, heartburn, coated tongue, bad taste, dizziness and other troubles from the stomach.

Don't take chances with acidity and gas that may lead to more dangerous illness. Get ACIDINE today and watch how quick pain, gas end. You can smoke, eat and drink what you want if you take Acidine to stop resulting acidity. Results guaranteed or your money back. Get ACIDINE from any druggist today.

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

Have You a Chronic Flirt In Your Home?

Does your husband goggle at every trim ankle that trips down the street and slap-hand every pert hashet that brings him a bowl of soup?

Riette's husband did. And La Verne's husband goes him one better. He insists on necking every girl he can grab. And when La Verne protests that it humiliates and shames her before her friends he just snorts, "Aw, can it. You're just jealous."

So she's put it up to you. Read the story and then give us your recipe.

"Dear Sally:

"I am wondering what you'll have to say to my problem. It is one that it is hard to go to anyone with because it probably just looks as if I were jealous of my husband. Really, I'm not, but I am humiliated—terribly so.

Forgets About Wife

"George and I have been married just seven months, and we haven't had so much money but I haven't minded that. We had enough for a small apartment and to save a little and spend a little on pleasure and he really is good to me. But the problem is this.

"He and I can't go out in a crowd of young people anywhere but what he forgets about me completely. It is a common occurrence to find him off in some secluded corner with a girl on his lap, 'necking' her.

"Recently we went to a party at a friend's home—I mean a girl friend, who is always advising against marriage, saying that no man is ever true to his wife, etc., and I was particularly anxious to show her how happy we were and how good George really is to me. Well, what did he do? He made me feel like a fool.

"There was a young, pretty divorcee there and he simply monopolized her for the evening. He held her on his lap before us all, and had the nerve twice to find excuse to take her out for a ride in our car. She didn't make up to him or suggest these things. Sometimes she even acted bored, but he wouldn't let her alone.

Accused of Jealousy

"What was I to do? I had to act like a good sport before the crowd, and just laugh it off. And when we left he even kissed her goodby and said he certainly hoped they'd meet again. He did that right before all of us. He didn't seem to want to be underhanded about it. But I knew that the whole crowd felt sorry for me, and that hurt worse than ever.

"Well, naturally, we quarreled about it. I told him that if he craved another girl's company more than mine to get it, but to please not humiliate me before my friends any more. Then he got mad and said I was 'not jealous.' But I am, by honest! It's one that I feel humiliated.

"We both like to dance, but every time we go he has to love the girl on every time he dances. Or walks off the floor with his arm around one. The other night my sister and I were in the rest room at a dance when two girls came in. They didn't know we were there and one said to the other: 'I should think La Verne would feel pretty cheap about the way George acts.' 'Lordy,' I was never necked so vigorously in my life as I was during my dance with him. The other girl said she doesn't seem to care. Now, imagine a remark like that! It just cut me to the quick.

"Recently he asked a married man we know to exchange dances. The man didn't seem very anxious, but he consented. While he was dancing with me he kept his eyes on George and his wife all the time. I didn't blame him. George was squeezing her and trying to get a kiss, and I could tell by her actions that she felt insulted.

"Once I tried flirting, too, but George was furious. He actually threws a fit if another man so much as smiles at me. Anyway, I don't want to flirt and carry on like he does. I have plenty of chances, but what's the use? It would only lead to more quarrels, and the words of our marriage ceremony are still ringing in my ears. I love George and honestly believe he does love me, too, for he is very good to me in every other way but just this one.

Wants Solution

"We are both just 24, and except for this one thing our life together would be just wonderful. I never say anything to him about it any more. He only accuses me of jealousy and then asks to be forgiven. But it always happens again every time we're out. If he ever 'steps out,' I don't know it. And I don't believe he does do that. He couldn't on his salary.

"What's the solution? Am I right in expecting him to act his age when he's out? Or do I sound silly to you? What can I do? I'll be waiting anxiously for your answer. What would you do if you were me?

LA VERNE."

"Well, sister, if I had an affection like that in my home, I'd walk up to him and say:

Listen, Big Boy, if you can't learn to act like a Grown-Up, instead of like a baby making a grab for every lollipop it sees, I'm walking out. You can take it or leave it! You're a man, it's up to you to act like one, and if you can't do it don't expect me to hang around!'

If he didn't straighten up, pronto, I'd go. And I wouldn't come back till he'd proved he could give me the consideration that any man or woman owes the other partner in marriage.

That's what I'd do! What would you do, Lady?"

THE TROUBLE WITH LOVE

Drawn by Nell Brinkley

The trouble with Love—you KNOW we're talking about young love usually—is that he is so unsettled! He's either a bee stinging you—or he isn't there at all. Very seldom, indeed, will he just repose on a bank of violets, which sounds like the last word in pastoral romance, with a nice meat pie and a bottle of dry wine, a book, the sun, and PEACE. He either makes life an irritation, or a bore. Until one has grown old enough to know how to free him and have him too. And then he himself by that time has gotten into the habit of falling asleep by the fire and complaining of rheumatism in his knee.

The trouble with Love is intensity. He's either frozen up in his igloo, far from the interested patient, or setting fire to the middle of your chest and melting your heart away like a piece of suet in a hot pan.

Either a girl has too many beaux—or else she has none at all. Love is wasteful, or else he's a skimp. Either he showers a girl with an "embarrassment of riches" or he makes no allowance at all.

One girl lies awake with her head spinning to keep the trails in her mystic-maze of boy-friends from crossing one another, and another thinks in the deep dark night 'til her head thumps trying to find out why, when she is dainty, interested, and not bad looking, she hasn't a beau to worry about!

The famous "IT" girl gets in the papers, much to her sorrow I ween, with the combustible letters of her myriad admirers open to Mr. and Mrs. Public's eye; while some awfully nice little simple Susan pines for just one nice Sammy to walk with.

The trouble with Love is TROUBLE. He is trouble whether he is YEA or NAY. He's either a wasp-in-the-sun-parlor, or an absent bird-of-Paradise—gone heaven knows where. And in any case he causes diamond drops on the lashes of poor young ladies!

CORRECT MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Visiting Cards for the Newly Married Couple

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have been married a short time and do not know whether the personal card should read "Mr. and Mrs." or should we have separate cards for each? Also whether the address and telephone number should be printed as well? C. A.

It is most convenient if you can have both kinds of cards, for there will be many uses for each. The "Mr. and Mrs." cards are vastly convenient, and you will find them a delight. Then there are times when both you and your husband will need individual visiting cards. If your budget does not allow both, I think that you will find the separate ones more practical, because you can always leave separate ones, whereas you cannot always use the double card.

The cards of both the double kind and the separate kind, can carry the address. It is engraved in the lower right corner, in the same type as that used in the name, but the letters are of a smaller size than those used in the name.

Have you seen the double cards? You might be interested in looking at them when you order your cards. They have the regular card as the first page, but that card is repeated in the second "sheet." So that there is space as large as your card to write messages or invitations and that kind of thing. I am sure that you will be interested in these most convenient new items, and they are becoming very popular. I especially recommend them for the double card, the Mr. and Mrs. card.

It is not good form to have the telephone number engraved on visiting cards.

A Gentleman Raises His Hat

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Should a gentleman who is escorting a girl tip his hat to a man (young or old) to whom she speaks? READER.

A gentleman who is with a lady always raises his hat to a man, young or old, to whom she speaks. This is one of the fundamental rules of good manners for a gentleman. For him not to do this is for him to commit a distinct breach of etiquette, one I should think a girl would find difficulty in understanding.

By the way, the word "tip" is not in good usage in the expression "tip the hat." The better words are "raise his hat" or "lift his hat."

Love's Reawakening

Continuation of Love's Awakening

Madge Successfully Silences Edith Fairfax

At Edith Fairfax's laugh and unpleasant query as to "what the Dicky-bird would say to such munificence" as Philip Veritzen's proffer of bouquets for the gowns of every woman attending Mary's party, I saw too late the pit I had dug for myself. I had hoped that I need say nothing to Dicky concerning the flowers until the party should be actually in swing, when he would be compelled to conceal any captiousness he might feel concerning them. But having presented Edith with the knowledge there was every probability that Dicky would know of Mr. Veritzen's gift before evening, even if I found no opportunity of telling him about it.

He hasn't said anything, yet," I told her. "Probably reserving judgment."

"You mean you haven't told him?" she said shrewdly, and with an unpleasant intonation. "Well, I can't blame you at that. It is rather a bit awkward to explain at that."

I fought for self-control, managed somehow to achieve it. "Aren't you being rather crudely mid-Victorian, Edie?" I drawled. "Why Dicky should object to something which Phil Veritzen does repeatedly for his friends who entertain, I just cannot see. But all this is beside the point. You haven't told me yet the color of your gown."

"And I'm not going to tell you," she said pertly. "Just because old Veritzen is handing you a big bouquet under the guise of sending little ones to your guests is no reason why I should horn into the distribution of largesse. Nay, nay, old dear. If I cannot find me a boy friend all my own to give me flowers, I won't stand under the umbrella and catch the overflow."

She was being as deliberately insulting and provocative as she knew how.

"How old are you, about 7?" I queried. "Please permit me to remind you that you are consuming the valuable time of a very busy woman. If you won't tell me the color of your gown, I shall tell Mr. Veritzen—not that you refused his flowers—I wouldn't hurt his feelings that much—but that I couldn't find out what you were wearing. Then he can procure a bouquet of white or some color which will go with anything, and it will be ready for you when you arrive. If you change your mind, call Mr. Veritzen up yourself and tell him the color you want. Lil's going to do that. And now I must fly. See you tonight. Good-bye."

I do not think I ever talked so fast in my life as I did in that little speech. I knew, though, that I had ready to my hand a weapon against her maneuvering. If I kept silent about the flowers and Dicky learned of it through her, I should be able to say sweetly if he taxed me about the gift: "Oh, yes, I did not have time to tell you but I did the next best thing. I told Edith. I knew you'd know of it as soon as she could reach you."

There would be nothing which would make Dickey angrier or more chagrined than to have me know that Edith had told him a derogatory tale of me. But I knew him well enough to be sure that he would be much angrier at Edith than at me.

The thought was paltry comfort, but it helped me as I sped from errand to errand on my list. Finally with the gratified consciousness of everything done, I returned to the hotel in a comparatively peaceful mood.

I met Dicky in the lobby and shot a quick glance at the clock. "I thought you were going to sleep until noon," I said.

"I was," Dicky said glumly. "A swell chance anybody has to do that here with the telephone going constantly. I'm going out to get breakfast now, the chow they serve here makes me sick, and I won't be back to lunch. I'll drift in about four o'clock and lend a hand if you need me. So long."

"The telephone going constantly." The words whirled around my brain. I had given strict orders that the operator was not to ring our apartment. I knew Dicky's exaggeration when annoyed—there probably had been but one or two calls still as I reached the elevator the telephone operator spoke quickly:

"Mrs. Graham! May I speak to you?"

THE BEAUTY BOX

By HELEN FOLLETT

To tighten up the fiddle string neck apply lanoline freely, rubbing it into the skin until it disappears. Then place around the throat a cold compress. Cover with dry towel and go to bed.

What's to be done with weak ankles? Fire out the spiked heeled shoes, and get heels of ordinary height. Run around on tiptoe, then run around on the heels—stomp around may be a better term. Sit with legs crossed and send the top foot around in circles. Stretch the leg out and move the foot up and down. There will be a muscular pull that can be felt well up in the calves of the legs.

Milk, buttermilk and cottage cheese are foods that the complexion likes. They are good for the teeth, too. So is orange juice. Spinach acts on the intestinal tract and should be eaten often by young persons who suffer from blackheads or acne. Figs, dates and bananas are good fruits for the skinny-slimps who would add to poundage. Alligator pears are almost pure fat, and serve as a help to the lightweight.

Bending exercises taken night and morning will prevent and do away with a heavy waistline. It is at the human equator where exercise is needed not only to keep fat away and to make muscles strong and snappy, but to tone internal organs, and aid the work of the intestinal tract. Women who suffer from constipation will find bending exercises a benefit. Five minutes of them every night and morning will do the trick.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Wednesday, February 11

An eventful and important day is presaged from the predominant lunar and mutual configurations. Uranus is strong in both aspects, forecasting a sudden change of far-reaching influence, probably bringing radical upheaval in the affairs, plans and environment. This inviting opportunity follows close upon the breaking up of long-congested conditions, making way for constructive and practical effort as well as desired experimentation. There may be fresh contracts and alliances, but also there is danger of dispute and contention. Personal relations may develop along singular lines.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of sudden change or travel, with the affairs rearranged and new opportunities embraced. Splendid openings and conditions of an unforseen nature should assist in stabilizing the fortunes, but avoid impetuosity and wrangling. Personal affairs will intrigue.

A child born on this day should be ingenious, original and independent, but may also be practical and responsible, industrious as well as adventurous.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Training the Child to Like Wholesome Foods

There often arises the problem of how to get children to eat certain foods. The grown-ups are familiar with the advantages and benefits of certain foods, but frequently Tommy may not agree with us.

Dr. Copeland

It is definitely believed by some students of the subject that any dislike a child may have for certain foods is due entirely to neglect in training. This is unfortunate, if true, for often children grow up disliking foods which are absolutely essential for their health.

In many instances the cause for this dislike may be attributed to the parent. The child overhears the adult's complaint and the expression of his dislike of certain foods, such as spinach, carrots or milk. Children are quick to imitate, and if the taste of a particular food is not pleasing, they will immediately reject that food. They found their objection on the conversation of their elders. If you dislike some foods, never voice your opinion in the presence of young children.

Children should never be scolded for not eating certain foods. Nor should they be forced to eat foods they do not desire. Forced feedings never develop a desire or taste for food, and certainly do not produce proper digestion.

At the same time you should continue serving these foods. Never remove them from the child's list. If nothing is said, it is probable he will eat them in time.

It takes tact and thought to overcome these dislikes. One wise mother told me the other day that she makes sandwiches, filling them with a mixture of the disliked vegetables mashed up with a larger quantity of a popular vegetable.

Occasionally I see a dyspeptic old gentleman, who, organically is well, and possesses no real stomach disorder, yet he won't eat this or that, thinking it is bad for him. Usually he is merely suffering from poor food training in childhood. I pity him.

If the foods served the children differ from those the rest of the family have, it is better to have the children eat before the adults, and preferably in a separate room. There should be only the most pleasant of conversation at any table. There never should be any playing or undue excitement at this time or immediately following the meal.

Answers to Health Queries

MARY. Q.—Is there more than one kind of hives? I do not have welts but the skin seems red and is easily irritated when scratched.

2.—What can be done for shingles? Is this due to a nerve condition or to some infection in the system?

A.—Yes, there are several different forms: nettlerash is one form and "giant hives" is another. In many instances the trouble may be traced to faulty diet. It often happens that the digestive system is upset.

2.—Find the underlying cause first of all. It is usually due to a nervous disorder and it is possible that there is some infection at the source.

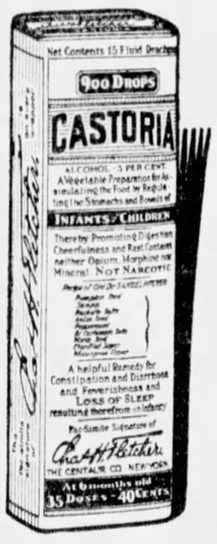
Castoria... for CHILDREN'S ailments



ARE you prepared to render first aid and quick comfort the moment your youngster has an upset of any sort? Could you do the right thing—immediately—though the emergency came without warning—perhaps tonight? Castoria is a mother's standby at such times. There is nothing like it in emergencies, and nothing better for everyday use. For a sudden attack of colic, or for the gentle relief of constipation; to allay a feverish spell, or to soothe a fretful baby that can't sleep. This pure vegetable preparation is always ready to ease an ailing youngster. It is just as harmless as the recipe on the wrapper reads. If you see Chas. H. Fletcher's signature, it is geniune Castoria. It is harmless to the smallest infant; doctors will tell you so.

You can tell from the formula on the wrapper how mild it is, and how good for little systems. But continue with Castoria until a child is grown.

PITT PLAYS DUKES IN '32

Sport Comment

By JAMES J. LONG

Pitt Takes on Dukes.
Popular Football Step.
Chicago Respects Bucs.
Bar McGraw as Boxer.
New Ball Blocks Deal.
More Holdout Bluffs.

NEW COLLEGE GRID ERA OPENS HERE

LONG-CHERISHED HOPES of Duquesne University followers are realized and a new era in local intercollegiate athletics has its beginning in the announcement made today by W. Don Harrison, directors of Panther athletics, that the University of Pittsburgh and the Dukes are to meet for the first time in football in a late October game at the Stadium in the season of 1932. It spells success at last for the Dukes after a struggle of many years to qualify for a place on the gridiron schedule of one of their big local rivals, and success also for the tireless individual efforts of Graduate Manager John D. Holohan, who has been working with this game as his objective ever since 1924.

John D. Holohan

The signing of the contract means that the Bluffites, who have been striding to the front rapidly since Elmer Layden became coach in 1927, will climax their rise by breaking into the local big time in the season after next, and in opening the way for them Pitt makes a graceful and sportsmanlike gesture that will be applauded by all followers of the gridiron sports in this district.

IT HAD TO come some time, with the Dukes advancing gradually in the strength of their teams and the quality of their schedules, particularly in view of the fact that the rule barring freshmen from varsity competition was added to their eligibility code last fall, putting them on an eligibility level with the leading colleges of the land.

On account of these developments, it had been generally felt among the supporters of the pigskin sport hereabouts that in due time the right of Duquesne to compete with the other big schools here would be recognized. However, the actual booking of a game is none the less gratifying because it has been looked upon as certain to develop sooner or later. To football fans in general throughout this section, and to Duquesne's alumni, students and friends in particular, it is the most pleasing football news in a long time.

IT IS UNDERSTOOD that Pitt would have given the Bluffites an early game in the 1931 season but for the fact that Manager Holohan had already closed for another contest on the only date the Panthers were able to offer, and could not change the arrangements.

But the Dukes and their friends are well content to wait until 1932. For one thing it means a more satisfactory date. The game will be played on Saturday, October 22, or Saturday, October 29. Notre Dame is to play at the Stadium against the Panthers on one of those dates and the other will go to the Bluffites. Layden's lads will be better prepared for the big test in late October of 1932 than would have been possible on an earlier date next season.

THE POPULARITY OF a Pitt-Duke gridiron meeting cannot be questioned, and though the original contract is for only one year there is no doubt that relations will be continued after that, with the game being built up into one of the most appealing annual features on the city schedule. Drawing 30,000 with West Virginia here, Duquesne ought to draw even more with Pitt. Eventually, too, it can hardly fail to lead to three-cornered competition for local college honors in football, basketball and other sports, with Carnegie Tech joining with Pitt and the Dukes in a round robin. It's a proud day for Duquesne, and one that also means a lot to the future of college football in Pittsburgh.

Tommy Thevenow

EVEN IN THE home town of such generally recognized flag contenders as the Cubs, the Pirates are looked upon as real pennant threats since they acquired Tommy Thevenow. Irving Vaughn says of them in the Chicago Tribune: "In shopping around for a potential pennant winner in the impending National League race, it might not be a bad idea to give consideration to the Pittsburgh Pirates.

"Their flops in recent years weren't exactly due to a lack of ability. The squad simply couldn't withstand the ravages of a chronic jinx which exercises its power by selecting this or that athlete as a patient for unexpected injuries or ailments. But such things can't continue forever.

"THE BEST REASON for suspecting the Pirates are going to be considerably tougher in 1931 than they were last season is Tommy Thevenow at shortstop. He played enough with the Phillies last season to indicate that he had recovered his old-time skill. That's why the Pirates dealt for and obtained him.

"Short was one of several sources of annoyance to the Pirates last year. Bartell was an erratic performer. He turned in any number of sensational plays almost daily, but the play on which the ball game depended usually was the one he kicked. Thevenow isn't that kind of fielder

"THE REMAINDER OF the Pirate infield probably will be made up as of last season. Gus Suhr is no sensation, but a year's experience should cause him to improve slightly. Grantham is unsteady in the field and never will be any different, but he always can hit. Traynor was off form in the last race, which means he will be back at his peak in the next venture.

"With Traynor and Thevenow at their best the Pirates will have the most effective pair the majors can produce on the left side of the diamond. Comorosky is good enough as a fly catcher, and always is to be regarded with caution as a hitter. The Waner boys require no ballyhooing. Illness kept Lloyd inactive for a big portion of the 1930 campaign, and his absence undoubtedly cost the Pirates more wins than could be counted on one finger. If the regulars mentioned can be kept away from injuries, pitching becomes the one thing that will keep the Bucs from the pennant if anything does."

WHEN BROKEN-DOWN fighters will not realize that they are through and ought to quit, it is the part of the boxing powers in their home districts to take the initiative and force a retirement, to save the washed-up battlers from possible injury and to protect the fans from one-sided bouts.

After his unsuccessful attempt at a comeback against Tony Herrera in Lansing recently, Phil McGraw said he could not make up his mind whether to give up the game or not. So the commission stepped in and mad it up for him. Bingo Brown, chairman, has written a letter to McGraw advising him that he has been out on the "retired list" and cannot fight again in Michigan rings. The action was taken in preference to suspension because of Mcgraw's "long and honorable record."

Lou Gehrig

THE NEW BASEBALL to be used in the big leagues this year has already had one effect that was not originally counted among its possibilities. It has led one club to retain a veteran pitcher.

Bill Sherdel was headed for Brooklyn in a trade for Harvey Hendrick, utility man, it is said, but in the belief that with a less lively ball Sherdel may regain his effectiveness, Manager Bill McKechnie, of the Braves, has decided to keep the southpaw.

THE BALL PLAYER who tells the world he will retire from the diamond if his demands are not granted isn't the only party who can be accused of trying to do some tall bluffing in a spring holdout. Ed Barrow, business manager of the Yankees, declares that if Gehrig does not come to terms the Yanks will drop him altogether and use Babe Ruth on first base the coming season. Can you imagine the Yank owners or any other modern magnates tossing aside a $250,000 ball player? Neither can anybody else.

JACKIE FLOORS FOE THRICE, YET LOSES

BY HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

Twice in the early rounds of his return bout with Johnny Datto, Filipino featherweight, of Cleveland, at Motor Square Garden last night, before the largest crowd to attend a show there since his meeting with Archie Bell last season, Jackie Rodgers, local Negro star, had a knockout victory in the palms of his two socking gloves.

Each time he followed up his advantage with everything he had, only to see his opponent pull through to the bell—and then, having shot the works, Jackie was unable to come back, and Datto, after having been knocked down three times, twice for nine, outlasted him to come on with a rush in the closing rounds and take the unanimous and deserved decision of the judges and referee.

TAKES SEVEN ROUNDS

Seven of the 10 rounds went to Datto, Rodgers winning only the second, fourth and fifth. In the second, Jackie, outscored up to that time, leaped in with a left hook that floored Datto for no count, and, when Johnny arose and began mixing, a right delivered to the jaw amid a barrage of punches dropped him for a count of nine.

When Datto got up in bad shape this time, Rodgers kept swinging for a finishing punch and ran into a right himself that spun him around. The bell found Jackie spent from his valiant efforts and the crowd that jammed every seat and all of the available standing room in a frenzy, for, in the second round of their first clash, in the same ring last New Year's night, Datto had floored Rodgers four times, only to have Jackie come back and last the limit with some fine boxing. Datto also won the decision in that battle.

DOWN THIRD TIME

Rodgers coasted in the third round to regain his bearings after his big splurge and Datto outboxed him. Datto was forcing the fighting nicely in the fourth, after warding off a slugging rush by Rodgers at the start, when Jackie again cut loose with a flash of hard fighting and dazed him with a left hook to the jaw and followed with another that again deposited Datto on the floor. Johnny turned over and got to his knees at the count of six and barely beat the count of 10 by getting up, then slugged with Jackie until the bell.

The fifth round was tame, with Rodgers working away on the inside and gaining a slight shade.

Thereafter it was all Datto. Rodgers kept close and mauled away with both fists, round after round, seemingly resting up for a big shot which never came. He lashed out a few times, but, except for a solid left hook late in the seventh round, was unable to score effectively, the while Datto was jabbing and hooking to the head with his left and blasting away to the body with lefts and rights, many but not enough of which Rodgers blocked with his arms.

JACKIE FADES AWAY

In other words, Rodgers, after having been so close to a decisive victory, with three knockdowns to his credit in the first four rounds, faded away to a whisper over the last half of the route. The explanation likely is that he threw all of his reserve into those two efforts for a knockout victory and then went "dead."

Datto, who, it was said after the bout, was suffering from a touch of "flu," weighed 125¾ pounds and Rodgers a pound less at 3 p. m.

The main bout thrills made the fans forget an ordinary preliminary card, the semi-final of which was one of the poorest exhibitions ever staged here and produced an anvil chorus of boos and hisses and stamping of feet and even a walkout or two by the fans before the principals, Tony LaRose, of Cincinnati, and Marcus Nole, local Negro, both 153, completed the tedious eight rounds. Both are southpaws and they couldn't get any openings against each other. Despite warnings from the referee after nearly every round, they kept waiting each other out. At the finish, the judge agreed on LaRose as the winner, while the referee voted for Nole. A popular award would have been "no contest." At that, both men probably fought as well as they could under the circumstances and may be forgiven in view of the fact that they gave a fine demonstration of just how bad two southpaws can be when pitted against each other. In other words, they were so bad that they were good, if you can laugh off one of those things.

ZEMON IS WINNER

Joe Zemon, of Cleveland, 157, belted around Carl Montebano, of Braddock, 156, for five rounds of the six-round second bout and then went on the receiving end himself as Montebano came back to do his best fighting in the final frame. Zemon received the unanimous decision. Montebano fought from the first round under the handicap of a closed right eye from a lump almost as large as an egg under it. Frank Klaus, former

DAVIES TO BOX CHAMP HERE

Midget Wolgast, flyweight champion of the world in New York State and Pennsylvania (Frankie Genaro is recognized as champion by the National Boxing Federation), and Willie Davies, of Charleroi, will meet in the main bout of the next show in Motor Square Garden, which will not be held until Tuesday, March 3, due to the fact that the food show will knock out boxing for two weeks in the East End arena.

Wolgast's title will not be at stake, as the men will enter the ring weighing more than 112 and less than 115 pounds. They have met a number of times, once at the Garden, and most recently in Toronto, a great flyweight city. Davies defeated both Genaro and Corp. Izzy Schwartz, a former titular claimant, together with Black Bill, a contender, in spectacular bouts in the Meyers Bowl during the past two outdoor seasons.

For the following show at the Garden, on March 9, Matchmaker Jules Beck is trying to match Johnny Datto, victor over Jackie Rodgers a second time last night, for a return bout with Eddie Shea, of Chicago, who recently knocked out the Filipino in three rounds in Philadelphia. Datto's manager, Mose Donley, accepted terms before leaving for Cleveland after last night's show.

Between Rounds

Promoter Apples Meyers today completed his card for his weekly show in the Moose Temple Friday night by signing Joe Herman, Negro welterweight, of the North Side, to box Buddy Stewart, of Homewood, and formerly of Canton, O., in the opening bout. He has Billy Rose, of Cincinnati, against Billy Holt, of Homewood, in the 10-round main bout; Al Ghan, of Columbus, and Hal Murray, of Harrisburg, in the semi-final, and Jimmy Reilly, of McKeesport, taking the place of George DeBasi, of Greensburg, against Sammy Burns, of the Hill, in the second bout.

Pete August, of Bridgeport, Conn., and Sam Bruce, of Buffalo, welterweights, have been matched to box the main bout of a show at the Castle Bowl, New Castle, next Monday night.

GRID BATTLE IS SCHEDULED FOR STADIUM

By JESS CARVER.

The long awaited inauguration of athletic relations between the University of Pittsburgh and Duquesne University will become a reality in 1932 with the Panther and Duke varsity football teams clashing in the Pitt Stadium.

C. D. Wettach

Negotiations for such a game were closed yesterday by D. Don Harrison, director of athletics at Pitt, and John Holohan, graduate manager at Duquesne, and Elmer F. Layden, Duquesne's head football coach and athletic council chairman. The contract calls for a game in the Stadium at a date mutually suitable, which will be either October 22 or 29, 1932. The present agreement is for one year's duration only, but in all probability, it will be extended for an indefinite period.

The Pitt and Duke authorities opened the dicker for the game three months ago. At that time, it was hoped that a game could be arranged for 1931, and Harrison secured the consent and authorization of his athletic council to go about arranging a game for this year. The Dukes' card, however, was filled, and Holohan found it impossible to shift dates so as to accept the Pitt offer.

Last week, at the regular quarterly meeting of the Pitt council, the matter was again taken up and after being discussed generally, was referred to the schedule and executive committees. These bodies acted on the recommendation of the council, and Harrison took the matter up with Holohan, the agent through whom negotions were opened.

Yesterday, Holohan presented the matter to his athletic council, the general executive committee of the university and Rev. Joseph J. Callahan, president of Duquesne. The contract tendered by Pitt met with the approval of these bodies and with President Callahan and Director Layden affixed his signature on that famous dotted line.

PITT DELIGHTED

Charles D. Wettach, chairman of the Pitt athletic council, issued the following statement:

"We are glad to announce that the request of Duquesne University of a place in the Pitt athletic schedule (football) has been granted. At its last meeting, the executive committee of the athletic council authorized Mr. W. Don Harrison to schedule with Mr. John Holohan, a football game with Duquesne for the 1932 season.

"We are sure that such a game will be of benefit to both institutions and that it will meet with the approval of the people of Pittsburgh."

The game will be played either the week before or the week following the Pitt-Notre Dame game of that year. By the terms of the contract both schools are to begin practice at the same time, and the Dukes are bound not to play another opponent that may also be on the Pitt schedule in Pittsburgh that fall. The financial arrangements were not made known, but I have been informed that the terms of the agreement are very favorable to Duquesne.

HOLOHAN PLEASED

Graduate Manager Holohan expressed himself as being greatly pleased with the scheduling of the Panthers.

"I have dreamed of signing a contract with Pitt ever since I became connected with Duquesne University," Holohan said, "and I feel that both schools will benefit greatly. The Pitt officials have been very fair and have been fine to deal with. I feel that the step is the greatest Duquesne ever has taken in an athletic sense."

Director Harrison complimented Holohan and the Dukes on the way in which the school has been advancing and on the adoption of the freshmen rule, which made the booking of the game possible.

Operators of Fake Ticket Agency Held

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—(INS.)—Charged with operating a spurious ticket agency for college basketball games in New York and New Jersey, three men and six youths were to be arraigned in court today. They were accused of bilking purchasers of more than $10,000.

One of the youths held is a New York University student and another a freshman basketball player at the same school.

JOCK TO ATTEND CONFAB

Dr. Jock Sutherland, Pitt football coach, will attend the annual winter meeting of the football rules committee at Absecon, N. J., during the present week-end. Sutherland has been reappointed to the advisory committee of coaches. He will depart for the East on Thursday evening.

LOCAL SKATERS EAGER TO CLIMB

By CARL W. SHATTO.

The first act of a two-act hockey melodrama to be offered at Duquesne Garden this week will be staged at the Craig street arena tonight with the Yellow Jackets and Cleveland Indians playing the leading roles.

The second act of the local ice thriller will be presented Saturday night when London the club that is helping Cleveland to block Pittsburgh's path to an International League play-off berth will send its Tecumsehs here. The second act may prove something of an anti-climax however for the Pittsburgh-Cleveland fight is the one that figures to provide the most spectacular fireworks.

The visiting Indians for whom local skaters and local fans never have had any warm regard are likely to find their hosts unusually hostile tonight, for neither Pittsburgh fandom nor the Pittsburgh club has forgotten the southern finish of the last Cleveland-Pittsburgh engagement here.

LOCALS ANTICIPATE WIN

The fray with the bitter conclusion was staged on January 31 and fourth place was the prize. The Indians were leading by 2-1 with one minute of play remaining when Gordy Fraser rammed the disc into the Cleveland net. Referee Jerry LaFlamme refused to allow the tally and the official and the Indians left with one of the finest crops of raspberries ever raised at the Garden.

Cleveland then went on to trim Windsor, 2-0, and Buffalo, 3-1, and on Sunday night the defending champions added insult to injury by picking off about 90 per cent of the breaks and holding the Jackets to a 1-1 tie in a game in which they were badly outplayed.

Although they have tied 'em twice, the Jackets haven't downed the champs this season. Thousands of local fans saw the Jackets pile through the Cleveland defense for one fine scoring opportunity after another in their last bout here, and hundreds of Pittsburghers saw their favorites do the same thing in Cleveland Sunday. This superior attack is bound to tell sooner or later, and nobody is going to be particularly surprised if the Cleveland jinx is snuffed out without further delay.

INDIANS' LEAD REDUCED

The Jackets whittled two points from the Indians' lead by swamping Syracuse 5-1, here Saturday, and by winning tonight they can reduce the champs' edge in the standings to three points. Furthermore, a win over Cleveland may make it possible for the locals to crowd London out of a play-off berth later in the week.

Leo Reise was badly bruised and Duke McCurry was badly cut around the mouth in Cleveland Sunday, but the Indians are well battered up and when the going gets rough (and it is likely to become very rough) the Jackets are likely to enjoy an edge in the matter of condition.

Exceptionally fine checking by Centers Rodden Ouellette Fields and McGuire lightened the burden of the Jacket defense in the 1-1 tie affair in Cleveland. These boys seem to have solved the Indians' attack, and they are likely to retain the spotlight tonight. The probable lineup.

middleweight champion, seconded Montebano and Eddie Mead, manager of Joe Lynch when the latter was bantamweight champion, handled Zemon.

Jimmy Reilly, of McKeesport, 133½, won over Jackie Coogan, formerly of Canton, O., and now of Homewood, 134, in the six-round opener, a listless affair, with neither showing to advantage. Coogan was substituting on short notice for Bus Hardy, of Beaver Falls, who was ill.

Red Robinson and Eddie Kennedy alternated as referees and Frank Brown and Jock Simco were the judges. Tommy Grant and Norman Borland did the timing and Harry Klaas was the announcer. A collection was taken up during the preliminaries for the family of Bob Cranshaw, Negro boxer, of Columbus, O., who died Sunday from injuries suffered in a bout with Marty Gornick at the Moose Temple a little more than a week before. A total of $295.72 was raised.

FANS PAY $7,130

The gross receipts were $7,130 and the boxers were paid off on a net of $6,773. The Bell-Rodgers show last year netted $6,885, and the Sergt. Sammy Baker-Joe Trippe return bout, which also attracted a banner crowd at the Garden, paid off on $6,489.

FREEMAN EASILY WINS

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 10.—(AP.)—Referee Jimmy Moran stopped a fight between Tommy Freeman, of Hot Springs, Ark., welterweight champion, and Al (Kid) Kober, of Fort Worth, in the fifth round last night after Freeman had cut Kober's face badly.

Building Up Big Fights

By IKE DORGAN,
The Man Behind Tex Rickard's Fistic Ballyhoos.

CHAPTER XXVI.

The bewildering success of Tex Rickard's Willard and Moran bout in old Madison Square Garden was his opening wedge in New York. He had shown them something. He had placed every person of the record indoor crowd in the seat that his or her ticket called for. He said it could be done and it was, while the others shook their heads and wondered.

Frank Moran.

With that bout Tex established the foundation of a reputation for square shooting and a genius for handling a big crowd. He had four rows in his press row, something that never had been done before. He made it a big business layout and it went over big. His "best people" began to nibble in earnest. Of course, there always were the regulars, but this tall, gaunt westerner had come in where a long line of capable promoters had failed and had made it a night never to be forgotten.

And it came within an ace of being a never-to-be-forgotten night.

Against all the predictions, Moran was within a punch or two of the title in the seventh round.

SEVENTH ROUND A THRILLER

It will stand out for many years as one of the most exciting of any particular round in a heavyweight championship fight. Moran suddenly cut loose in that round and I still can see the ponderous Willard, lolling helplessly on the ropes, his hands down at his sides, little Moran flinging old Mary Ann onto Willard's flabby jowls with the fury of an anarchist.

Moran was seeing redder than his hair ever was. The ropes kept Willard from going down, and Moran couldn't punch him off his big, flat feet. Willard's jaw had dropped, his mouth was wide open and great streams of saliva were pouring from his mouth.

If ever a champion was beaten Jess Willard was at that moment. The conqueror of Jim Coffey was repeating—maybe winning a title. The great crowd was standing to a man. Even the boys in the press seats were afoot. It was a great moment, and just when Willard seemed about to fall from sheer exhaustion the bell rang. Damnation how it did ring! All our hopes were rung off right there.

ACTION PLEASES TEX

As both men were fairly dragged to their corners, Rickard, sitting at the ringside, was grinning from ear to ear.

"All okay now. Never seen anything like that round. I don't care what happens now. She's a success. That round made her," he said.

And it did, I guess. It unmade Moran. He came back in the eighth hardly able to raise his big, long arm. His great chance was gone forever, it turned out. There were no decisions in those days and our only chance was a knockout. The newspaper verdict was that Willard had won.

Moran had sold many of us on the Man of Destiny idea. He really believed it himself.

It seems that years before, as a boy, he had fallen asleep on the banks of the Ohio River. He was full of youth and imagination and his day dream was a glorious one.

A great cavalcade was coming through a glorious valley. Gonfalons were being slapped by the breezes. Spears, lance blades, swords, helmets, breast plates were blazing in the sun.

MORAN'S ROMANTIC DREAM

A great hero, a conqueror, was coming home in triumph. He rode a beautiful white steed with flowing mane and tail that swept the turf. Trumpets of gold blared around him. The populace thundered its applause. He raised a jeweled hand to wave them his gratitude. As he drew near, the boy in his dream saw that the hero astride the spirited horse of snow was himself, grown to amazing manhood, broad of shoulder, deep of chest and straight as a giant of the forest!

Frank Moran, the boy on the river bank, saw Moran, the red-headed warrior, coming home to win deafening tribute. As the stately horse was about to tread on him Frank Moran, the ragged urchin, awoke and rubbed his eyes and wept because it had been only a dream. He went into the fight that night with Willard believing the dream would come true!

THE "MAN OF DESTINY"

He sold the idea to a few of his close friends among the newspaper men and they fell hard. Strung with the "Man of Destiny." Tex thought it a corking good yarn, productive of yards and yards of ballyhoo copy, but he didn't put in with it. You never could sell a small man against a large one to Tex. He was strong for the giants—always was. Poor fellow, I've often regretted that he didn't live to clap those searching eyes of his on the astonishing frame of Primo Carnera. If ever a gent of Tex Rickard's dreams ever walked out of the picture books it was Primo Carnera.

Tex would have gloated over that fellow's massive size and, you can depend on it, Primo would have been the raging lion of one of Tex Rickard's big shows—this year, perhaps. Tex always said he'd come along—the giant unknown to make everybody sit up.

RICKARD'S VIEWPOINT

Rickard believed in the big men, and, after all, he didn't have to do much guessing about it. Think of the millions he drew into his boxoffice windows with the big fellows.

It is strange thing that, with all of his tramping about the Argentine, he never discovered a Firpo. Indeed, Firpo himself was a big kid, running wild in the very town Tex once visited in his travels in the Argentine.

But Tex wasn't a discoverer in the sense that he could walk into a country and place his hands on a future ring great.

He didn't believe hunting for them ever would bring results. He used to laugh about Tex O'Rourke's world-wide quest for a second Dempsey. Tex was more inclined to believe that they dropped from the clouds.

P. I. A. A. to Suspend Coach Rule Breakers

HARRISBURG, Feb. 10.—(AP.)—The state board of control of the Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic Association has stood by its guns and fired another volley into the diminishing ranks of member schools holding out against the non-teacher coach rule.

The board, at its meeting yesterday, acted to reveal the full set of "teeth" with which the regulation is equipped and to sound an advance, official warning that suspension will follow not only the violation of the rule itself, but the playing of an opponent suspended for violating the rule.

Among the other numerous, varied matters acted upon by the board was the setting of dates for the final games of the annual P. I. A. A. basketball tournament. All games between the pairs of district winners are to be played by March 21, with the two regional games on March 28 and the state title contest on April 4. A pre-regional game will be played in the western half of the state on March 24. The three inter-district winners in the West will draw and two will compete in this game while the third will meet the survivor in the regional clash.

BOLSTER DENIES CLAIM

Cal Bolster, local basketball official, denies reports that the referee in the Duquesne-Geneva and Pitt-Notre Dame games agreed to make the affairs "no-whistle" contests. The fouls in both games were reduced to a minimum because of clean play, Bolster avers.

The Duquesne Lafayettes will be out to sew up the second-half championship of the Allegheny County League tonight when Ed Minnick's Scarlet Hurricane engages the Ellwood City Manhattans in the only league fray on the schedule.

The Lafayettes are not taking anything for granted in tonight's contest and will have their strongest lineup available for the game. A victory for the champs will assure them of a place in the post-season playoffs with Fintex, winner of the first-half title.

Penn Five plays at the North Side Bulcks and St. Michael's at the Knickerbockers in the West Penn League games. Monongahela is at Swissvale and Wellsburg at Duquesne in the Wagner Tri-County League, while Kingsley House goes to Westinghouse Club and Downtown Y to Hill Top Y in the County Amateur League.

P. T. A. CONFAB TONIGHT

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN.

Representatives of nearly a score of clubs listed under the banner of the Pittsburgh Tennis Association will gather in annual winter conclave at the Pittsburgh Athletic Association here this evening. With exceptionally important group of topics slated for discussion, the gathering is certain to be well attended, not to mention interesting. It is entirely possible, indeed, that definite plans for the staging of the Western Pennsylvania championships, Pittsburgh's premier net fiesta of the year, will be formulated tonight, instead of at the spring meeting in April, this departure from long established precedent being reckoned advisable in line with the strong policy of tournament expansion in vogue with P. T. A. officials the past several seasons.

President J. Phillips Davis, University Club luminary, and Tourney Chairman Ed Seitz, leader of the Alpha Kappa Psi host, concur in the opinion that, if the 1931 West Penn event is to see advance commensurate with that of its recent predecessors, it is absolutely requisite that an early start be assured.

In addition to consideration of the Western Pennsylvania affair for the coming summer, the racquet moguls will hear reports from Chairman Seitz, on the 1930 West Penn competition; Jack Lauler, of the Pittsburgh Center junior and boys' committee, and from Chairman Sam Keller of the Allegheny County championships committee. Inter-Club League prospects will also be threshed out and rumor of further extension of loop activity has emanated from usually reliable sources.

The pre-campaign tennis smoker, so successful a twelvemonth ago under the guidance of Howard Moore and Vernon Porter, likewise will be rehashed with view of repetition in May just prior to the inauguration of circuit hostilities, sentiment being strikingly in favor of such revival.

Local Purdue Grads Hear Football Coach

Noble Kizer, Purdue University football coach, was the main speaker at the annual banquet of the Pittsburgh alumni of the Western Conference school.

Kizer announced himself as elated over the signing of Frank Carideo, all-America quarterback at Notre Dame, as assistant coach and also informed the alumni that Purdue is building its athletic program on a bigger scale than ever.

Fight Results

At Motor Square Garden—Johnny Datto defeated Jackie Rodgers, 10 rounds; Tony LaRose defeated Marcus Nole, 8 rounds; Joe Zemon defeated Carl Montebano, 6 rounds; Jimmy Reilly defeated Jackie Coogan, 6 rounds.

At Boston—Sammy Fuller knocked out Bruce Flowers, 6 rounds.

At Birmingham, Ala.—Maxie Rosenbloom and Battling Bozo drew, 10 rounds.

At New Orleans—Tommy Freeman knocked out Al Kober, Fort Worth, Tex., 5 rounds.

At Chicago—Joe Sharkey knocked out (technical) Everett Kelley, 3 rounds; Phil Ross defeated Patsy Pollock, Winnipeg, 8 rounds.

At Cleveland—Willie Davies defeated Britt Gorman, 6 rounds; Vito Mazzeo knocked out George Sotak, 4 rounds; Pete Mazzeo defeated Al Gruver, 4 rounds.

At New York—Georgie Beecher knocked out Izzy Cohen, 2 rounds; Jerry Johnson defeated Eddie Malcolm, 8 rounds; Joey Costa defeated Joe Comforti, 6 rounds; Tony Romano defeated Vincent Maricondia, 8 rounds; Andy Zarrarino defeated Sammy Delson, 8 rounds.

At Akron—Herman Heller knocked out Marty Fox, 1 round; Gerry Emard defeated Jackie Pilkington, 8 rounds.

At Toronto—Floyd Hybert defeated Tommy Bragan, 10 rounds; Jackie Johnston defeated Sammy Hackett, 8 rounds.

At Buffalo—Sam Bruce defeated Bucky Lawless, 10 rounds; Tony Tozzo and Izzy Greve drew, 10 rounds; Harry Fuller knocked out Louis Sabo, 4 rounds.

At Holyoke, Mass.—Harry Ebbets defeated Leo Williams, 10 rounds.

At Newark—Marty Goldman defeated Tony Lambert, 10 rounds.

CHURCH FETE TONIGHT

The Holy Name Society of St. Scholastica Church, Aspinwall, will stage an entertainment tonight in the church hall. A program made up of music and other forms of entertainment will be carried out. Charles J. Doyle of The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph will give a talk on sports.

W. P. I. A. L. BATTLES HOLD INTEREST

GAMES TODAY.

CITY LEAGUE.
Section I.
South at Peabody.
Connelley at Fifth.
Allderdice at Schenley.
Section II.
Carrick at Perry.
Vocational at Allegheny.
South Hills at Langley.

With no feature games listed in the City League, scholastic basketball interest centers about the two or three important W. P. I. A. L. battles today.

In the City loop, in Section I, Allderdice and Schenley clash in what is about the most important game. Allderdice sprang an upset in the first round by knocking off the ambitious Bellefielders. Schenley rallied right nobly, however, and save for a defeat at the hands of Westinghouse, the Sectional leaders, managed to hang onto second place. Last week, in their first second round game, the Grossmen walloped Fifth unmercifully, and will be favored to take Allderdice today.

In the other games on the City League program, Connelley plays at Fifth and South meets Peabody and in Section II, Carrick tackles Perry, Vocational takes on Allegheny and South Hills meets Langley.

The battle in Section XIII between North Union, defending Sectional champs, and the leading and undefeated Brownsville passers tops the W. P. I. A. L. card. Unless North Union can knock off the Brownsville quint this evening, its chances of regaining the laurels it has lost for the time being will be very slight. Brownsville defeated North Union in the first round and hopes to repeat tonight.

In Section VIII, where North Braddock has things about sewed up, Braddock and Turtle Creek clash with second place at stake. Braddock, with the high scoring Krieling going strong, the lad who has twice set a new league individual scoring record this year, will be a slight favorite, despite the fact the game is to be played at Turtle Creek.

Swissvale needs to defeat Aspinwall to hold onto the slight lead it holds in Section XI. Ed Paulie's team was romping along in fine style until last week when Wilkinsburg bumped the defending champs off. Since then, Swissvale has won a game, while Wilkinsburg has not played.

There are only 10 of the 16 W. P. I. A. L. sections active tonight. The complete schedule follows:

Section I.
Har-Brack at Parnassus.
Tarentum at Springdale.
New Kensington at Freeport.
Section IV.
Monaca at Midland.
Aliquippa at Freedom.
New Brighton at Beaver.
Rochester at Beaver Falls.
Section V.
California at West Newton.
S. Brownsville at Donora.
Monessen at Monongahela.
Section VI.
New Bethlehem at Apollo.
Ford City at Vandergrift.
Kittanning at Leechburg.
Section VIII.
Pitcairn at Trafford.
Rankin at E. Pittsburgh.
Braddock at Turtle Creek.
Section IX.
Coraopolis at Carnegie.
McKees Rocks at Crafton.
Stowe at Bridgeville.
Mt. Lebanon at Dormont.
Section X.
Jeannette at Connellsville.
Norwin at Uniontown.
Greensburg at Scottdale.
Mt. Pleasant at Latrobe.
Section XI.
Swissvale at Aspinwall.
Edgewood at Etna.
Wilkinsburg at Verona.
Section XII.
Dunbar at Youngwood.
Perry at Derry.
E. Huntington at Sewickley.
Belle Vernon at Mt. Pleasant.
Section XIII.
Cumberland at Fledene.
Pt. Marion at German.
N. Union at Brownsville.
S. Union at Georges.

UMP MORIARTY TALKS HERE

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

George Moriarty, brilliant American League umpire, who was a ranking thirdbaseman for and later manager of the Detroit club, is spending some time in Pittsburgh in carrying out an interesting lecture schedule.

Burleigh Grimes

Moriarty, although a pronounced American Leaguer, is well known to many Pittsburghers. He played the hot corner in the memorable World Series of 1909, and he was one of the umpires who officiated in the fascinating World Series between the Pirates and Senators in 1925.

MOMENTOUS DECISION HERE

A considerable number of Pirate followers may recall that it was Moriarty who called the disputed play at second with two out in the eighth inning of the final clash between the National and American champs of 1925. Peckinpaugh's toss to Harris on an attempted force pulled Harris a bit off the bag. Harris tried to bluff the thing through by throwing his glove down and starting off the field, but the capable Moriarty saw the play correctly and he had the courage and fairness to call it against his own league. Cuyler then smacked his historic double to write victory on the Pittsburgh banners.

Moriarty also took part in the last titular games, it being his fortune to work behind the plate in both of the contests pitched by Burleigh Grimes. It is interesting, indeed, to hear him give his version of Grimes' smart and colorful pitching in the clash which he eventually lost, 2 to 0.

PRAISE FOR GRIMES

"He's the smartest of the spitball pitchers," said George. "The different kinds of offerings he showed me really were amazing. He has several kinds of spitballs and he has different speeds for these wet offerings. Moreover, he has a fine curve and a good fast ball. Nearly all of the high-class spitball pitchers have stressed this one delivery, but Grimes has such an assortment of pitches that the batter is on the defense."

The American League character is doing a big thing for baseball and other games in his sports lectures. He specializes in talking to and with high school boys, and the manner in which he charms the lads is astonishing. A remarkable personality is George, and one would glean from his fine appearance that he still could play the sport he loves. Yet George has a boy who soon will graduate in medicine in a Western university.

Belgium Beaten In Amateur Bouts

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—(AP.)—Four amateur boxers from Belgium met with little success last night in the series with New York youngsters that opened a gala international night for the medal chasers. Only Edmond De Lanoit, a spindly 147-pounder, was able to win a match for the Belgians.

De Lanoit outpointed Gus Russo, New York, in three rounds. William Hogan outpointed Andre De Haan, by a narrow margin in the 135-pound class and John Killcullen, Yale freshman, pounded out a decision over Francs Vander Amveraer, the invading Belgian heavyweight.

Andy Melia, New York, knocked out Jan Arnould, a 160-pounder, with a right to the jaw in the third round.

Friends to Honor Goldberg Tonight

The New Kensington Jewish Club will stage a testimonial tonight, at New Kensington, for Dr. Richard (Dick) Goldberg, former University of Pittsburgh football star, who is slated for a trial with the Chattanooga club, of the Southern Association, this spring.

Farrell Instructs Diana Fishwick

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., Feb. 10.—(AP.)—Miss Diana Fishwick, British woman golf champion, is taking some lessons from Johnny Farrell, former national open champion, here prior to her invasion of Florida tournaments.

CHAMP IN EXHIBITION

BALTIMORE, Feb. 10.—(AP.)—Max Schmeling, heavyweight champion of the world, appeared in two exhibition bouts at the State Armory here last night. It was his first public appearance since he defeated Jack Sharkey for the title last June. He goes to Hagerstown from here.

S. DREYFUSS IMPROVES

Vice President Sam Dreyfuss, of the Pittsburgh Baseball Club, who has been ill for the last 10 days with the flu, is progressing, according to an announcement made by the local club. He is expected to be up and around within the next few days.

TARTANS LOOK FOR VICTORY TONIGHT

GAMES TONIGHT.

Carnegie Tech vs. Wash-Jeff, Washington, Pa.
West Va. vs. Temple, Philadelphia.
Grove City vs. Westminster, New Wilmington, Pa.
Allegheny vs. Thiel, Greenville, Pa.

By JESS CARVER.

Having been straining fretfully at the leash since two weeks ago Saturday night, when they were bumped off by Geneva in the final game of their pre-examination schedule, Carnegie Tech's Tartans hop back into the collegiate basketball action by playing Wash-Jeff at Washington tonight. The contest is a return affair, the Skibos having made very merry at the expense of the Presidents here in Pittsburgh.

The contest in Little Washington heads the evening's card, which consists of four games involving district quintets.

TECH LINEUP SET

Coach Buzz Hogan has been working diligently with his charges, who took two smacks on the button in a row before they knocked off work to indulge in a bit of midterm examinationing. He plans no startling changes in the personnel for tonight and will start Bob Smith and Capt. George (don't call him Georgie Porgie) Nease at the forwards, Eddie Stentz at center and Red Fergus and Jimmy Leonard at the guards.

If the Presidents win this game, it will be their first in five starts. Do they need a win? He, and how!

The likely starting lineups follow:

Carnegie Tech—		—Wash-Jeff
Smith	F	Hamilton
Nease (C)	F	Joy
Stentz	C	Butler
Leonard	G	McNeal
Fergus	G	Johnson

Allegheny invades Greenville for a tough one with the Lutherans. This game should be a very tough one, for Allegheny is tough to beat any place and the Thiel lans are formidable on their own court.

West Virginia continues its hopping about in the East by playing Temple in Philadelphia.

HANDBALL PLAY UNDER WAY

PERSHING ARMY PLANS HIT BY RED TAPE

Commander in France Finds War Designs Hampered By Washington Methods

Maj.-Gen. Biddle

replaced Maj.-Gen. March as Chief of Staff at Washington, and ordered to England.

"Left Friday, spent Saturday and Sunday visiting 1st Division in Ansauville sector; inspected infantry in front line trenches and the artillery. Called on Gen. Debeney, French First Army.

"Returned this morning, stopping at aviation park, Colombey-les-Belles, Maj. Arthur Page commanding. Camouflage work exceptionally well done. Passed through Miracourt to see Gen. de Castelnau, who speaks highly of our troops."

As Gen. Foch, then chief of the French General Staff, had shown some surprise when at the Allied meeting at Compiegne in January I told of the delays and difficulties we were having at the ports and in the operation of railways, I invited him to make a visit to my headquarters, hoping to put him in touch with our activities.

Showed Little Interest

We had already reached a state of development that confirmed the soundness of our organization and could forecast its ability to meet all requirements. I went with him to the various sections of the General Staff and while he expressed no opinion about what he saw, his aide and spokesman, Gen. Weygand, a staff officer of experience, was very complimentary.

Foch never seemed interested when I talked with him of our problems and I doubt whether he ever thought, knew or cared much about organization or questions of transportation and supply. He was essentially a student and a teacher of history and strategy.

The very extensive and intricate organization necessary to handle a modern army engaged in war beyond the seas was not easy to grasp. Indeed, the details were not entirely understood in our army itself, except by a limited number of officers charged with the functions of direction and coordination.

There continued to be considerable cause to find fault with the attitude and methods of French bureau officials. They had been repeatedly urged to turn over certain docks and facilities for our exclusive use, and while some concessions had been made they were always made grudgingly and piece-meal, and we were never certain of more than temporary occupancy.

Under the circumstances I did not hesitate to call Prime Minister Clemenceau's attention to the remarks made in our House of Representatives criticising the French attitude toward affording us port accommodations. While this resulted in a somewhat more liberal policy, it did not remove the necessity for constant pressure and insistence on our part.

Urge for Co-operation

There was often no real cooperation among the subordinate French officials, who seemed to make little attempt to understand our problems. Among the higher officials it was only by dint of constant urging that we could get them to let us have the meager and insufficient facilities that we had to put up with.

In all our relations with them throughout the Service of Supply, at the ports and in railway traffic, it was an ever recurring matter of surprise to me how well our officers in direct daily contact with the many obstacles remained hopeful instead of becoming pessimistic as to the outcome.

It must be said, however, that the French officers of the liaison group as individuals attached to various organizations were always found anxious to make things go smoothly, though in many instances they clung to the notion that we should adopt French ideas and methods.

Apropos the experience of many of our officers, I recall that one of the most efficient on duty at a very important port once said to me:

"General, the trouble is that these subordinate French officials in immediate charge are either so hide-bound or else so conceited that it would be as easy to convince a Greek statue as to make one of them understand. How in the world it happens, Sir, that we do so well, I do not see.

"Here we have come 3,000 miles to help them and yet we are treated like mendicants on the street corner holding a tin cup for passing pennies.

"I know, sir, that co-operation is necessary if we hope to win the war, but it requires an excessive effort on our part, with more failure than otherwise to our credit."

Radio Station Built

This was harsh comment, but there were times in the experience of most officers when it seemed to fit the case fairly well.

As to wireless communications, the possibility of interference by the enemy with our cables had caused some concern, and the projected radio station at Bordeaux was a precautionary measure to meet such a contingency. Very properly, it was a naval proposal and plan, as the navy system had charge of the transmission of our confidential messages and was especially interested in those relating to the movement of transports.

Although the Navy undertook the construction of this station at once, it was not completed until after armistice and has since been turned over to the French as a link in their radio system.

In aviation development a crisis had been reached as to raw materials, especially spruce and fir.

Gen. Foulois

Due to the delay in furnishing these things, our aviation program abroad, which depended largely upon Allied production, was very much retarded. According to the Inter-Allied Aviation Commission, of which Gen. Foulois was the American member, there was not enough spruce and fir in France to keep the French factories going more than a month longer, when they would require something like a million feet, and the British and Italian factories were in about the same fix.

Plane Output Behind

Our aviation control at home had made an allocation by which they had retained from 30 to 40 per cent of the production of these woods, although it was apparent that no such quantity could be utilized in the manufacture of American planes in time to be of use to the Allied cause.

Questions of details of construction were still under discussion between our Aircraft Board at home and that abroad. The fact is that with us the industry had to be built from the ground up, and it had to be done with no experience to guide us.

A recommendation was cabled requesting that the three other countries involved be given a larger share of materials necessary to provide planes for themselves and also for us, until our output could meet our own requirements. It has never been clear to me just why we should not have given full assistance and preference to factories abroad that were already turning out planes of approved pattern instead of clinging to the exaggerated and erroneous claim of our airplane manufacturers that they could supply our armies within a reasonable time.

That such a delusion still clouded the issue is shown by the promise made by Washington about the middle of February that by March 1 there would be something over 300 planes ready for shipment, and that by May 1 a total of 1,600 would be completed, the numbers increasing monthly to a grand total of nearly 12,000 by November 1. The first thousand planes were to reach the Army in France by July 15.

Meanwhile, some of the more sensational newspapers at home were making extravagant claims about the large number of American planes then actively engaged in France, when in fact up to this moment there was not a single plane of American make on the Western Front.

Objects to Reports

Of course, unfounded reports of this sort were very harmful and their appearance led me to make a strong protest against its being permitted, as will be shown in the following cablegram:

"Newspaper clipping from United States received here to effect that United States has thousands of fliers in France and that thousands of American airplanes are flying above the American forces in Europe today. As a matter of fact there is not today a single American made plane in Europe.

"In my opinion such bombastic claims in the American press have had the effect of materially stiffening German production.

"Some sane statement might be given the press at home to counteract these exaggerations. These statements are grossly exaggerated and are eviremely detrimental to the future efficiency and expectations of the Air Service American Expeditionary Forces.

"Emphatically protest against newspaper publicity of this nature and urgently recommend drastic steps be taken to stop publication of such articles. One clipping in question is being returned by mail today.

"Suggest this matter be brought to the attention of Mr. Howard Coffin."

At this moment several hundred of our men were awaiting training, the French and Italian schools were full, and we had insufficient planes to train them ourselves. Only nine squadrons of the 260 that we should require could be considered at this time as anywhere near ready for service, and the prospects were that even this small number would have to use inferior types of planes purchased from the French unless the receipt of raw material from the States and consequently the production in France could be materially hastened.

Discipline Necessary

In the face of our failure to produce planes at home or to fulfill our engagements to furnish raw material for their manufacture in France, it was small wonder that the French found themselves in a situation that would only warrant a promise of planes as our divisions needed them.

With reference to the inspection trip noted in my diary, I had recently inspected several stations like Vittel and Bourbonneles-Bains, which were commanded by regular officers, of whom, naturally, much was expected, but before the World War our Army had always been more or less careless in dress and none too strict when in the field, and these were no exception to the rule. Even higher commanders were often found neglectful of their appearance and lax in the enforcement of discipline.

But the conditions of service in France demanded more serious attention to these essentials, not only as a matter of pride but because of the general effect upon morale and efficiency.

Good discipline is the first requisite to successful military effort, and the degree of its enforcement in a command is an almost certain index of the character of performance to be expected in battle.

Likewise, an officer or soldier who takes no pride in his personal appearance is usually found careless in other respects, and to that extent less reliable in time of stress. It need hardly be added that those of this class who came under my observation and did not immediately respond to correction were very soon replaced.

LONE STAR GAS BUYS TEXAS PROPERTY

About 30,000 Acres of Oil And Gas Lease Holdings Is Included in Purchase

The Lone Star Gasoline Corporation, subsidiary of Lone Star Gas Corporation, has acquired all gasoline refineries and properties in Texas of the Chestnut & Smith Corporation of Tulsa, Okla., and its subsidiaries in Texas. The Lone Star Gasoline Corporation took possession as of January 1, 1931.

L. B. Denning is president of the new corporation. Other officers are R. A. Crawford vice president; F. L. Chase, vice president and general manager; D. L. Cobb secretary-treasurer, and J. R. Jarvis, general superintendent.

DIRECTORS NAMED

Properties acquired include seven casinghead gasoline plants, with four located in or near Ranger, one in Eastland, one in Breckenridge and one near Oldham, in Eastland County; approximately 30,000 acres of oil and gas lease holdings, 324 railroad tank cars and various other incidental properties.

Directors of the new corporation include L. B. Denning, R. A. Crawford, F. L. Chase, E. F. Schmidt and J. R. Jarvis.

11 MONTHS' NET

Lone Star Gas Corporation and affiliated companies report for 11 months ended November 30, 1930, issued in conjunction with an application to list 681,390 shares of no par value common stock, to provide mainly for the stock dividend, consisting of one share of common for each seven shares held as of February 2, 1931, net profit after interest, reserve for depreciation and federal taxes, of $4,888,499. This is equal, after payment of preferred dividends, amounting to $508,136, to 96 cents a share on 4,557,131 shares of common stock outstanding on December 31, 1930.

December receipts for gas furnished during November are generally among the best of the year, and the net for the full 1930 year will show up substantially better.

STOCK MARKET CONTINUES ON UP ROAD

Unfilled Steel Tonnage Report Helps Stimulate Feeling of Optimism

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—(AP.)—The sudden resurgence of optimism in Wall street again governed the speculative markets today.

Share prices pushed further into fresh high territory for the recovery, despite a breathing spell in the morning, and bonds were in good demand at better prices. Such important commodities as wheat, corn, cotton, copper and silver also reflected the wave of good cheer. U. S. Steel's unfilled tonnage report as of the end of January disclosed a larger gain in bookings of new business than had been expected, also helping to stimulate the better feeling.

The progress of share prices was enlivened by gyrations in some of the volatile issues.

The gain of 188,758 tons in U. S. Steel's tonnage was in contrast to various unofficial estimates heard during the past week, ranging from a decline of 100,000 tons to a gain of 100,000 tons. It was at least better than the more optimistic expectations, and the best January gain since 1928. It was pointed out, however, that the current low level of operations somewhat obscured its significance.

Particularly cheering to Wall Street was the better action of the commodity markets. The vigorous advances in wheat futures at Chicago and Winnipeg, where the best prices in weeks were recorded, did much to aid speculative confidence.

While fluctuations in the price of silver have been largely due to a combination of unusual circumstances robbing it of much of its barometric value in judging commodity price trends, the sudden rebound on touching a shilling an ounce in London tended to bear out predictions that the metal might finally strike bottom at that level. Silver dealers, however, could see no tangible improvement in the general situation of this metal.

In the main, however, the violent upswing in stocks lacked positive developments in industrial or trade conditions to back it up, and it was still regarded as primarily a technical correction of an oversold condition. Wall street felt that it was in part a response to the passing of vague uneasiness over possible political unsettlement, both at home and abroad.

Many Submit Improvement Suggestions

By B. C. FORBES

Mr. Forbes

THE PUBLIC judging by the avalanche of correspondence descending on this column, are more intensely interested than ever before in what is happening and what should happen in industry, business, banking, politics. Most of the writers offer criticisms, many of them add suggestions. Since public opinion is, in the final analysis, the supreme master in a democracy, glimpses into how it is working at the moment may not be uninteresting.

JOHN G. LETHBRIDGE, of a New York Stock Exchange firm, in course of a lengthy letter, says:

"There is a situation which, mentioned in your column, would do a great deal to help relieve the present credit stringency exemplified by the banks toward legitimate American merchants, such as independent owners of groceries, garages and other neighborhood stores.

"They are a big purchasing power, and they are in a critical condition because of poor collections, yet they are naturally expected to pay their bills to jobbers. When they go to their banks they are turned down when they request a loan. With all this talk of cheap money, why not some leniency on the part of the credit departments of the banks toward this type of American merchants, instead of cutting credit lines down 35 per cent to 50 per cent?

"The principal cause of the merchant's condition is the neglect of the richest person of his neighborhood to pay his bills promptly. Some of those who are saying they see the end of depression should prove their statement by increasing the circulation of funds by having their secretaries gather up their bills that are paid yearly and releasing them now to meet these payments."

A TRAVELING salesman writes:

"I have a criticism that can probably be applied to many other concerns—overcautiousness. Nineteen hundred and thirty was considered a poor year. Yet I made a substantial increase in business with lower selling expense as compared to 1929.

"Now the executives of this concern, anticipating a dull period, have reduced the traveling time of their salesmen 50 per cent. Naturally there is going to be a falling off in business. Compare this attitude of timidity on the part of our executives to the courage and foresight of the men who founded this country and later laid the foundations for our present great corporations."

RUSSIA IS agitating many American minds. Thomas P. Durell, New York, writes that one of his friends, "a Russian of the old school," is convinced that "sooner or later our government and other governments will be faced with the necessity of placing an embargo on Russian importations." Mr. Durell adds:

"In my humble opinion, we are witnessing a struggle between the low standard of living, as exemplified by the Soviet, and the high standard of living, as exemplified by the rest of the world, and those who are today extending credits or exporting goods to the Soviet are encouraging the downfall of the high standard of living."

CAXTON BROWN, vice president of the Weston Electrical Instrument Corporation, writes in part:

"There is an influence upon this prevailing condition of industrial depression that has escaped adequate recognition. I refer to the attitude of the purchasing fraternity in general. It has endeavored to take too great an advantage of the existing 'buyers' market' by insisting upon prices that retard the supplier in his efforts to restore prosperity.

"Many suppliers who have rendered long and meritorious service are asked to mee' unfair price situations. Doubtless it will be argued that the inexorable law of supply and demand cannot be altered. But is it not incongruous that in many large and well-managed organizations the majority of the executives are earnestly endeavoring to improve conditions without lowering of the wage scale, whereas in the same organizations there is frequently exerted a purchasing influence that is working in serious opposition?"

TIGER HEART -:- By Robert Terry Shannon

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Connie Calvert shares her home and fortune with her half-sister, Kitty, whom she found destitute in New York's underworld. Kitty falls in love with Jim Tracy, Connie's former fiance. Believing Jim to be a fortune-hunter, Connie, to save Kitty, enlists the aid of Duke Garson, Kitty's friend and underworld intelligence man. He warns Connie that her butler is a crook and that her mother should guard her pearls. Later, Duke is about to declare his love for Connie when Jim appears. He claims he was held up and is afraid to go home. Connie invites him to stay. Duke doubts Jim's story. That night, Mrs. Calvert's pearls are stolen. Duke questions the maid about them. The maid doubts Kitty's honesty. Mrs. Calvert becomes ill after the excitement. Duke accuses Jim of lying about being held up. Jim says he lied because he did not trust Duke and wanted to get back to the Calvert home. Connie tells her mother that she is not sure whether she loves Duke. Duke seeks the butler's aid to solve the robbery mystery. The butler suspects the maid. While out riding with Connie, Duke says she is a new thrill in his life. When he kisses her she is powerless to resist. Late that night Connie is alarmed when she hears a noise in the house. She summons Duke and he discovers the maid hiding in a closet. She refuses to give an explanation.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER LVI.

Connie looked at the girl with amazed eyes; a pang in her own breast gave her an actual pain: but, no, it was impossible! No lying servant could convince her that Kitty had the slightest connection with the stolen pearls.

"Don't you dare drag in my sister's name with such a vile theft!" she cried, sharply.

Mary Smith's eyes flashed at her shrewdly. "Oh, she's your sister, is she? Well, that's new! What was the matter—did your father forget to marry Miss Kitty Calvert's mother?"

A flush, sudden indeed, spread over Connie's face.

"Oh, how can you be so vile!" she cried.

Maid Sarcastic

"Don't worry about me," Mary Smith retorted. "I know all about you and your kind—pretending you're so much better than everybody else! Well, I don't think you'll be so vigorous about having me arrested now, will you? It wouldn't sound nice if I was to tell that maybe your wonderful sister might have stole jewelry out of the house. You wouldn't want that brought up in court and in the newspapers, I reckon. Oh, no, you wouldn't hold your head quite so high, would you?"

The venom, the rancor of Mary Smith gave her words a vicious, poisoned tip rattle; the respectful manner behind which she had always hidden her real self was stripped away. She burned with a primitive hatred, a passionate fire that set up quivering vibrations all around her. But Connie was more bewildered than hurt.

"Have you been like this all the time you have worked for us?" she asked, in an unbelieving voice.

"A lot you know about me or can, either!" Mary Smith threw back. "No, I wasn't human—I was just a machine, a servant! Yes, but I have ears to hear and eyes to see and brains to understand. What did you think I was made of—gutta-percha or something—"

Garson's voice was cold, like an icy hand laid upon the girl's wrath.

"It doesn't help your case at all to be insulting," he said. "If you keep talking like that your conviction is certain. What you need is mercy and pity and you're not likely to find it any place outside this house. Now that you've blown off a lot of steam, what about it? What were you sneaking around in the hall tonight and hiding for?"

"None of your business."

"It will be easier for you to talk to me, Mary Smith, than it would be to a prosecuting attorney and you needn't try to bluff anybody about this scandal. There's nothing to be hidden about Miss Kitty. Her story will reflect credit on the Calvert family, so you can't tell that as an out for yourself. Either you're going to tell us the truth, or you go to jail. Don't make any mistake about that—you'll find plenty of people just like yourself behind the bars. You haven't got brain or influence enough to beat the case that can be piled up against you. Your only chance is to come clean now."

"I wasn't meaning any harm there in the hall tonight," she said, still faintly sullen. "If I had half a chance I'd go straight on up to my room. The way you people treat me a body would think I was a burglar out to do harm. I've lived in the country all my life—I never hurt a hair of anybody's head."

"We understand that," Garson cut in, impatiently. "What was your purpose in the hall?"

"I was looking!" The voice was again tight with passion.

"Looking for what?"

"It's none of your business—"

"Oh, yes it is," Garson contradicted. "Why do you keep beating around the bush; are you afraid?"

"I ain't got nothing to be afraid of," Mary Smith flung at him. "You can cross-question me till doom's day and you won't get me rattled. All the same, I don't mind telling you what I was doing. You brought it on yourself—I was downstairs looking to see what sort of goings-on was taking place in this house. The way that woman has been going after Jim Tracy—well, it's not decent, that's all. Didn't I see her in his arms in the hall here the other night! I'm not always asleep upstairs just because my eyes are shut. I thought I heard somebody walking around, going from one room to the other, and I took it on myself to come down and see what I could see. And I saw a-plenty!"

"Just what," Garson asked, frigidly, "did you see?"

Lies About Tenants

"For one thing, I saw you and Miss Connie parading around here in the middle of the night dressed like you are now. If that's the way respectable people in a respectable place go on I don't want to be under the same roof."

"And what else did you see?" he persisted.

"Never mind what else I saw. Maybe I didn't see anything else—my eyes don't penetrate through locked doors. All the same you can't accuse me of stealing and robbing just because I am a decent girl and won't put up with the goings-on."

Garson's eyes narrowed and the pupils became penetrating points of light. "You lie, Mary Smith."

"I do not."

"Yes, you do. You're telling this story to cover up your real purpose, but you can't get away with it. You either stole those pearls yourself, or you know who did. I'm going to give you your choice. You can either return them at once or you go to jail tonight."

Slowly color began to drain from Mary Smith's face. For a space of seconds she was silent, and then turned to Connie.

"You never done me any harm in your life, Miss Connie—and I never done you any harm. When you were engaged to marry Jim Tracy I never said or thought a word against it—I was satisfied. I even hoped you'd be happy. You—please, Miss Connie, don't let him put me in jail—don't make him force me to tell—to tell—"

The flood of tears burst so unexpectedly, unprepared as Connie and Garson were they were overwhelmed with the force the emotion of her racking sobs—the strained, hopeless weaving of her thin, bony body.

DAILY TRUE STORY 'Partners'

When a woman hasn't seen her husband in three years and suddenly spies him coming up the walk of her little country home, it is likely to come as quite a surprise.

But when such a woman has fervently prayed that she never will see her husband again, it comes as a decided shock.

Rita Hanley, still legally Mrs. Frank Hanley, arose unsteadily from the low rocker by the window when she saw her errant husband come up the walk. After a moment of pulling herself together, she waited until the old-fashioned pull-wire doorbell jangled.

It was a cold day, with threats of approaching winter in the clouds. She wouldn't be inhuman, she decided, and refuse to open the door and let him in.

If Frank Hanley expected to see his wife become pale and totter, he was disappointed.

"Come in out of the cold," she said.

He came in and looked around. Frank Hanley was as cool as the temperature outside. One might have thought that he had been gone but three days.

"Hello, Rita," he said, and went into the living room, standing by the hot air radiator which he knew so well.

His wife glanced at the suit case he had brought with him, and shook her head.

"Sorry, but you cannot remain over night, Frank," she said, quietly.

He looked at her with scorn.

"Don't worry, just come up on a little errand, going to get the evening train back."

"What is your errand?" she finally asked.

"This—" he kicked the suitcase—"brought it up to take back some of those old maps and plans. Joe and I are going to branch out into suburban development next spring."

"I've never touched your stuff—it's in the old bureau in the attic, where I put it when you wrote that you weren't coming back."

"I'll find it," he said. He picked up the suitcase and went upstairs. Rita listened as he opened the door to the attic stairs and went up.

Suggests Divorce

He wasn't gone very long, not more than five minutes. A corner of a blue-print was showing.

"I didn't get them all. I'll be back after awhile and get the rest. You don't mind, do you?"

"No," she answered.

He looked at his watch.

"Got to go—look here, Rita, why don't you get a divorce? You admitted yourself that you made a mistake when you married me instead of Will Farnum. I understand he's still waiting for you."

"Divorce isn't right — you know well enough that I want to divorce you but my religion—why discuss it?"

"Suit yourself," he said and without another word he left the house.

Back at the city the next day, Frank went to the office of Baynes and Hanley and waited.

The "storm" was coming, but he wasn't afraid to face it.

Tom Baynes arrived and stared in amazement when he saw his partner.

"I thought you would be half way across the country by this time, you damn thief," Baynes said.

"Don't waste words calling hard names, Old Man," Frank advised.

"You have a black gall to sit there like that," Tom Baynes, told him. "If you had run away I might have sent detectives after you with slim chance of getting you, but now I want all of those securities you stole!"

"Tut-tut, strong language. Stealing is one thing but trying to speculate is quite another. We aren't incorporated, we are just partners—"

"Partners!" Baynes growled.

"Sure, legally. You know what that is—one partner is responsible for the other—if you got us into debt and beat it I would be liable. You can't do anything to me."

"I know it. What sort of speculation was it? Only a fool would expect to make a penny in the market these days."

"Oh, I am not so foolish a gambler as to try the market. I went where I had a chance. I thought I might run those stocks and bonds up to a pretty figure but I lost."

Lied to Partner

"What do you mean?"

"Well, the horses, some mighty steep games of crap, a lot of poker and other things. I had hard luck, lost everything, and that's why I'm here. I haven't money enough to take me across the river and out of Jersey, much less support me once I got that far."

"You took our savings and gambled it?"

"I tried to recoup our losses, Tom."

With that, he walked out, leaving Tom Baynes pacing the floor of their office. He walked out with more than a thousand dollars in cash in his pocket at that moment.

Frank Hanley walked around a corner of the block so that Baynes couldn't see him, and took a taxi uptown. He called at an apartment and was greeted by a much-painted woman with impossible hair—impossible as to shade save for chemicals.

"I didn't hear any explosion, Frank," she said.

"He took it hard enough, Babe."

"When are we gonna beat it? Gee, I'd sure like to get down to Havana where it's warm and there's something doing."

"In a few days. Listen, if he was wise God knows what he'd do. He thinks I'm broke."

"He swallowed your line about losing it gambling?"

"Absolutely. Know what a swell scheme I got? I'm going to get some apples and take a stand in front of the office so he can see me. He won't be suspicious then. If I'm down to selling apples he'll be sure I haven't any of the jack left."

The girl laughed. It struck her as funny.

"Sure thing—then he won't think of trailing me or putting the dicks on me. After that I can disappear and he will think I'm selling apples on some other corner. Then we just grab the stuff I've stored away and play for a year or two — how's that, Babe?"

"Swell," she said, laughing at the idea of Frank Hanley selling apples.

At this same time William Farnum was talking with Rita Hanley in the little home up north.

"Did — did he annoy you, Rita?" he asked.

She told him all about her husband's visit to get old maps and plans.

He made no further comment on it.

Frank Hanley was a fast worker. The next day he procured an outfit of apples and stationed himself in front of the office. Tom Baynes found him there.

"Buy an apple, mister?" Frank had called to him.

Tom Baynes was amazed.

"I couldn't do that sort of thing, stand there and sell apples," he said.

"Better than starving," Frank answered.

The next afternoon Will Farnum called on Rita Hanley again at her little cottage up country.

"Rita, there was something queer about Frank coming out here the other day to get old maps and plans. Let's go up and see what he took. I'm puzzled."

Find Money

"All right, Will."

They went up and Rita opened the bureau drawer where the old maps and plans had been stored.

Rolled in some old blueprints were packages of money and a lot of gilt-edged bonds—probably a hundred thousand dollars worth in all.

"Will," Rita gasped "what made you think there was something queer?"

"If he was so broke that he had to go selling apples, why did he come up here for worthless old blue-prints and maps?"

"Is Frank selling apples?" she asked, almost breathless with surprise.

Will Farnum put his hand on the shoulder of this woman he loved so dearly, who loved him and who would have married him but for her religion which forbade divorce.

"No, dear, he isn't selling apples now. He was selling them on the street when a man named Baynes leaped out of his office window to commit suicide. He landed on Frank. It killed them both. Here is the story in the paper."

All names of characters in this story are fictitious.

Confession Writer's Confessions

CHARLES J. COVEY.

Note—Thoughtful readers will recall (with pleasure) that we paused in our story of the Confession Writer's Confessions to permit the confessions writer to go out and learn about this thing called life. The Confession's editor had told her to get into the gutter and climb out again—to marry a good and great man, if possible—and live happily ever afterward. We shall see. Heh. Heh. Heh.

By "FADED ORCHID."

It is not so easy for a good and innocent gal to go down, down, down. No, indeedy. I walked into the crowded street, fresh from my first interview with the Confessions editor, full of hope. I was determined to make good in a bad way. But I didn't know a soul in this big, soulless city.

I suppose some of you society girls, born with one foot in the gutter, will sneer at my plight. You, who go from tea to tea on the arm of Cholly Knickerbocker, do you know what it is to have to work your way down. "O, it would be fun!" you exclaim. "You confessions writers meet so many uninteresting people!"

Well—I did meet one uninteresting man. Would you like to know more about him. His name? Covey. Charles J. Covey. If I remember correctly, it was Charles J. Covey, more than any other man, who helped me in those days of trial and error. But before I tell you about Charles J. Covey, let me mention others who helped—Jack Hanley, George Hicks (No, I'm not angry George—just hurt!), McDowell Nixon, Middleton J. Middleton, of Middleton; Middleton & Middleton, Frank Drake, Frederick Haight (Oh, how he Haighted me. Tsch. Tsch. Tsch); Van Voevenburg Osterhoudt, the "mashing pedagogue." And others. They all were eager to help. The cure!

Foe of Gamblers

Alderman Griffin, of the Fifth Ward, Submits a Gratifying Record of Prosecutions.

Alderman M. J. Griffin, of the Fifth Ward, reports that his constables made 29 raids last year on gambling houses and lottery operators. Those arrested were held for court and most were convicted.

If all the aldermen were as energetic as Griffin in prosecuting gamblers the inactivity of the police would not be so serious. But this does not mean that the aldermen are supposed to do the work of the police, or that the police may be excused from making raids if constables make them.

Gambling is one of the worst of the evils with which Pittsburgh is afflicted. The slot machine and numbers rackets have brought with them bribery, graft and official corruption.

A particularly hideous feature of the situation is that the racketeers, greedy for the pennies of school children, are enticing mere youngsters into the racket and making criminals of them.

Honor to Alderman Griffin for his efforts to stamp out vice!

Fatal Boxing Bout

Death of a Plucky Fighter Here Raises Some Important Questions About the Sport.

Defenders of professional boxing will not find it easy to defend the bout of January 30 at Moose Temple. One of the boxers, a plucky Negro boy, is dead, and his death is attributed to the injuries he received in the ring.

Professional boxing may or may not be brutal. Generally it is, for the "fans" like to see blood flow. The bout which resulted in the death now being investigated by the coroner was exceptionally cruel.

The victim was an inexperienced lad, with scarcely any other qualification for the prize ring but indomitable courage. Early in the bout his jaw was broken, several of his teeth knocked out, and his face gashed.

The bout should have been stopped then and there. But the officials did nothing, and the unfortunate youth, fearing that if he did not stick it out he would lose the paltry fee that had been promised him, fought gamely through the remaining six rounds—then was taken to the hospital.

It is no wonder, when this sort of thing is possible, that many people would gladly see professional boxing outlawed again.

Grand Opera

Chicago Company Has Made Commendable Selections for Its Pittsburgh Performances.

Pittsburgh this week is enjoying its first performance of grand opera by a first-class company in several years.

Familiar Italian operas with melodious arias and choruses well known to everyone who makes the slightest pretension to acquaintance with classical music are being sung.

There has been some criticism of the Chicago Civic Opera Company for not giving us newer or less familiar works. The criticism no doubt comes from professional musicians or advanced students of music. They constitute a minority of Pittsburgh's music lovers and what they wish probably would repel the masses.

The Chicago Company has done well in catering to popular taste. It was sensible from the box office standpoint, and sensible from the standpoint of Pittsburgh's opera-famished people.

Well-fed persons may crave caviar; the starving prefer roast beef.

Fellow Citizens.

Senators Are Responsible for the Nye Committee.

New evidence of the lawless activities of the Nye Committee exposes its attempt to unseat Senator Davis, of Pennsylvania, by methods that are a scandal and a disgrace to the United States Senate.

A Pennsylvania judge, testifying at Washington, says that hired agents of the Nye Committee recently sought him out in Pittsburgh and told him that they were "ANXIOUS to secure testimony AGAINST Senator Davis."

"I drew the conclusion from the questions they asked me," added this witness—Judge J. Frank Graff, of the Armstrong County Court of Common Pleas—"that they wanted information from me to counteract testimony of a certain witness who already has appeared."

Judge Graff then identified both of these hired snoopers by name and pointed out one of them who was SITTING NEAR CHAIRMAN NYE at the Committee table.

After nearly 12 years of distinguished service in the cabinets of THREE PRESIDENTS, James J. Davis was elected Senator from Pennsylvania last November. His majority over his nearest opponent was NEARLY 1,000,000 VOTES.

Sworn statements by Mr. Davis show that his expenditures in the primary and election campaign were lawful in every respect.

NO DEFEATED CANDIDATE IS CONTESTING HIS SEAT.

When Mr. Davis presented his certificate of election to the Senate, members of the Nye Committee objected to admitting him to his seat because they said THEY HAD NOT COMPLETED THEIR INVESTIGATION.

When the Senate by a decisive vote overruled this objection and seated Mr. Davis, the Nye Committee then sent its snoopers into Pennsylvania to try "to secure testimony AGAINST SENATOR DAVIS."

The methods employed by two of these snoopers having been exposed by a competent witness, the Senate should immediatly apologize to Senator Davis and ask him to convey the Senate's apology to the 10,000,000 people who live in Pennsylvania.

The Nye Committee's investigation of the primary campaign of Senator Davis, its interference in his election campaign, its attempt to prevent him from taking his seat and the methods it is employing in the effort to expel him are as tyrannical and intolerable as they are lawless, disgraceful and DANGEROUS TO THE PEACE AND SAFETY OF THE REPUBLIC.

The Senate should abolish the Nye Committee immediately or be held responsible by the citizens for the committee's brazen defiance of law, of public welfare and of constitutional rights.

Undesirable Alien

Marry-Go-Round

Love—Modernistic

As long as she can see through either lens, a normal woman goes through life looking for the Ideal Lover and the Perfect Romance.

"Work" is a man's nickname for the two hours he spends interrupting the office force and mussing up his desk, before he goes out for lunch and the afternoon's golf.

You may drag a man to the altar by stratagem or sheer determination; but it takes more than will-power to make him love you.

A woman wants something tender and thrilling to "remember" after a love-affair is over; but all a man wants is to FORGET.

Most of the people in insane asylums spend their days doing the same silly things over and over and over again. But the only people outside of insane asylums, who waste their time that way, are the bridge fiends and the confirmed petters.

Up to 25, a boy's most absorbing problem is how to catch the women; after that, his biggest problem is how to uncatch them.

It is hard to tell these days, whether it is more difficult to lure a single man into a love-affair or to keep a married man out of one.

You can keep a child from biting its nails by rubbing pepper on its fingers. But the only way to cure a man of his pet habits is to put arsenic in his coffee.

Funny, but husbands seemed to "stay put" a great deal longer when women tied them to their apron strings, than they do now that they are tied by the purse-strings.

"I love you" is still the sweetest sentence in any tongue but it is no longer a life-sentence.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—Recently my wife and I made a brief sentimental journey to Cincinnati, the city from whence we came to New York 20 years ago. We stopped at the Sinton where we spent our three-day honeymoon, revisited scenes we knew well, mingled with old friends.

So many things happen to a people and a city in a span of 20 years. Where once the Emery Arcade with its jinkle-jumble of cubicle shops sliced through a block there stands a 50-some storied campanile housing two huge department stores, a mammoth hotel and myriad lesser enterprises.

The sluggish canal whose network of foot-bridges led to that beer-sipping Elysium known as Over-the-Rhine has flowered into a sweeping boulevard spinning with motor traffic. Only Jimmy Widemeyer remains. Jimmy, the "millionaire newsboy," who sings of disaster on a Fountain square corner!

Cincinnati is a boss-ridden city that threw off its yoke and has, so it seems to me, taken its place in the sun and deservedly won the right to its Middle-West sobriquet, the Queen City. It is hallowed for me with tender sentimentalities.

There I went as a wide-eyed, gar-mouthed country boy agape with yokel bewilderment. There as a $30-a-week obscurity on the outer rim of the copy desk I led my small-town sweetheart to the altar. There I found some of the most loyal friendships I have ever known.

Cincinnati has a warming hospitable charm seeping doubtless across the shimmering Ohio from the blue-grassed dells of Ole Kaintuck, stretching so peacefully and pleasantly on yonder side of the river. People appear so glad to see you that you go about with a queer little choke.

Most of the joyous, care-free gazetteers I knew are steadied by raw realities. Many heads are thatched with snows of passing winters. There came sudden lulls when our eyes brimmed and which we turned off with gusts of delirious laughter. Laughter through the teeth!

I have a pardonable pride in the rise of that old newspaper gang to eminence. There is that former rollicking flaneur, Russ Wilson—he of the gaudy straw hat bands—now the austere and honorable Russell Wilson, Mayor of Cincinnati and headed for the U. S. Senate. Frank Rostock, erstwhile sporting editor who gnashed his teeth and tore up telephone books when the Reds lost, now president and editor of the amazingly successful paper on which we worked. Alfred Segal, whose ringing editorials have overthrown local corrupt governments but prefers to be known as a reporter. So many more—Roy Howard, Ray Long, Phil Simms, Bill Kramer, H. T. Webster, H. W. Brown, Bob Brinkerhoff, Bill Culkins, Eugene Walter, Marlen E. Pew, Ren Mulford, Jr., Milton Bronner. And so on and on.

* * *

At the Sinton, John Horgan, the resplendent day clerk in my time and now general manager and even more resplendent, touched off my vanity by having a silver engraved plate tacked to the door of the suite reading: "This suite is occupied by O. O. McIntyre." Above a similar plate honored Admiral Byrd. Someone observed to Lloyd Scholl, one of our gang and now energetic manager of the local Western Union: "Two birds in the one cage!"

"Yeah," replied Scholl, "an eagle and a cuckoo."

Edgar Guest, Detroit poet, happened to be in town and accompanied me to a haunt of our old newspaper crew. It was my first appearance in years and the reception, if I do say it, was enthusiastic. There were embraces, shouts and back slaps. On way back to our hotel Eddie remarked: "People can't be that glad to see anyone." There's a sunshine poet for you!

* * *

The only sad note to my trip was that due to my short stay I did not get around to the bailiwick of my old cronies of the composing room—Eddie Craig, Paul Breedon, Riggs, Curry and others. They saved me from many breakfastless Monday mornings.

* * *

I confess the conceit over my reception was slightly punctured at the depot homeward bound. In the waiting room a beautiful lady rushed up, kissed me, pinned a rose to my lapel and exclaimed: "I think you are wonderful. Heywood Broun!"

DESCARTES, VERSATILE GENIUS

By Archibald Henderson

Rene Descartes is one of those bi-partite geniuses, so rare in world history. He combined the analytical power of the scientist with the intuitive gift of the philosopher. Had he never written a line of mathematics, he would be immortal as the "father of modern philosophy." Had he never penned a phrase of philosophy, he would always be remembered as the founder of the marvelous and beautiful system of solving geometry by algebra, known as analytic geometry. This honor he shares in part with Fermat, who perhaps anticipated him in the discovery. But it was Descartes who erected the method of analytic geometry into a system, and laid its deep and broad foundation. From his time until now it has borne the name, in his honor, of cartesian geometry.

Rene Descartes was born at La Haye, Touraine, of Breton parents, on March 31, 1596. His consumptive mother died a few days after his birth; and throughout his life, he was delicate and sickly. He was a precocious genius, early conscious of his own mental powers; and it is said that by his eighth year he had gained the title of "the young philosopher" from his avidity to learn and his constant questioning.

Descartes had little confidence in the methods of instruction in the schools of his day, attributing his development to the natural mental powers with which he was endowed. When he left the Jesuit college of La Fleche, he declared that he "had derived no other benefit from his studies than that of a conviction of his utter ignorance, and a profound contempt for the systems of philosophy then in vogue."

After leaving college he abandoned the study of books, seeking knowledge in travel, and "in the great book of the world." He preferred to seek the truths of science, not from the schoolmen, but from the operations of his own mind.

For a time he lived the life of a gentleman of leisure; and even served in the armies of Maurice of Nassau, Tilly and Buquoy. At the age of 33 he went to Holland and devoted himself to quiet and philosophic meditation. After eight years of intensive reflection he brought out the small, but important, treatise, "Discourse on Method." This was followed by his "Meditations," and the two works made him famous throughout Europe.

Descartes invoked reason for the solution of problems of philosophy. He stands at the other end of the scale from Bacon. While Bacon is regarded as the master of induction, Descartes is preeminent as a master of eduction. This was a mark of the mathematical bent of his mind.

The two main tenents of his philosophical system are: "I think, therefore I am;" and the principle that all clear and distant ideas are true, which he terms "the foundation of all science, the rule and measure of truth."

In several branches of science, Descartes showed the workings of a great mind, notably in mathematics, physics and physiology. The foundation of cartesian geometry is laid down in his suggestive work, "La Geometric," published in 1637. Less than a year before his death he was summoned to Sweden by Queen Christina. Following his death on February 11, 1650, he was buried in Stockholm, but his remains were subsequently removed to Paris. His name and fame are among the great glories of France.

Nose Dive of Silver

Instability of the Metal Adds to Vicious Forces Making for International Depression.

SILVER, long a symbol of economic controversy, returns to plague the business stability of the world.

The plunge of the demoralized metal to the lowest price level in history contributes violently to international depression.

Charles J. Bullock, head of the Harvard Economic Society, has characterized the collapse of silver as a world calamity.

The Harvard savant takes the view that the trade of the outside world with Asia will continue to suffer as long as the price of silver declines.

The extent of the setback in silver may be measured by the fact that an ounce of gold is now worth 79 ounces of silver. In 1896, William Jennings Bryan urged the free and unlimited coinage of silver in the ratio of 16 to 1.

Silver declined in price 33 per cent during 1930, and another 12 per cent thus far in 1931.

As a result of war time conditions, silver climbed as high as $1.38 in 1919. From that point, there was a gradual decline to 57⅛ toward the end of 1928, and to 47 in 1929. At the end of 1930, the price was 30¾. Last week (February 6) it slumped to 26½ cents.

STRANGELY enough, the demoralization of the silver market does not spring primarily from overproduction, or even from maladjusted production. The demand for silver takes care pretty well of the current output, which declined 6 per cent in 1930.

The virtual panic in the silver market results mainly from the changing attitude of the leading governments toward silver as a monetary substance.

The almost universal disposition to regard gold as the sole monetary base has induced governments throughout the world to unload accumulated supplies of silver.

The present impulse toward weakness in silver originated in London, and curiously enough, Great Britain is the greatest sufferer from the damage done to world trade. In December, 1920, the British treasury found a means of adding to its available resources by debasing its subsidiary silver coinage from a fineness of 0.925 to 0.500. This new fashion was quickly followed by France, Belgium and other continental countries.

The process of debasement of silver coins was in reality a renewal of the movement to lower the prestige of silver as a monetary unit, which started in Germany between 1873 and 1876.

After the war, the British treasury took steps to get India off the silver standard. In its efforts since 1926 to get on a gold standard, India has been a heavy seller of silver in order to acquire gold or its equivalent, foreign exchange on London.

MEANTIME, in the last two years, Indo-China, a French colony, switched from silver to gold. The melting down of its old silver piaster made available for sale in the world's market 50,000,00 ounces of the white metal.

Although strictly speaking, only China, Abyssinia and a few minor countries are on the silver standard, silver is treasured as a means of exchangeable wealth in most parts of Latin America and in the Orient. The technical change in the Indian currency system, for example, does not preclude the use of silver coins in ordinary trade.

Naturally, the unprecedented sustained weakness in the silver market has hurt those who mine, refine and deal in the metal.

But as a matter of public policy, the silver industry as such cannot expect any more paternal aid from government than the other sick commodities, including copper and lead.

Silver, however, is not merely participating in the general reduction of commodity prices.

It is also adjusting itself to its new status as a monetary base of declining importance among metals.

If silver were to be used solely in the industrial arts, even the present greatly depressed prices would be too high.

Yet such a revolutionary change, though theoretically possible as an ultimate development, is not yet at hand.

The great inert millions of toilers in the Orient, who barely eke out a living wage, do not alter their age-long habits quickly, as governments change their laws.

In India, as in China, silver is the medium for saving, the store of value for the multitudes, the treasured possession of hundreds of millions of coolies and untouchables.

THE practical significance of this on immediate world trade is that nearly half the world's population recognizes that the real value of their savings — stored in silver bars and trinkets—has greatly shrunken in recent months.

Feeling poorer, these peoples are reluctant to buy freely.

Thus, from the standpoint of immediate effects, the instability of silver adds to the vicious forces making for world depression.

Though governments should avoid interfering with economic law, it seems that in the case of silver they have themselves heightened, if not caused, the demoralization by unco-ordinated unloading at unpropitious times, of white metal released by debasement of silver coins.

Accordingly, silver specialists, including Francis H. Brownell, chairman of the American Smelting and Refining Company, urge that the various governments which buy or sell silver make an informal agreement looking toward more orderly marketing conditions.

The specific proposal is that the government at Bombay, which has been the most disturbing seller of silver, should announce that hereafter it will cease selling except above a stated minimum price, such as 35 cents an ounce—which is some nine cents above the present market.

IT IS also suggested that other governments which followed the precedent set by England a decade ago of reducing the silver content of subsidiary coinage and thus releasing quantities of the precious metal for sale, desist from liquidating further accumulated stocks of silver for a stated period of time.

Furthermore, if the governments could be induced to make their usual purchases of silver for new coins at times when the price falls below the agreed minimum, there would be support for the peg.

In connection with the Brownell plan, which, if adopted, would tend to check the panic in silver, the difficulties of getting agreement among various nations should not be minimized.

A similar attempt was unsuccessfully made in 1903 at a conference at St. Petersburg. Before delegates returned to their respective countries, however, natural recuperative forces became operative.

The stabilization plan would at least emphasize that the silver market has a bottom—for the near term future.

It would not necessarily check the increasing tendency of even the more backward countries to become gold-minded.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

How do you open the door of your home when friends call on you?

Do you swing it wide with genuine pleasure and ask them in?

Or do you open the door gingerly half way and in an assumed voice, bid the waiting one to enter.

A spontaneous welcome which comes from a truly welcoming attitude warms and cheers the would-be guest.

The visitation day may be inopportune—the home may not be in good order.

But there should be no apologies for it or for your personal looks.

Unless you can afford to keep a maid all the time it cannot be expected that your home will be spic and span all the time, if there are children in it.

But as long as it is clean, and you are gracious in welcome, other conditions are of minor importance.

The spirit of gracious personality can outshine material surroundings.
